Board of Inquiry Created as Union Scornfully Rejects Mediation Efforts

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

President Truman late yesterday created a board of inquiry to investigate the issues in the soft coal strike and report back to him on or before April 5. The step is a probable preliminary to an injunction against the walkout.

He acted a few hours after the coal miners union scornfully rejected a back-to-work proposal suggested the previous day by Federal Mediation Director Cyrus S. Ching.

His suggestion was that the miners return to their jobs, and that collective bargaining over the disputed issues then be undertaken by union and operator representatives. The miners' reply called the offer "grotesque."

First Step Under Law

With all mediation efforts thereby dashed, Mr. Truman appeared to have no alternative but to invoke the "national emergency" procedures of the Taft-Hartley Act. Creation of the board of inquiry—a fact-finding body—was the first step.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, who made public the executive order setting up the board, said it would consist of three members, and that their names would probably be announced today.

Under the law, a board of inquiry must first make its report to the President in a labor dispute, before the President can request the Attorney General to seek an injunction against the strike.

Quick Action Expected

Federal officials concerned with the strike believed that a board of inquiry would probably beat the April 5 deadline for making its report. They appeared to be working on a time schedule which would permit an injunction to be issued a few days before, and take effect on April 5.

This would seem to be the first possible date. The board of inquiry could scarcely report before the end of this week. Thereupon, there follow the Easter holiday and on April 1, John Mitchell Day, a traditional mine holiday. April 5 is the first Monday thereafter.

The problem, however, is: what and whom, to enjoin? John L. Lewis, miners' chieftain, and his union officials insist they have not called or ordered any strike.

Unwilling to Work

They assert only that the miners, angered over failure to establish a pension plan for them, are now unwilling to work. Their contract says they will work only if "able and willing."

Hardly had Mr. Truman issued his order last night than he drew sharp criticism from John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association. Battle objected to allowing the board until April 5 to report.

"It should require only a matter of hours," Battle complained in a statement. He said the facts are well known in the case and that "there is absolutely no justification" for bringing on a shortage of coal.

On Monday, three union representatives tentatively rejected the mediation proposal made to them and to the mine operators by Ching. Yesterday they formalized their position in a curt note to Ching. The union representatives, not Lewis, signed it. But the phras-

Difficult Selection

WILL CLAYTON

Will Clayton, former Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs, is the Administration's No. 1 candidate for the post of administrator of the Marshall Plan.

President Truman has not yet asked Clayton whether he would accept the appointment, but close associates take it for granted that he will in time.

The $20,000-a-year job, which is provided for in the legislation now before the House, is regarded as one of the most important and most difficult a President has ever had to fill.

The administrator will have status equal to Cabinet officers and powers far greater than some. It will be his task to direct the greatest relief and reconstruction program in history, embracing 16 countries in Europe and China as well.

In disbursing billions of American dollars, he will have to decide what sums are to be spent in what countries and he will even have the power to cut off a country if he feels it is not living up to its agreements. He will be required to keep the Secretary of State informed and to satisfy a watchful Congress that he is doing his job on a business-like basis.

Clayton was one of the principal architects of the European Recovery Plan. A memorandum which he submitted last sprnig, following his return from Europe, was used by Secretary of State Marshall in writing his famous Harvard speech of June 5.

The chief reason for his retirement last fall, it was understood, was Mrs. Clayton's insistence that he take a rest. She was afraid

Rent Control Extension Accord Is Near

Conferee Compromise Rejects Local Option, Sets 1-Year Limit

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Senate-House conferees yesterday reached a tentative agreement to extend rent control through March 31, 1949.

Under the compromise proposal the Federal Housing Administrator will retain his power to review and pass on decisions of local rent control boards.

A new provision providing for appeal from the housing expediter's decisions to the Emergency Court of Appeals was inserted to win House support.

The House voted to vest supreme control over rents in the hands of local rent control boards, while the Senate gave the housing expediter the final authority.

D. C. Rent Control Bill Goes to White House

The Senate yesterday approved and sent to the White House a bill to extend District rent control from March 31 to April 30.

Senate District Committee action on a one-year District rent-control extension is scheduled for next Tuesday.

Senator Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) and Representative Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.), conference leaders, predicted final agreement on the bill early today.

Any agreements discussed yesterday, they stressed, were only tentative. The committee staff was instructed to draft legal language covering the tentative compromise plan.

Both Tobey and Wolcott refused to discuss what the actual compromise was, but other committee members disclosed the new plan involved the right to take the housing expediter's decisions to the Emergency Court of Appeals.

The Senate yielded to the House on the date to end controls. The Senate bill set the termination date as April 30, 1949.

Tobey and Wolcott said that they

First GSI Strikers Due Back on Job

2 FWA Attorneys Begin Working Out Agreement Details

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

The first of the 1000 GSI strikers are expected back on their jobs tomorrow or Friday. Meanwhile two Federal Work Agency attorneys yesterday began working out details of an agreement ending the 78-day walkout.

Under settlement terms, three cafeterias that were closed during the strike—those at the Labor Department, Supreme Court, and Langston Terrace residence halls—could resume service Monday, FWA officials said. About 100 of the pickets will be rehired to man them.

Appointed by Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming, Division Counsel Daniel L. Boland will administer terms of the union-management agreement. FWA General Counsel Alan Johnstone was named by Fleming to pass finally on any appeals from Boland's decisions.

They will be returned with full seniority "as speedily as possible consistent with the efficient operation of the cafeterias." The eating places were run during the strike by about 1000 replacement workers, and some 300 who stayed on the job.

Boland said that except in the cases of three closed cafeterias, about 20 strikers a day can be reinstated through normal turnover.

He said service at the Labor, Supreme Court and Langston Terrace cafeterias would be resumed as soon as they are cleaned and made ready, probably by Monday.

Government Services, Inc., operates 42 cafeterias in Federal buildings here under a contract with the Government, through Fleming. Eighty thousand Government workers normally patronize them every day.

The union, Local 471, Union Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO), withdrew its picket

Neurologists Study Freak

GUESS WHO?

Washington's two-headed terrapin has been enlisted in the cause of neurology.

Two New York doctors prodded, examined and filmed the freak diamond back in the Commerce Department Aquarium on Saturday and returned home Sunday apparently satisfied with their findings.

One of the neurologists, Dr. Richard A. Brickner, said last night that the precise purpose of the experiments is "too involved to explain on the telephone."

However, he disclosed it has something to do with studying how humans behave. A few million years ago, it seems, people looked like turtles and were just about as intelligent.

We didn't have two heads, Dr. Brickner admits, but the uncommon phenomenon of two brains running one body may throw some light on the development of man's mental makeup.

Dr. Brickner said he and Dr. Vosburg Lyon are preparing a paper on the subject for presentation to a national neurological society. And you can get the full details then—if you'll be patient.

Lard Export Plans Leaked, U. S. Admits

'Certain Persons' Made Huge Sums In Speculation, Andresen Charges

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Department of Agriculture yesterday admitted that Government plans to export lard last September "leaked."

As a result, Chairman August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) of the special House Committee investigating commodity speculation, declared: "Certain persons made tremendous sums of money" speculating in fats and oils.

The leak took place, according to Agriculture officials, between August 30 and September 10, when the Government allocations of lard for export for the last three months of 1947 were announced.

One official, who asked that his name be withheld, attributed the leak to a girl clerk in the Commerce Department who, he said, discussed the information while on a "date" with an employe of a market analyst. The official said the girl did not know the information she was disclosing was supposed to be secret.

The revelation of the leak was made by George A. Parks, a statistician for the Fats and Oils Branch of the Production and Marketing Administration. Parks testified that plans to increase lard exports for the last quarter of the year from 35 million to 70 million pounds became known several days before the announcement was made September 10.

Lard Jumped 6 to 8 Cents

In the interim lard prices jumped from 6 to 8 cents a pound from September 2 to September 10.

Park's testimony came after Andresen had introduced a market letter sent out by the market analyst, G. G. Lusk of Greenville, Miss., on September 9—one day ahead of the department's announcement.

Lusk's letter said that "rumors of leaks" indicated that the department's secret allocations would amount to 450 million pounds of fats and oils. Parks said the actual figure was 452 million pounds. The letter also predicted that the lard allocation would be 75 million—it was approximately that.

Large holders of lard futures on September 30 as shown by the Commodity Exchange Authority, included:

Edwin T. Maynard, Chicago speculator, who recently admitted making a profit of $300,000 to $400,000 in less than a week during the grain market break that began February 4. Maynard lard holdings on September 30 were two million pounds.

Sniffed in the Bud . . .

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

Peter Marinock, of 1401 Lawrence st. ne., sniffs at the opening buds on a branch pruned from a cherry tree at the Tidal Basin

This year's cherry blossom fete has been shifted to Hains Point because of an unforeseen warm spell.

The dates remain the same, April 10 to 11.

A decision to shift the fete to Hains Point was reached yesterday at a special "emergency" session of the Cherry Blossom Festival committee, called to decide what to do about the pre-schedule blooming of blossoms around the Tidal Basin.

The change in location was agreed upon after Edward Kelly, special assistant to the superintendent of National Capital Parks, predicted that the double blossoms around Hains Point will be out in style around the time originally set for the festival.

In contrast, the blossoms around the Tidal Basin will be "popping like popcorn" on the next sunny day, according to Harry T. Thompson, assistant superintendent of NCP. They are expected to be in full bloom by Sunday. Crews from the horticultural and maintenance division of NCP were pruning the trees yesterday.

900,000 Army Planned

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Military preparedness plans costing up to nine billion dollars additional next year—keyed directly to our future foreign policy—were laid before President Truman late yesterday.

Defense Secretary James Forrestal and the Joint Chiefs of Staff presented their proposals—reliably reported to involve a series of alternative plans—at an hour-and-a-quarter White House conference.

They range in cost from two to nine billion—over and above the 11 billion dollars already budgeted for defense in 1949.

Fast Expansion Proposed

No decisions were made at yesterday's conference, it was learned. There was little discussion of the detailed alternative plans themselves. Rather the defense chiefs outlined what forces we should have if we take any one of several possible stands in current international affairs.

Under Course A, the President was informed, we should build up fast, launching an expansion program that would cost many billions of dollars immediately. It would mean enlarging the Strategic Air Force, the Fleet and ground army substantially to back up the possible results of this policy.

Under alternate courses of foreign policy, somewhat less rapid and extensive preparedness measures might be ordered at this time, the Joint Chiefs advised.

"Bedrock" Plan Asks Big Army

Based on these recommendations—and considerations of cost—the President is expected to shortly reach a decision on the size of the new preparedness program. That decision may be given Forrestal today. Top military chiefs are scheduled to put the program before the Senate Armed Services Committee tomorrow morning.

Italy to Reject Gorizia Plan

Border of Trieste Free State Reinforced by British Police

Rome, March 23 (AP).—British military police reinforced the border in Trieste Free State tonight as a precautionary measure.

A foreign ministry spokesman in Rome said Italy would reject Yugoslavia's offer to barter her claims to Trieste for Italian Gorizia.

Maj. Gen. Terence S. Airey, chief civil officer of the Allied Military Government in Trieste, said fresh detachments had been moved into the border area dividing Trieste territory between Yugoslav and British-American occupation zones "in case there are repetitions of the September 15 incidents."

He referred to the attempt of a Yugoslav detachment to move into the British-American zone in the main part of Trieste when the territory became a free state last year. The detachment was turned back by American soldiers.

The border was reinforced after an Italian civil policeman was wounded last night by a Yugoslav patrol which opened fire during a dispute as to where the boundary lay.

The foreign ministry spokesman in dealing with Yugoslavia's offer, said: "It is clear that Italy cannot accept the separation of a part of Italian flesh bartered for another part of Italian flesh."

The Yugoslav proposal to turn the six-months-old free state back to Italy if Italy would cede Gorizia, a city of 50,000 to the northwest, was made informally at Belgrade yesterday in connection with a Yugoslav protest against the methods of the three western powers. The Yugoslavs protested that the proposal in the midst of the campaign for the Italian elections April 18 would stir up ill-feeling between Italy and Yugoslavia.

The Foreign Office spokesman said Italy had received no formal Yugoslav offer concerning Trieste but that he was taking note of press dispatches from Belgrade.

More Party Leaders Turn On Truman

3 Brooklyn Democrats, Senator Hill Hit Nomination Prospects

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

North and South developments yesterday widened the Democratic Party schism and hit President Truman's nomination prospects.

1. Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.), one of the Administration's last pillars in the South, withdrew his indorsement of Mr. Truman for the Democratic presidential nomination.

2. Three Brooklyn Democratic leaders from heavily Jewish districts announced they will not support Mr. Truman for the nomination. They protested the Administration's reversal on Palestine partition.

Truman Won't Withdraw

Sources close to the Administration said Mr. Truman isn't stepping out of the race now or later, but both moves put pressure on him to do so.

Hill's statement that "the situation in Alabama and the South . . . makes it clear that there cannot be Democratic Party unity with President Truman as the nominee of the party" was the day's biggest surprise.

The former Senate Democratic whip less than a month ago had announced for the President's renomination. Moving into Alabama's troubled primary campaign he had asked for settlement of differences within the party, with Truman as the nominee.

Hill in his statement did not explain his shift but friends of the Alabaman said he had failed in his peacemaking efforts.

Follows Sparkman Action

His reversal came just four days after Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), another former Administration stalwart, also called for Mr. Truman's withdrawal and suggested Dwight D. Eisenhower would make a good candidate.

Sparkman, former Democratic whip of the House, while Hill held the same office in the Senate, is running for reelection to the Senate in the May 4 Alabama primaries. Hill is running for election as Russia Hurls 'Blackmail' Charge at U. S.

Gromyko Denounces Policies in Europe, Defends Moscow

Lake Success, March 23 (AP).—Russia charged today the United States is attempting to "blackmail" Italy and Czechoslovakia. The United States retorted such a charge is "fantastic" and unworthy of answer.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, told the United Nations Security Council that the United States is using "promises and threats, whip and cake" in the Italian campaign.

He declared that the United States is employing in Italy a "policy of rude pressure and blackmail." It was the first reference here to Italy since the western powers called for the return of Trieste to Italy.

Denounces All Charges

Gromyko denounced all charges against Russia in the Czechoslovak case as being groundless. He said the Czechoslovak people would not yield to "blackmail" and "cheap propaganda" coming from the rostrum of the Security Council.

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate, promptly answered Gromyko's hour-long blast against the European policies of the United States, Britain and France.

Austin attacked what he called these "fantastic stories about the United States."

The American delegate said that it has always been obvious that such stories are the "propaganda of the arbitrary rulers of the Russian people."

Hits Chile, Wall Street

Today's was the second day of debate in the Security Council on charges brought by Chile that Russia engineered the February Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

Gromyko attacked the "venal rulers" of Chile who he said acted at the behest of "financial and industrial kings from Wall Street."

He declared the Chilean complaint, which formally put before the Council the charges made earlier by Dr. Jan Papanek, of Czechoslovakia, was absurd.

Austin answered quickly that a

Gen. Clay to Stay As U. S. Zone Head; Plans for Civilian Governor Dropped

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

President Truman tossed overboard yesterday Administration plans for a civilian governor over the American occupation zone in Germany. The White House announced that Gen. Lucius D. Clay would remain as military governor.

This reversal of policy evidently was decided upon by the President and his diplomatic and military advisers as one more step in his "Stop Communism" effort.

Germany is a key position in the conflict between East and West, and any change of administration there in the near future, some officials said, might have had the effect of weakening the American position in Europe due to the uncertainty and confusion which could result from a shake-up at the top.

General Clay had indicated several months ago his desire to resign this year as American governor in Germany, but as result of yesterday's announcement there was speculation that he would stay on indefinitely. The Army Department said he has never filed any formal request for retirement.

Announcement Unheralded

The White House announcement came suddenly and without forewarning. In this respect it was comparable to last Friday's American move in the United Nations Security Council to have the plan for partition of Palestine suspended and also to the announcement on Saturday of the western power proposal to restore Trieste to Italy.

The White House gave newsmen a brief statement recalling that on January 27 the Army announced the State Department would take over responsibility for governing the German occupation zone on July 1. The announcement then declared:

"Following a review of the present situation, it has been decided it would be inadvisable to make any changes in our present administrative arrangements for Germany. This decision will not have any adverse effect on progress toward developing German responsibility for self-government and administrative initative.

"General Clay remains as military governor and as commander in chief of the United States forces in Europe."

The White House did not detail what was meant by "a review of the present situation." But several factors bearing upon the American policies toward Germany appeared clear.

Uncertainty in Berlin

One of these is the situation in Berlin as the result of the Soviet withdrawal on Saturday from the Allied Control Council. This has thrown into a state of uncertainty the future of four-power governing machinery in the defeated enemy country.

Another factor is that as tensions mount between Russia and the western powers military factors have become uppermost in almost all American policy decisions. The United States has a force of about 100,000 troops in Germany, its largest contingent in the European area. The handling of that force may be somewhat simplified by continuing General Clay as both the military governor and the commander in chief of American forces in Europe.

Still a third factor concerns American long-range policy toward Germany. Military government was originally designed to last only for that part of the postwar period during which Europe and Germany were in a state of upheaval. The plan has been all along for a civilian governor to run the German occupation over the long period of years which officials here anticipated would be necessary.

Now, however, conditions in Europe are more unsettled than at any time since the war ended and presumably the President and his advisers felt it would not be desirable to shift responsibility for German controls to a civilian administrator.

Red Cross Reaches 74% Of Goal in Washington Area

The Red Cross drive for 1948 yesterday recorded 74.17 per cent of its $1,080,000 goal in the District area.

Campaign Manager Randolph G. Bishop warned volunteer solicitors, at a luncheon meeting in the Chamber of Commerce Building, that "we still have a tremendous job of coverage" before the close of the drive March 31. An additional 119,000 "givers" will be needed to equal last year's number of contributors, he said.

Maj. Gen. Luther D. Miller, chief of chaplains for the Department of the Army, reminded volunteers that "we are now on the 20-yard line" and urged them to "put more pep and enthusiasm" into their efforts. He was principal speaker at the meeting.

Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder, chairman of the Government unit, who presided at the report session, paid tribute to Federal workers as "the finest, most patriotic group of people that we have."

Later, H. Randolph Maddox, chairman of the general business unit, pointed out that the 1500 concerns covered by his unit still lack 35 per cent of their quota.

"The response we receive within the next eight days from business firms and their employes," he said, "will be an important factor in the success of the entire drive."

Contributions recorded to date by the four principal units follow: Government, 77.62 per cent of the $494,000 goal; General Business, 65 per cent of the $315,100 goal; Residential, 102.87 per cent of the $84,000 goal; City, 73.08 per cent of the $54,000 goal. Among units which have gone over the top are the Treasury Department, State Department and International Bank.

Homemaking First in Satisfaction To Mrs. Ross, Woman of Many 'Firsts'

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross has a lot of "firsts" to her credit. She is the first woman to govern a United States State. She is the first woman to direct the United States Mint. Her name is the first woman's to be engraved for all time upon the cornerstone of a Federal building.

NELLIE TAYLOE ROSS
Fourth-termer

Nominated yesterday by President Truman for her fourth term as Mint director, Mrs. Ross pointed out that during her 15 years in that post, the United States Mint has produced as much coin as had been produced in all the years before that there has been a United States Government.

This unique accomplishment has been made possible, she said, by working a great deal of the time on a 24-hour a day, 7-day a week basis, at top speed.

During the war, the Mint was producing coins for foreign nations all over the globe.

While Mrs. Ross finds this work fascinating, she declares that homemaking is the most satisfying thing she has done in her life. This career, however, ended with the death of her husband, William Bradford Ross, who became Governor of Wyoming in 1923 and died the following year. A month later, Mrs. Ross was elected to succeed him.

Mrs. Ross declares that the events of her life have been knit together by an "unusual chain of circumstances." From her career as Governor, she bounced into politics, speaking for the Alfred E. Smith nomination in 1928, and, four years later, for Franklin D. Roosevelt's first candidacy. She was appointed by Roosevelt as Mint director in 1933.

Her span of service has seen the Government's stockpile of gold grow from three billions to 23 billions of dollars, larger part of which is stored now at Fort Knox. However, the Government has seven field institutions—Mint depositories—in all.

Mrs. Ross, who said she had never expected to work for the United States Mint, explained that "After I got into it, I worked good and hard, found it fascinating, and that's all there is to it."

Feminine about her age, Mrs. Ross was born in St. Joseph, Mo.

Standing 5 feet 3 or 4, Mrs. Ross has lively blue eyes and graying hair. Her own physical description is, "I need to reduce."

General Marshall Asks Funds For State Department 'Eyes'

Russia's "Iron Curtain" makes it more important than ever for this country to maintain its intelligence service abroad, Secretary of State George C. Marshall told the Senate yesterday.

Appearing before the Senate Appropriations Committee Marshall asked for restoration of a House-passed cut of $4,050,000 for Department Service. He said this cut would require the discharge of one of every six members of the department's staff.

In these critical world conditions, the Secretary said, the work of the State Department is constantly increasing.

"The work of intelligence officers," he pointed out, "increases in importance as direct sources of information are closed to us in eastern Europe."

Other Cuts Listed

Marshall also pointed out that the House had cut $2,672,615 from the budget for the Foreign Service, which would require the discharge of 500 employes.

The Secretary also asked Congress to restore $6,378,000 cut from estimates for the international information and education program.

Marshall and Charles E. Bohlen, the Department's counselor, were bombarded with questions from committee members.

Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) interrupted Bohlen at one point to ask:

"Is any more of that Wallace stuff going out by shortwave? That, to me, was very disgusting."

Broadcasts Discussed

The counselor replied that as far as he knew the only Wallace material used was from a book about Wallace that was included in a broadcast about current literature. He added that he was sure nothing similar would be sent.

Bridges said he hoped not, because he didn't want to vote money for broadcasting Wallace's "deprecations of American foreign policy."

"I might say," Marshall rejoined, "that I don't want to have American foreign policy deprecated either."

Senator C. Wayland Brooks (R., Ill.) protested that the Voice of America broadcasts "too much crime news." He said there was "lots we could tell them without telling about the cads in America."

Bohlen said it would be "dangerous" to eliminate all crime news because people abroad would read about it in Tass (Russian news agency) accounts and discount the "credibility of our programs."

John E. Peurifoy, assistant secretary, was questioned at length about the department's internal security program.

He reported that 274 loyalty investigations have been made, with 147 closed by discharge, resignation or clearance. Of the 127 pending, 38 are being reviewed by the FBI, 15 are in the hands of the department's loyalty review board, and 74 involve insufficient evidence to refer them to the FBI.

Marshall said the department has to be careful in discharging any employe on loyalty grounds because a man's "entire career" would be ruined.

Clayton Praises Trade Pact

Havana, Cuba, March 23 (U.P.).—Former United States Undersecretary of State William L. Clayton said tonight that formation of the new International Trade Organization "may prove to be the greatest step in history toward order and justice in economic relations" between nations.

Clayton spoke at the final plenary session of the United Nations Conferenc eon Trade and Employment, at which representatives of nearly 60 nations have spent more than four months working out a charter for the ITO.

The final charter, tentatively approved by all but one of the countries represented, will be signed tomorrow.

Clayton, who heads the United States delegation, said a simple principle lies behind the charter's provisions:

"The world will be a better place to live in if nations, instead of taking unilateral action without regard to the interests of others, will adopt and follow common principles, and enter into consultation through an international organization when interests come into conflict."

The charter will not become fully effective until it has been ratified by the Legislatures of a majority of the nations represented here.

Greek-Turk Aid Cheered In Senate

The Senate shouted approval yesterday of a 275-million-dollar military aid program to bolster Greece and Turkey against communism.

The Greek-Turkish aid, to continue the present 400-million-dollar program, was approved by voice vote after only a few hours of debate in the Senate, which already has passed a $5,300,000,000 European recovery bill.

Pepper For Appeasement

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) was almost alone in opposing aid to Greece and Turkey. He said the chances for war are "about 99 out of 100" unless this country makes a "final effort" toward agreement with Russia.

The measure, aimed to buttress those countries against communism, is the second major foreign aid bill which the Senate has approved overwhelmingly and sent to the House.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gen. Claire E. Chennault, former commander of the Flying Tigers, predicted that Chinese Communists will control Manchuria within three months unless the United States aids nationalist China.

Recognition by Russia

He told the Overseas Writers Association he has no doubt that a Communist government in Manchuria will bring prompt recognition by Russia of a new state.

Then, he continued, he believes the Russians will attempt to communize all of China.

If such a campaign should succeed, he said, all of Asia would be open to conquest by communism.

Russia then would be in a position to force events in Europe, he said, and in his opinion could overrun western Europe within three months.

U. S. Exports To Russia Under Fire

By the United Press

Senate investigators yesterday ordered an immediate inquiry into the Administration's export license policy. They want especially to know about shipments of American goods to Russia and her satellites.

The investigation was announced by Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) of the Special Senate Investigating Subcommittee, amid renewed demands for closer scrutiny of U. S. trade with the Soviet Union.

Ferguson said his group decided unanimously to examine the Commerce Department's export procedures and policies. He emphasized that "particular attention" will be given to shipments to Russia.

Representative Alvin F. Weichel (R., Ohio), chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee, said the United States still is sending industrial goods to Russia despite the Administration's get-tough policy toward that country.

Administration policy toward the Soviet Union was attacked in the House by Representative Katharine St. George (R., N. Y.), who said it was time to stop all "double talk."

Representative Frederick C. Smith (R., Ohio) urged a law to prevent the Treasury from purchasing Soviet gold. He said Russia was using her gold in a calculated scheme to upset economies in other nations.

Three others were critically hurt, and four were in less serious condition. Several escaped by kicking out windows in the two-story structure.

Eaton's Aid Speech Cheered

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Chairman Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.) of the Foreign Affairs Committee brought the House of Representatives to its feet yesterday by calling the $6,205,000,000 foreign aid bill a choice between world freedom and slavery.

The central issue, he told the House, was whether "to enthrone slavery in every land with Russia as its instrument of control" or "to enthrone freedom in every land with America as its leader and champion."

"Because this is the issue and these are the world moving forces with which we must deal," he declared, "no sacrifice, no effort is too great for America nor for every other freedom-minded and freedom-loving people to assume."

Rising Ovation

The white-haired Eaton, a former Baptist minister who will be 80 next Monday, put an evangelist's fervor into his plea which started the huge foreign aid bill through the House.

When he had finished, representatives of both parties jumped up applauding as he walked slowly to his seat from the well of the House. In all of Eaton's 24 years in Congress he had seen few such demonstrations, for the House seldom gives rising ovations to any of its members.

Prior to Eaton's opening speech the House had voted overwhelmingly, by a 314-21 roll call, to bring the foreign aid bill to the floor for 15 hours of general debate. Many of those who voted for it were expected to vote for crippling amendments later, but the roll call was taken to mean that the bill would pass by a big majority in the end, and with unexpectedly few last-ditch opponents.

Eaton Sets Tone

Eaton set the tone for the first day's debate by picturnig the bill as an attempt to beat back communism. Present world conditions, he said, have been "created and motivated by the mightiest spiritual and material forces of evil which have ever cursed mankind."

"And which beat like the surge of the sea against the independence, security and peace of all free nations, including our own," he added.

Communist Menace Cited

"The measures proposed in this bill constitute a conscious recognition of the menace now confronting mankind," he said. "It is not a partisan measure. It is the voice of the American people of high and low degree; of all sections, breeds, creeds and conditions, announcing once more to the world their own invincible will to be free and their comradeship with all other peoples of like character and mind."

He went on to argue that "freedom is the distinctive glory of man," but that "communism looks upon man as an animal with a mind but without a soul.

"Its instrument is force and fear," he said. "It is the complete negation of every principle upon which a true civilization must be based. And it proposes to conquer the world by treasonable infiltration if possible; by armed force if necessary.

"This is the issue which makes necessary the legislation we are now considering."

Herter Voices Support

Representative Herter (R., Mass.), chairman of the House Select Committee on Foreign Aid, also said the bill was urgently needed to check Communism.

"The time has come to call a halt, not through words but through action," said Herter.

"I am convinced that the very fierceness of Communist opposition to its enactment indicates clearly the wholesome fear which communism has with respect to its eventual success. This legislation may well marke a turning point in mankind's history."

Herter said he would support the bill "in all its principal provisions," since he regarded it as "an extremely fair compromise" of various divergent views, including his own. Many of Herter's ideas were rejected in whole or in part by the Eaton committee.

Many Oddities Produced

The first day's debate produced many oddities, among them Representative Eugene Cox (D., Ga.) and Marcantonio (ALP., N. Y.) calling the bill "a war measure" within a few minutes of each other.

Cox, apparently approving it, said it no longer should be "camouflaged as a relief measure." Marcantonio, on the other hand, denounced it as "imperialism," and as a conscious effort "to defend the satellite nations and satellite governments set up by our State Department."

Representative Rich (R., Pa.), a bitter-ender foe of most foreign-aid measures, complained that the present bill was "by-passing the United Nations," and called it a "monstrosity for America."

Trade Effect Defended

Representative Vorys (R., Ohio), floor leader for the bill, denied that it would prevent normal east-west trade in Europe, although he said it would prevent western Europe from sending the same articles to eastern Europe which the United States prevents from leaving American shores. East-west commerce, he said, "is absolutely imperative if Europe is to survive."

Representative Judd (R., Minn.), foremost champion of the China aid portion of the bill, predicted that "given order, China will recover at a pace that will make every nation in Europe look slow." He insisted that the Chinese needed moral and military help as well as economic aid, and he was bitter at what he called American "betrayal" of China during and since the war.

Representative Bloom (D., N. Y.), Democratic floor leader for the bill, kept a bi-partisan atmosphere in the debate by repeatedly yielding Democratic time to Republican speakers. The general debate will continue today and tomorrow, with the voting on amendments scheduled to begin Monday.

Permanent Status for Wacs, Waves Rejected

By the United Press

A Senate-approved proposal to make the Wac, Waves, Wafs and Women Marines a permanent part of the armed services was turned down flatly yesterday by the House Armed Services Committee.

Instead, it re-wrote the act to permit women to enlist in the reserve corps, subject to active duty only if needed. It then approved that version, 26 to 1.

The only opposition vote was cast by the sold woman member, Representative Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.).

The Senate had voted almost unanimously to make women a part of the permanent military establishment. It acted at the behest of Defense Secretary James Forrestal and officials of the three branches of the armed services.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, former chief of staff, also had indorsed the bill, saying there were many jobs for which women were better suited than men.

Army and Navy officials were surprised by the committee's action.

U. S., Britain Seek Reich Showdown

Clay Demands Russians Rejoin Council Talks

Berlin, March 23 (AP).—The United States anad Britain asked today for a showdown on whether the Soviet Union wants to maintain four-power rule over Germany.

This came in a demand upon Soviet Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky to set a date for the next meeting of the Allied Control Council before taking up work of lesser four-power committees.

Late today the Russians partially ended their boycott of four-power government by calling for a meeting of subcommittees on currency reform and currency printing for later in the week. It was the first such action by the Russians since they walked out of a control council meeting Saturday.

Clay Calls Same Tune

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American military governor, declared his own boycott, however, by informing Sokolovsky the Americans would not attend any subcommittee meetings until a date is set for another council meeting. Sokolovsy is current council chairman under the rotation method.

Britain supported Clay in his demand.

The Russians had canceled seven meetings scheduled for today in Allied Control Council agencies, and a top American official said:

"We are tired of being pushed around. The Soviets think they can cancel meetings on subjects they don't want to discuss and call meetings on subjects they want to discuss."

The Berliner Zeitung, a Russian-controlled newspaper, indicated the Communists hoped to replace the council with their own organizations, the so-called "German Peoples' Congress" and its "Peoples' Council." The latter has the announced purpose of drafting an all-Germany constitution and eventually replacing the council.

American and British occupation authorities have banned the Congress and its affiliate in their zones on the grounds it makes fraudulent claims to represent all elements of the German population.

Navy Should Have A-Bomb, Miller Declares to House

By The Associated Press

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.,) told the House yesterday the Navy should have the atomic bomb and be ready to use it.

The Navy has denied Miller's statement in Lincoln, Nebr., Monday that United States naval forces in the Mediterranean are equipped with atomic bombs.

"It seems to me," Miller said to the House, "in the light of what is going on in the world that the Navy and our military personnel would be grossly derelict in their duties in protecting our troops, if they do not have access to the atomic bomb, and indeed would use it in case our small number of troops were attacked by an overwhelming force from Tito or Joe Stalin.

"I cannot understand why the Navy should not have the atomic bomb on hand, and be ready to use it should the emergency arise. I would like to see our Navy and all our armed forces fully equipped, and we should let the world know that we do have atomic bombs and are ready to use them against any aggressor."

Naval Academy to Have Two Royal Visitors

Annapolis, Md., March 23 (AP).—Former King Michael of Romania will visit the Naval Academy Thursday.

Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., superintendent, said today the former King will arrive from Washington shortly after 11 a. m., accompanied by two aides and a secretary.

Michael will be one of two members of royal families to see the academy this week.

Strike Cuts Meat Output in Half; Livestock Cheaper

Meat production last week dropped to almost half that of the week previous, owing to the packinghouse strike, the Government reported yesterday.

Only 163 million pounds of meat was produced in federally inspected plants, compared with 306 million the week before and 290 million a year ago. Only 895,000 head of livestock was slaughtered, contrasted with 1,713,000 the week before.

Large receipts of livestock sent prices downward at most markets. At Chicago hogs dropped from $1 to $2 a hundred pounds, with cattle from even to down $1 a hundred.

The 12 leading stockyards reported 71,900 hogs received compared with 29,211 a week ago.

Turks Resume Defense Plan

Istanbul, March 23 (AP).—The Turkish civilian defense committee acted today to complete plans within one month to cope with any emergency.

Lavrishev

The committee, virtually abandoned since the war, said it wants to revise defense precautions which have been relaxed.

The tension in international relations was reported already having an effect on Turkish economy.

A director of an important governmental bank said business had fallen off seriously and credits were greatly curtailed. He said the dollar shortage was a factor, but the fear of war was equally to blame.

Maj. Gen. H. L. MacBride, chief of the American Army group mission in Turkey, arrived from Washington by plane today. Shiploads of American military equipment under the American program for Turkish military aid are expected by the end of the month and American experts will train Turkish soldiers in its use.

Ankara awaited the arrival of the new Soviet Ambassador, Alexander Lavrishev. Ankara has been without a Soviet Ambassador since the departure of Gregori Vinogradow at the height of a Turko-Russian dispute over the Dardanelles two years ago.

Defense Chiefs Offer Preparedness Program

ness program to call for the following "bedrock" plan:

1. An Army of close to 900,000 men, to fill out existing forces at home and abroad and particularly add the equivalent of five or six additional divisions to the Army's "mobile striking force" in this country. The latter would include new airborne combat teams, capable of rapid seizure of outlying bases in an emergency.

2. Expansion of the Air Force from 55 to 70 combat groups, plus sizable orders to replace wartime planes with new jet-propelled craft.

3. Additional manpower for the Navy and Marine Corps—largely to build up under-strength warship crews.

The larger, alternate programs involve much larger aircraft orders, increasing the size of the active Fleet and modernization of warcraft, and new, improved weapons and equipment for the Army.

Besides Forrestal, those taking part in the White House meeting were Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff; Admiral Louis Denfield, Chief of Naval Operations; Gen. Carl Spaatz, Air Force Chief of Staff; Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, Mr. Truman's chief of staff, and Budget Director James E. Webb.

All declined comment, except Webb.

"The President has his feet on the ground," he told reporters, "When he makes his decision you can be sure it will be for the good of the country."

Meanwhile the Senate Armed Services Committee continued its consideration of the defense situation, hearing a series of witnesses in support and opposition to universal military training.

During the morning session, representatives of the three major farm organizations testified against the controversial training program. Former Ambassador to Japan Joseph C. Grew and a representative of the United States Chamber of Commerce strongly urged its adoption.

In another defense development, Russell J. Hopley, new director of civil defense planning, urged that cities set up disaster relief organizations now. He told a press conference that he hopes to have ready by next fall a national plan of civilian defense to meet any military attack.

Hopley, who is on six months leave from his post of president of the Northwest Bell Telephone Co., at Omaha, Nebr., said it will be some time before he is ready to meet with State and city officials on civil defense plans. However, he said cities should go ahead with organizations which later can be brought into a national plan.

"Just as every American city needs a fire department," Hopley stated, "we must have a sound civilian defense organization on hand in case this country is attacked."

Favors Draft Only for War

The three-farm organizations opposing UMT—the American Farm Bureau Federation, National Grange and National Farmers Union—said their combined membership was in excess of two millions. J. T. Sanders of the Grange told the committee that his group would favor Selective Service if "we are immediately confronted with a war crisis."

If the crisis is not imminent, he declared, preparedness measures should be confined to air, naval and industrial measures rather than compulsory service or training. Sanders said the Grange recognizes the danger of Soviet aggression and urged that Congress and the President should get together on a definite foreign policy to stop Russia.

Russell Smith of th eFarmers' Union, on the other hand, declared we should "take every possible peaceful step" rather than measures which other nations will interpret as "preparation for war." American military expenditures "should be substantially reduced" rather than increased, he said.

Wants U. N. Police Force

Herbert V. Vorhees, of the Farm Bureau, urged plans for a United Nations police force to enforce peace rather than calling up youths "sorely needed" on American farms. He said that if a real crisis exists, he would favor a draft rather than UMT, but contended there is no evidence that total preparedness is necessary.

"There is little or no sign that industry has been called upon for production of needed war supplies and equipment," Vorhees declared.

Chairman Chan Gurney challenged the opopnents' contention that voluntary recruiting would solve the Army's manpower troubles. He disclosed that a corps of 13,503 recruiters have enrolled only 235,000 volunteers for the armed services thus far this fiscal year, at a cost well in excess of 40 million dollars—or $170 for each man enrolled.

Warns Veterans Only Reserve

Failure to approve the UMT and draft proposals, Senator Gurney declared, would mean that veterans of the last war "will be our only trained reserves in case of trouble."

Clem Dfl Johnston of Roanoke, Va., urged adoption of adequate preparedness measures on behalf of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"Weakness has always constituted an open invitation for aggression on the part of militarists," he declared. "No unprepared nation, however peaceful its people, has any assurance of security.

"The adoption of universal military training . . . would serve notice to the world and to any potential aggressors that we do not intend again to relax our guard and in this way it should be an important factor in maintaining peace and discouraging aggressive action."

"We Demobilized Too Much"

Former Ambassador Grew said that the postwar demobilization of our armed forces "below the safety point" was one of the "greatest blunders in history." Approval of UMT now, he declared, would have an "important psychological impact both on aggressive-minded and on peace-minded nations abroad."

"Our adoption of UMT will conclusively indicated to Soviet Russia," Grew added, "that there is a point beyond which we cannot and will not allow our own future security to be jeopardized by the blotting out of western civilization, democracy and freedom in our neighboring nations."

Richard L. Van Nort, slender but confident teen-age high school student from Haddonfield, N. J., told the committee that it should keep an "open mind" on both universal military training and a temporary draft.

"Christian Youths" Opposed

"I hope you won't forget that the statistics you are dealing with have a lot of flesh and blood in back of them," he said.

Van Nort testified as a member of the Philadelphia Christian Youth Council.

Robert Tesdell of Chicago testified that 10 million young church people are opposed to both UMT and the peacetime draft.

Tesdell, 29, appeared for the United Christian Youth Movement. He said this included 40 Protestant denominations and such groups as the YMCA, YWCA and other youth organizations.

'Undeclared War' On Greece Laid to 2 Balkan States

Geneva, Switzerland, March 23 (AP).—Charges of "undeclared warfare" by Albania and Bulgaria against Greece and of "military activities" by Outer Mongolia against China marked the opening today of the United Nations Conference on Freedom of Information.

The allegations were made by representatives of Greece and China during discussion of Soviet proposals to grant voting rights to nonmembers of the United Nations represented at the conference, and to invite Outer Mongolia to participate as a nonmember. Both proposals were decisively defeated.

The conference, called by the U. N. General Assembly to formulate views "concerning the rights, obligations and practices which should be included in the concept of freedom of information," elected Cralos P. Romulo of the Philippines as chairman.

District Commissioners and Public Welfare Board officials are scheduled to testify at 10 a. m. in a Capitol hearing on extending Washington's child day care center program.

The hearing will be held in the House District Committee room before a subcommittee headed by Representative A. L. Miller, (R., Neb.). A bill to make the centers a permanent District program is sponsored by Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.).

The subcommittee also plans executive discussion of the bill to tighten District laws dealing with sex offenders. The bill would sharply increase penalties for sex offenses and would permit sex psychopaths to be treated at St. Elizabeths.

Coy Sees 'Urgency' in Radio Planning

New York, March 23 (U.P.).—Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission said today that world events "give a special urgency" to careful planning for radio's future.

He said long-range planning for the use of frequencies is necessary to both national security and progress of the radio industry.

"If we needed another reason for putting our radio house in order we have it in the President's special message to Congress," he said in a speech prepared for the annual convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Coy warned against inefficient use of radio facilities through lack of planning for new developments. He said plans for the future of radio must be carried on in the international field as well as the domestic.

Bevin Reaffirms Palestine Stand

Says Britain Is 'Absolutely Adamant' On Quitting, Rejects Blame for Chaos

By Don Cook

London, March 23 (NYHT).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin bitterly reaffirmed today Britain's unequivocal decision to quit Palestine by May 15, asking, "If other people have got it into a muddle, why should the British government be blamed?"

Rising in the middle of a House of Commons debate on legislation which will bring the British mandate of Palestine to an end, Bevin declared the change in American policy towards the United Nations Assembly decision does not and cannot change British policy.

"That state has made a number of propositions in relation to Palestine," the Foreign Secretary said, avoiding calling the United States by name. "The fact before the world is that the United Nations Assembly has come to a decision. There may be the calling of another assembly; there may be this or that action. But that does not affect our coming out.

Lays Blame on U. S.

"You ask whether we will hand Palestine over to chaos. It will not be us handing it over to the United Nations. If the U. N. in taking it on has produced chaos, how is it that Great Britain is handing it over to chaos?"

Both the Foreign Secretary and Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech-Jones were pressed from the Conservative and back-bench Labor sides of the House for some statement on what the changed conditions in the U. N. mean in British policy. In the words of Creech-Jones, they both were "absolutely adamant" on the question of withdrawal.

"We have made it perfectly clear that we have not opposed the U. N. decision ever since that decision was taken," the Foreign Secretary said. "Whoever cares to misrepresent us, let them do it. But that is the fact and I hope that fact will go out quite clearly. If other people have got it into a muddle, why should the British government be blamed?"

U. N. Board Continues With Partition Plan

Lake Success, N. Y., March 23 (U.P.).—The United Nations Palestine Commission decided today to go ahead with the Palestine partition program, despite abandonment of the plan by the United States, on the ground that only the U. N. General Assembly can call off the Commission's work.

American officials said United States Delegate Warren Austin would formally submit to the Security Council tomorrow a request for a special session of the General Assembly to repeal the partition decision and decree a temporary U. N. trusteeship over Palestine.

Jewish Government To Take Over May 16

Jerusalem, March 23 (AP).—Representatives of Palestine's 600,000 Jews announced tonight a provisional Jewish government would begin operation in the Holy Land May 16, a day after the British yield their mandate.

In a joint meeting of the Jewish Agency and Jewish National Council in Tel Aviv the Jews rejected any plan for a Holy Land trusteeship, as suggested by the United States to the United Nations.

Jewish-Arab warfare continued, with a bitter battle raging tonight in the Montefiore district of Jerusalem, a heavily fortified Jewish area. An Arab-driven truck exploded in the district, demolishing between 30 and 40 houses, an official statement said. A British soldier was killed in the gun battle that followed.

Meanwhile quiet prevailed in the Judean hills west of Jerusalem where the British army sent in tanks and artillery to restore order list night. More than 100 Arabs and Jews had been killed then in four days of warfare.

Most observers had predicted that a formal proclamation of a Hebrew state would emerge from the Tel Aviv meeting but the action did not go quite that far.

U. S. Attempting Blackmail In Europe, Gromyko Charges

host of questions had been left up in the air after Gromyko spoke.

Gromyko charged that the United States and what he called its "junior partner, Great Britain" were raising "such a howl" over the events in Czechoslovakia because their own attempts to control the Prague government had been frustrated

Common Knowledge, He Says

He said that "every cowboy" in the United States could tell about the United States policy in Italy; that "every doorman in a New York hotel" knew that the United States had brought about the reorganization of the French government without French people being consulted.

Austin replied that it is a tribute to the United States system that doormen and cowboys "and taxi drivers in Washington" are in a position to know what goes on in the United States.

Austin declared that the Council must realize grave charges have been made of Russian interference in Czechoslovakian affairs. He said that the Council should realize furthermore that if established these charges would constitute a case of indirect aggression.

"The United Nations," he declared, "would then be called upon to develop effective collective measures designed for the preservation of the territorial integrity and political independence of states, however small.

"Whether the charges are traversed or admitted, my Government's position is to support continued consideration by the Security Council aimed at saving other peoples from indirect aggression."

The Council adjourned the Czechoslovak debate until March 31.

Czech Woman Delegate Hears Gromyko's Charge

Gertrude Sekaninova, assistant to the Communist delegate to the United Nations Security Council from the Czechoslovakian government, was among those who yesterday heard Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko accuse America of trying to "blackmail" Italy and Czechoslovakia.

Coup Internal Affair, Panyushkin Claims

New York, March 23 (U.P.).—Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin, appealing for American-Soviet peace and cooperation, claimed tonight that the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia was an "internal affair" of the Czech people.

He denied it was "aggression" by the Soviet Union and asserted that reactionary circles were presenting the Czech situation as such to "sow the seeds of enmity" between Russia and the United States.

The new ambassador delivered his first address in America to the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship at a dinner in his honor. Another speaker was Senator Glen F. Taylor (D., Idaho), vice presidential candidate on Henry A. Wallace's third party ticket.

Panyushkin said "certain circles from the camp of international reaction" have lowered an "iron curtain" around Russia and eastern Europe to conceal from the rest of the world the truth about that area.

2 Hitchhikers Killed As Motorist Sleeps

Bedford, Pa., March 23 (AP).—Two hitchhikers, one a young sailor, were killed today a half mile west of the Bedford interchange on the Pennsylvania turnpike.

Police identified the sailor as John A. Lloyd, 25, Braddock, Pa. The other victim was Barton Clark Rippy, Nashville, Tenn. They were killed when the car in which they were riding skidded into a highway maintenance truck.

State Police Pvt. Calvin Richwine said the owner of the car, Roselyn Schollenberger of Washington, D. C., was asleep in the rear seat at the time of the accident. Schollenberger was unhurt.

Japanese Formally Stripped Of Small Arms by Commission

By The Associated Press

The 11-Nation Far Eastern Commission yesterday ordered Japan stripped of all arms except the rifles, pistols and other weapons carried by civil police, and shotguns used by hunters.

The commission published a sweeping policy decision which ordered also that as long as Japan remains under Allied control, she may not manufacture airplanes of any kind.

The decision, sent to Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the form of a directive, includes major measures to keep Japan disarmed, which MacArthur as Supreme Allied Commander already has put into effect.

No. 47 in Lone Series

It was number 47 of a series of formal decisions which the commission has drafted since its creation more than two years ago. These set Allied policy, which will remain effective until a peace treaty restores Japan to its prewar sovereignty.

Their result has been largely to ratify steps already taken by MacArthur under so-called interim directives from the United States through the Army.

The latest policy, labeled "prohibition of military activity in Japan, and disposition of the Japanese military equipment," was adopted February 12. A closed-door debate developed a controversy resulting from objections raised to several provisions by Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin. The envoy later sought to explain Russia's position in an unusual formal statement.

Russian Objections

He objected to a clause authorizing police to carry, aside from rifles and pistols, "other small arms exclusively used by civil police," Panyushkin contended this was subject to varied interpretation.

The FEC policy also directed destruction of all records of military registration of demobilized Japanese personnel.

Also prohibited in the new policy were reestablishment of any form of military organization, such as organizations of former officers, and military training or instruction of any kind.

Japanese World War II officers of all kinds were barred from public posts, but MacArthur was authorized to make exceptions where there was evidence the officer opposed Japanese aggression.

Grand Jury Begins Probe Of Lobbying

Operations of various "pressure groups" on Capitol Hill came under the spotlight of the District Grand jury yesterday as it began considering charges of violation of the Federal Lobby Registration law.

Special Prosecutor Irving R. Kaufman of New York, brought here by the Department of Justice to present the Government's case refused to divulge names of four witnesses heard yesterday but it was ascertained that one was James D. Preston, registration clerk of the Senate.

While admitting that thus far evidence has been presented against only one defendant, Kaufman refued to divulge the name of the corporation or individual.

Specific action is expected before April 5, when the term of the present jury concludes.

Kaufman began his probe involving alleged sidestepping of the statute that makes it mandatory that all lobby groups should have registered their names last October.

Associated with him in the prosecution if the case are Arthur Callahan, Herbert Maletz and Joseph Dolan.

hoped to file their conference report today, with the expectation of getting a vote tomorrow. The present law expires in a week.

Give Way on Minor Points

Conferees for the Senate gave the House its way on many minor points in order to swing the best possible bargain to continue Federal controls. The Senate conferees have contended that the House "local option" provision would mean no rent control at all. Two of the House conferees—Representatives Brent Spece (D., Ky.) and Mike Monroney (D., Okla.)—also supported Federal controls.

Conferees are also agreed:

1. To end controls over construction of amusement and recreational building. The Senate bill would have continued the present permit requirement.
2. To free from controls furnished rooms occupied by two persons or less in private homes.
3. To drop a Senate provision requiring signed statements from tenants who agreed to a 15 per cent increase that they were not forced into it.

Alexandria Police Must Wait for Robbery Suspect

Alexandria police learned yesterday they will have to wait until March 30 at least to get custody of David O. Briggs, who reportedly has confessed to a $27,000 bank robbery in Alexandria last summer.

From Detroit, where Briggs made his confession March 16, came word that his trial there on charges of housebreaking has been set for March 30.

Lieut. Russell A. Hawes, Alexandria detective chief, planned to leave for Detroit to obtain from Briggs the "whole story" of how he allegedly removed $27,000 from the night deposit box of First National Bank of Alexandria last June 18.

Alexandria police presently are not satisfied with Briggs' reported explanation of how he got into the bank or his statement that he lost the money the next day.

They said they have delayed further investigation while waiting to learn if Detroit authorities would waive charges and allow Briggs to be returned immediately to Alexandria.

Rent Increase Plea Taken Under Study

A petition for an average increase of 14 per cent in the rental price of the 317 units of the Kennedy-Warren Apartments, 3133 Connecticut ave. nw., was taken under advisement by Rent Control Examine James G. Tyson yesterday after an all-day hearing.

William J. Warmack, accountant and cost specialist retained by some 200 tenants, declared at the hearing that the method used by the management, the Klingle Corp., to figure some of the apartment operating costs was no better than "rank guesswork."

The corporation's petition set forth that total operating expenses in the units had increased from $156,517.50 in 1940 to $205,443.47 in 1947, apart from expenses of operating other facilities in the building, such as a garage, dining room, ballroom and public lounges. mfwyp vmh the men and womanu

The five tenants who testified did not oppose rental increases, but told of lowered service standards in the apartment building in the years since 1940. Present rents range from $55 for the smallest 2-room units to $170 for 6-room suites. Under the petition, these would be raised to $62.70 and $193.80, respectively.

Dr. Guy Stanton Ford, former president of the University of Minnesota and now executive secretary of the American Historical Association, a tenant throughout the war, said he had seen the hallways "cluttered up with dirty papers and sometimes garbage that wasn't cleaned up."

Other tenants testifying were Sam R. Broadbent, Mrs. Elizabeth Bergin, Mrs. Sarah B. Griffith and Samuel Bond. Appearing for the Klingle Corp. were W. P. Benson, president; H. L. Humphrey, vice president, and Fred Pitzer, auditor, represented by James M. Earnest. James A. Crooks represented about 200 tenants.

House Curbs Debate To Speed Tax Cut

Gets Set to Pass Senate-Approved Bill And Forward It to White House Today

By The Associated Press

The House got set yesterday to pass the $4,800,000,000 income tax cut bill along to President Truman today.

The Rules Committee decreed only one hour of debate before the vote. The committee took that course after some Democrats had served notice they would block an effort to rush the bill to President Truman yesterday.

Speaker Martin (R., Mass.) predicted the House will approve the Senate's version of the bill by more than a 3-to-1 margin.

"The tax cut is certain," he said.

He added that if the President vetoes the bill, as is widely expected, the veto will be overridden.

Hopes He's Eager to Sign

Chairman Leo Allen (R., Ill.) told the Rules Committee:

"I hope the President is as eager to sign this bill giving American taxpayers $4,800,000,000 as he is to sign the Marshall Plan to give other nations $6,200,000,000."

The measure would give tax relief to all 52 million income-tax payers now on the rolls. For 7,400,000 of them, the relief would be 100 per cent. Increased personal exemptions would take them off the rolls.

There was one brief flare of diehard Democratic opposition to the bill on the House floor. Representative Monroney (D., Okla.) shouted:

"At this moment when democracy is in great peril we are asked to reduce taxes. Before the year is out Congress will draft the sons of the mothers of this country. We had better draft the dollars now and keep taxes where they are."

Replying to Monroney, Representative Rich (R., Pa.) said:

"The gentleman from Oklahoma wants to tax and tax the people of America and spend and spend all over the world. I think we've got to take care of America first and let other countries look out for themselves until we do take care of America."

President Truman on two separate occasions last year, used his veto to kill Republican-sponsored tax reduction bills.

Chairman Taft (Ohio) of the Republican Senate Policy Committee told reporters that Mr. Truman probably will send Congress a message urging expenditure of two billion dollars to three billion dollars additional for military preparedness in line with the stop-Communism policy. Nevertheless, Taft expressed confidence that the Senate would override a veto.

PM to Continue Publication Until At Least April 9

New York, March 23 (AP).—The tabloid newspaper PM will continue publication until at least April 9, it was announced today.

Owner Marshall Field had announced he would either sell the eight-year-old newspaper or cease publication on March 26.

Announcement of the new deadline for sale or suspension was made jointly by Louis S. Weiss, secretary of the newspaper; Thomas J. Murphy, executive vice president of the New York Newspaper Guild, and Nathan Aleskovsky, PM Guild unit chairman.

Aleskovsky said the Guild was "merely told by Mr. Weiss that Mr. Field had decided on the extension because there are several serious potential buyers in the field."

Mrs. Walter J. Miller of Alexandria will discuss the Federal Union plan at a meeting of new members and persons interested in the work of the Washington Chapter of Federal Union, Inc., at a meeting today at 8 p. m., at Phillips Art Gallery, 21st and Q sts. nw.

States Rights Hold Off Reds, Tuck Says

Anti-Poll Tax Measure Would Weaken Barrier to Communism, He Testifies

By The Associated Press

Governor Tuck of Virginia said yesterday passage of the anti-poll tax bill would help break down a barrier to communism in this country.

"This bill breaks down States rights, which are a bulwark against communism," he told the Senate Rules Committee now conducting a hearing on the bill.

Tuck said breaking down of States rights leads to a centralized government and added:

"I believe you will find communism is not in control anywhere except where a highly centralized government was first set up."

The bill, which already has passed the House, would provide that payment of a poll tax should not be a requirement for voting in a Federal election. Several States including seven in the South, have a poll tax of one form or another.

Tuck contended the bill is "absolutely unconstitutional" because "the matter of qualifications for voters rests entirely with the people—it never was delegated to the Federal Government."

Matter Only for Virginia

Repeal of the Virginia poll tax now is pending, Tuck told the committee, but he added:

"As far as I am able to learn most if not all of those favoring repeal feel it should be a matter for State, not Federal action."

Senator Green (D., R. I.) asked Tuck whether he believes ownership of property could be set up by a State as a voting requirement. When Tuck said he believed so, Green asked:

"Well then could a State say to a man that you must have $100,000 before you can vote?"

"I think that would be unreasonable," Tuck said.

Pressed by Green for an answer, Tuck said he stood on his statement that the question of voter qualification is a matter to be decided by the people of a State.

"This is a power that rests with the people," Tuck said. "I'm not going to get away from that."

"I agree," said Green "but it would like a definition of a qualification. What is a qualification."

Let States "Draw the Line"

Senator Stennis (D., Miss.), committee member leading the fight on the bill, interposed that "regardless of what a qualification is, someone has to decide and you, Governor Tuck, think the State should decide?"

"Yes," said Tuck.

The Governor said he believes a voter should be intelligent and patriotic and educated but "the tests for those qualifications are up to the States."

When Green protested he hadn't received an answer to "where the line should be drawn," Tuck again said that "the tests are a matter for the States.

Representative Almond (D., Va.) was second witness today—the second day of the hearing. Today and tomorrow are to be devoted to proponents of the bill.

Southern poll tax States are being made the "whipping boy" in the civil rights program, Senator Holland (D., Fla.) protested.

Indian Restrictions Cited

He said President Truman's Civil Rights Commission had noted in its report that New Mexico and Arizona, by State constitutions, prevent Indians from voting.

But, said Holland, while the report suggested that those two States take action to eliminate the discrimination against Indians, it recommended Federal antipoll tax legislation.

"I don't know why this distinction," Holland said. "It is as if the South is not entitled to the same handling. No attention has been given to New Mexico and Arizona, but the seven Southern States have been made the whipping boy."

The pending bill, which has passed the House, states that payment of a poll tax shall not be required of a voter casting a ballot in a Federal election.

16 Rail Employes Indicted for Theft

New York, March 23 (NYHT)—Sixteen employes of the Long Island Railroad, including a road policeman and a yardmaster supervising more than a score of workers, were indicted by a Federal grand jury in Brooklyn today for the theft of an estimated $500,000 worth of goods from the railroad's yards in Long Island City, Queens.

Assistant United States Attorney Hyman H. Goldstein said the thefts occurred early in 1947 from interstate freight consignments to New York stores.

Doctor Near Death After Killing Wife

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS
DR. AND MRS. CODY

An unexplained homicidal outburst at an ice cream party Monday night in San Francisco shattered the "ideal family" life of Dr. Bernard A. Cody, leaving his wife dead, and Dr. Cody and his mother-in-law seriously injured. During a brief moment of consciousness, the 52-year-old urologist admitted bludgeoning his wife to death and attacking her mother, Mrs. Mary McDevitt, 80, with an iron pipe. Dr. Cody himself suffered probable fatal skull fractures when he drove his speeding car head-on into a concrete retaining wall

Michael Kulunkundia, New York City, 400,000 pounds.

Held Lard Previously

Byer, Fitch and Hogue had also been listed on August 30—the month before. The others, however, had all purchased their lard holdings after August 30.

Listed on August 30 was Dyke Cullum of Washington, former Texan and onetime acting postmaster of Silver Spring, Md., who was named by Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) as a business associate. Cullum, who held 750,000 pounds of lard in his name on August 30, was not listed as owning any the month later.

Last night Secretary of Agriculture Anderson declared that a thorough investigation had disclosed that the leak did not take place in his department.

Parks added that the plans were also known to the Commerce and State Departments.

Representative John A. Carroll (D., Colo.) asked Parks if Lusk had ever been investigated in connection with the leak.

"I don't recall," Parks replied.

"Was any action taken to prevent new leaks?" Carroll asked.

a delegate to the Democratic convention in the same primary. Opponents were charging that both Sparkman and Hill were "too close" to Mr. Truman.

Hill's statement, issued after Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath failed Monday in a ninety-minute effort to dissuade him, apparently left only one Southern Senator unassociated with the Dixie "revolt"—Senator Claude Pepper (D., Fla.).

Even Pepper backed away yesterday from a former statement indorsing Mr. Truman for the nomination. Pepper said yesterday the Southern States should send uninstructed delegates to the Democratic convention and let the convention decide. He said he is not now either indorsing Mr. Truman for the nomination or not indorsing him.

Word that Mr. Truman is in the race to stay came from Senator Carl Hatch (D., N. Mex.), a close friend, who said he talked to the President about it.

"He has cast aside politics and he doesn't care what happens to him politically," said Hatch. "He has told me that he intends to do what he thinks is right, without regard to the political consequences . . . He is putting the good of the country ahead of the political future of Harry S. Truman."

Representative Michael J. Kirwan (D., Ohio) also talked it all over with the President and declared unequivocally for his nomination and election. He said Democratic Congressional campaigners will charge Republicans scuttled the peace by forcing premature demobilization of the Army.

The three Brooklyn leaders who came out against Truman were Nathan Math, of the twenty-fourth assembly district; James M. Power, of the thirteenth district, and Dr. Isaac Levine, of the nineteenth district.

Power said two clubs in his district "already have decided to back Eisenhower" and will publicly say so later this week. Power said he had been chosen a delegate to the Democratic convention "but I have declined to go because I want to have no part in the nomination of Truman—if he is nominated."

Math, another of the three, distributed 25,000 circulars and posted in his clubhouse window a notice that he and his co-leader were not in sympathy with the Truman Palestine policy, repudiated it and asked his people to wire their protest to the President.

The Liberal party, which ranks fourth in New York voter strength, meanwhile released a statement bitterly condemning the Administration's change of stand on Palestine partion. The statement, issued by State Chairman Adolph A. Berle, jr., said that "The shocking reveral of President Truman on the Palestine issue is at once a shattering blow at the United Nations, the long-suffering Palestine Jewry and the moral position of the United States."

The Palestine repercussions in the North, coupled with the spreading Southern fission, dashed last week's resurgence of Democratic hopes. The President's joint session message on the world crisis, and his smack at Henry Wallace, had temporarily submerged the sectional issue. Then the Sparkman-Hill walk-out on Truman beamed the spotlight again on Southern differences. The week-end Palestine reversal left the New York Democratic outlook darker than ever.

Back of the Hill-Sparkman statements was an unusual set of circumstances. Old line Alabama Democrats have been demanding a nominee other than Truman ever since the President's civil rights message. To their left, Gov. "Kissing Jim" Folsom, with tacit Wallace support, had been hammering at Truman foreign policy, while giving lip service to the civil rights revolt. Caught right in the middle, Hill and Sparkman were threatened with a licking. Their "drop Truman" statement followed.

Intimates of the two pointed out that 21 out of 28 candidates for Alabama's 11 Presidential elector votes had pledged themselves in advance not to vote for Truman, with the mounting prospect that a solid anti-Truman slate of electors may be chosen. In addition State Democratic Chairman Gessner T. McCorvey had called for an Alabama walkout on the Democratic National Convention unless a States right plank is riveted into the Democratic platform.

Telephone Pay Negotiations Are Resumed

Contract negotiations have been launched by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. with the two local unions covering most area telephone workers.

Mrs. Mary E. Gannon, president of Washington Telephone Traffic Division No. 50, Communications Workers of America (Ind.), announced yesterday that 17 demands have been laid before the utility, including a bid for increased wages and shortened progression schedules. She declined to specify the amount of the wage boost sought.

Among the union's requests is a union shop proviso. Maintenance of membership is provided in the current agreement.

Negotiations will be resumed Tuesday.

The present contract covering about 3000 operators, was signed last May 17 after a 41-day strike. Wage boosts of $4 weekly were granted at that time.

The company also is in contract negotiation with Washington Division No. 36, which covers some 3400 plant, accounting and commercial employes.

According to a union official, no specific demands have been presented. Talks will be resumed at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the company offices.

A spokesman for the company said negotiations are in an "exploratory stage."

Hyman Firm Gets Sousa School Job

The District Commissioners yesterday awarded a $1,688,000 contract for construction of Sousa Junior High School, 37th and Ely pl. se., to the George Hyman Construction Co., 1010 Vermont ave. nw.

The company's bid was lowest of four opened Marih 9.

The Commissioners also awarded an $819,200 contract for construction of a City Refuse Division transfer station at New Jersey ave. and K st. se. to Cramer-Vollmerhausen Co., Inc., 2601 Connecticut ave. nw.

There was an understanding that "suitable" plans will be submitted later for substituting a coal instead of oil heating system. The bid was the lowest of four submitted December 26.

Archie Hutson, director of construction, said he expected work on both projects to begin "within the next three weeks."

Md. Traffic Deaths Hit Low Point in February

Baltimore, March 23 (AP).—Fewer Maryland traffic deaths were recorded last February than in any previous month, the State Traffic Safety Commission reported today.

Ten persons were killed and 585 injured in 1308 highway accidents, it said.

Garrett County had a month entirely free of accidents, the commission said.

Fourteen other counties suffered no highway deaths. They were Allegany, Anne Arundel, Calvert, Caroline, Carroll, Cecil, Dorchester, Frederick, Harford, Kent, Montgomery, Queen Anne, Worcester and Somerset.

Truman Acts In Coal Strike

ing was unmistakably that of the union boss. It read:

"We advise you further in relation to your grotesque offer of yesterday.

"The United Mine Workers of America consider that the offer was made to aid the coal operators, who have dishonored their agreement, and to further defraud the beneficiaries of the welfare fund. We could not therefore recommend its acceptance by the individual mineworkers.

"There is only one issue; i. e. shall the existing agreement be honored?"

Dispute in Outline

Lewis has demanded that the welfare fund, raised by a levy of 10 cents on each ton of coal mined, be used to pay a pension of $100 a month to every miner of 20 years' service who is over 60. The operators' trustee on the board which administers the welfare fund has refused to agree. He contends the fund will not sustain a retirement plan on such a scale.

As coal supplies above ground dwindled, the Government yesterday prepared another cut in its use by railroads.

The Office of Defense Transportation announced an order to cut freight movement, hauled by coal-burning locomotives, by 25 per cent. It will go into effect unless the mines reopen next week. The ODT has already cut passenger traffic on coal-burning railroads by 25 per cent.

Ultraviolet Light May Be Weapon Against Cancer

Richmond, Va., March 23 (AP).—The probability that ultraviolet light may prove a valuable weapon in the fight against organic cancer was seen today in experiments conducted at the Medical College of Virginia.

Dr. Frank L. Apperly, professor of pathology at MCV, said the experiments suggest that "something in sunlight exposure, probably ultraviolet light, but not Vitamin D, has an anticancerous influence."

"It also suggests that we have here a weapon against cancer which might bear further investigation," he told a symposium on malignant growths held at the college today.

Apperly suggested that patients who undergo operations for visceral cancer be urged to live a more out-of-doors life or to undergo a moderate course of sunlamp treatment for several years.

Most Maryland Cities, Counties Vote 'Fast' Time

Most of Maryland will go on daylight saving time this summer.

Howard County yesterday joined the list of cities and counties which already have approved "fast time," when the county commissioners agreed unanimously to change over April 25. So far only two counties—Queen Anne and Garrett—have definitely indicated they will remain on the present time schedule through the summer.

Commissioners in Cambridge and St. Marys counties are scheduled to vote on the proposal within the next three weeks, while Montgomery, Prince Georges and Charles counties are expected to follow the District of Columbia's lead. A bill giving the District Commissioners authority to order the time change will be debated in the Senate next week.

Frederick, Frederick County, Cumberland, Hagerstown, Washington County and Salisbury already have voted to go on daylight time.

Cumberland Plant Schedules Layoff

Cumberland, Md., March 23 (AP). The Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. plant here, which has been operating on a four-day week for sometime will cut employment 90 per cent next week, company officials said today.

Between 1600 and 1700 persons will be furloughed for the week. Present plans call for resumption of a four-day week starting April 4.

It was announced earlier 345 Baltimore & Ohio Railroad bolt and forge shop employes will be furloughed at the end of the week because of the coal strike. In addition 200 B. & O. men have been furloughed at Keyser, W. Va.

lines at noon yesterday at the request of Boland.

Strike leaders termed the settlement "a smashing victory" and called a "victory meeting" for later in the night in Shiloh Baptist Church, 1500 9th st. nw. They pointed out that they had won a 6½-cent hourly raise and other benefits, with a provision for discussion of a new agreement for 1949.

COL. BOLAND Administrator

JOHNSTONE
Arbitrator

GSI, on the other hand, saw victory for itself in the fact that it had not negotiated with Local 471 directly, and is not bound to do so under the settlement. The strike was precipitated by GSI's refusal to bargain because union officers had not sworn they were not Communists.

The local eventually complied with this demand, but the parent union, United Public Workers of America, never did. Non-Communist affidavits are required of union officers by the Taft-Hartley Act if a union is to be eligible for National Labor Relations Board services.

Boland, a Government attorney since 1934, helped to settle numerous labor disputes during the war as a lieutenant colonel and chief of the labor disputes section of the Army Service Forces.

Johnstone, in Government 15 years, has been FWA general counsel since 1935. He recently explored for Fleming the feasibility of terminating GSI's contract with the Government as a means of settling the strike.

Fleming obtained agreement on the settlement formula, along lines recommended early this month by George E. Strong, whom Fleming had appointed conciliator. Strong's proposal was turned down by GSI. Fleming entered the dispute on White House orders to settle it.

Attorney Asks Judge Election In Anne Arundel

Annapolis, Md., March 23 (AP).—Noah A. Hillman, Anne Arundel County attorney, today asked the County Court to order an election this year for a Fifth Judical Circuit judge.

Hillman contended the State constitution gives only a year's grace to judges appointed to succeed elected jurists, and the privilege does not extend to subsequent appointees. He challenged an opinion from Attorney General Hall Hammond that the election is unnecessary.

Hillman asked the election to fill the post now held by Judge Marvin I. Anderson, appointed by Governor Lane to succeed Judge William J. McWilliams, who resigned March 1. McWilliams previously had been appointed to succeed the late Judge Ridgeley P. Melvin.

A Republican, Hillman designated himself as a candidate for the judgeship if the election is ordered.

Budget Hearing Set For Caroline April 5

Fredericksburg, Va., March 23 (Spl.)—Final public hearing on the Caroline County budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will be held by the board of supervisors at Bowling Green April 5. Proposed expenditures for the year total $102,206.

The supervisors have authorized the school board to apply for a loan of $110,000 from the State literary fund for the construction of new buildings at Union and C. T. Smith schools.

Md. 'Friends of the Land' Hear Talks on Conservation

Baltimore, March 23 (AP).—Maryland's "Friends of the Land" held their first conference today and heard Novelist Louis Bromfield tell how he can make more money off an acre planted to grass than an acre of corn.

The national society has been active for several years. It is pledged to the conservation of "soil, rain, and man" and Bromfield is one of its leading spokesmen.

Some 500 persons attended the conference. Speakers included Governor Lane; Dr. T. B. Symons of the College of Agriculture and its farm extension service, and Alfred H. Williams of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia.

Dr. Symons reported that more than 5000 Maryland farmers now are participating in the soil conservation service program.

Bromfield explained he could make money off of grassland because grass has an immense capacity for putting organic matter in the soil.

When he does need some of his land for wheat or corn or some other open crop, it produces much more. He told of one field on his Ohio farm which formerly produced two or three bushels of wheat an acre. Now it averages 52. The national average is 22.

Bromfield pointed out that losses in Maryland's oyster and seafood industry are directly attributable to poor conservative practices.

"A great number of your oyster beds and spawning grounds are being smothered out by mud," he said. "This mud caused by siltation from farms in Maryland and adjoining States.

"If the whole of Maryland were under grass farming, siltation in Chesapeake Bay would be zero.

"If we are going to raise tobacco and the other open cultivated crops—which probably fits into the agricultural scheme here—they should be raised on the contour, with strips of grass or close-growing crops in between."

After years as a newspaperman and novelist, Bromfield bought a rundown 500-acre farm in Ohio. It is now a prosperous 11,000-acre layout. He is vice president of "Friends of the Land."

Assessments Protested in Prince Georges

Rent increases for Kaywood Gardens and Prospect Gardens in nearby Prince Georges County, Md., were promised yesterday if Prince Georges County Commissioners uphold new tax assessments on the property proposed by County Assessor Louis W. Kutsch.

A. S. Kay, owner of the two developments, and T. Howard Duckett, his attorney appeared before the commissioners yesterday to protest an additional assessment of $235,000 for Kaywood Gardens.

Duckett said the increases would mean an additional $8000 in taxes at the present rate, and the owner "probably" will seek rent increases if his taxes are raised.

Duckett said the same applied to Prospect Gardens, upped from $342,700 to $374,888. The commissioners took the matter under advisement.

The commissioners constituted Carol Highlands as special improvement District No. 36. Permit to establish a trailer camp on Piscataway rd., 3 miles south of Clinton, asked by Mrs. Leota G. Sanders, was refused. The commissioners received a budget for the county welfare board from Mrs. Dorothy Ogburn, executive director.

Psychiatrist Clears Veteran On Theft Charge

Baltimore, March 23 (AP).—A 32-year-old Pacific war veteran was cleared in Baltimore court today of stealing a radio, because a psychiatrist convinced the court he actually thought he was fighting Japs at the time of the theft.

Wilbur Shattuck was absolved after Dr. Jacob Conn, court psychiatrist, told Judge Joseph Sherbow the veteran had been suffering delusions since his discharge from the Army, and believed he was loading ammunition when he backed a truck up to his employer's shop and took the radio. The psychiatrist said he was convinced of this by Shattuck's reactions when hypnotized and under the influence of truth serum.

Dr. Conn, who began giving Shattuck hypnosis treatments after he first appeared in court last December, told Judge Sherbow today the veteran was "completely cured" of his delusions and "is now able to accept the realities of his life situation." A verdict in the theft case had been withheld, pending completion of the psychiatric treatment.

Bland Submits Fee

Richmond, Va., March 23 (AP).—Representative S. Otis Bland of the First Virginia Congressional District submitted his $250 qualification fee today to the State Treasurer's office. He was the first to declare for renomination in the August 3 primary and pay the fee.

10 Indicted in Hagerstown White Slavery Case

Baltimore, March 23 (AP).—A Federal grand jury indicted seven men and three women today on charges of violating an anti-white slavery statute by transporting girls from four States to Hagerstown, Md., for immoral purposes.

The defendants were accused of "transporting or causing to be transported" women from Lynchburg, Va.; Harrisburg, Pa., and Muncie, Ind.

They were arrested by FBI agents last December in a four-State roundup.

The accused hail either from Hagerstown, Lynchburg, Harrisburg or Muncie.

While in most instances the victims—who were not named as defendants—went "willingly," Assistant U. S. Attorney James S. Morrow said the term "white slavery" was a precise description in several instances.

Girls who made between $250 and $300 a week at "that house on Bethel Street" or similar establishments didn't receive a cent, Morrow said. Their "fees" were handed to the men who brought them. The girls themselves often "were kept in rags," Morrow declared.

Those named included:

Lena Michelott, alias Boots Cross, 26; Helen Lee Rollison (also known as Jackie McCoy), 28; Milton W. Stoneberger, 28.

Also Charles Junior Hudson, 23; Stephen Carl Hudson, 20; Paul Grant, 37; James Kovaco, 35; Glenn Johnson, 28; his brother, Aaron V. Johnson and Margaret Esther (also known as Connie).

Courthouse Bill Advanced By House Unit

The House Public Works Committee yesterday unanimously approved a bill to authorize construction of an $18,665,000 Federal courthouse here.

Representative George A. Dondero (R., Mich.), committee chairman, announced that he will seek special attention by the Rules Committee in order to obtain speedy floor action on what has been described as an "emergency" measure.

The committee struck out of the proposed legislation an escalator clause which would authorize a greater expenditure than $18,665,000, if building costs go up.

Commissioners for Limit

The escalator clause was suggested by Harry G. Hunter, assistant commissioner of public buildings, but District Commissioners Guy Mason and Gordon R. Young both urged a specific limit to construction expenditures.

Under terms of the bill, the District government will pay half the project costs, reimbursing the Federal Government over a 25-year period. The value of the District-owned site, about $2,400,000, will be credited against its share.

The local bench and bar have been long campaigning for a new building to house the District Court and United States Court of Appeals, both suffering from severely cramped quarters.

Laws Praised for Efforts

Members of the Public Works Committee paid tribute yesterday to Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws for his vigor and earnestness in pushing the courthouse campaign. The judge jumped to his feet time and again with the answers to questions popped up by committee members.

Lone voice of opposition to the bill was raised by Alfred D. Calvert, president of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association. He said that his group felt the construction was unwise in this period of inflation and that the money could be better applied to hiring more policemen and prevetning crime.

Sen. Johnson to Speak

Senator Edwin Johnson (D., Col.) will address the Wheel of Progress next Monday at 8 p. m. in the Fourth Presbyterian Church, 13th and Fairmont sts. nw., on "The Atom Bomb and Military Training."

"HIGH WATER MARK"—A woman trailer-dweller, unperturbed by flood waters from the Charles River, hangs out her wash in a camp near Boston. The small trailer community was inundated and some settlers were forced to flee the swollen river

Chicago, March 23 (AP).—Clearing skies and a forecast of warm sunshine tomorrow offered some relief today to flood-weary communities in the East and Midwest.

Light rains tonight were forecast for some sections of Pennsylvania but the Weather Bureau said the rainfall would be insufficient to aggravate the flood situation there.

Quincy, Ill., center of the Midwest flood area, had a negligible amount of precipitation today and the danger of a major flood along the Mississippi appeared to have passed.

Clear weather was forecast for Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Michigan and Ohio. Floods continued to plague scattered communities in those States.

In the East, Pennsylvania residents along the Susquehanna and Delaware Rivers were hardest hit as the streams overflowed their banks.

Some communities along the Susquehanna and Chenango Rivers in south central New York also were under water.

Land-Saving Effort to Lump 5 Years in 1 Day

South Hill, Va, March 23 (AP). Five years of normal farm effort will be lumped into a single day in a conservation demonstration on a southside Virginia farm tomorrow.

Weather permitting, a force of several hundred volunteer workers will set out to transform 105 acres of poor farmland into a model tract with contour-plowed fields, a food fishpond and a landscaped plot about the modest farm home.

The project will be carried out on the farm of F. A. Poythress, jr., World War II veteran, and his mother, Mrs. Annie M. Poythress, about 10 miles southeast of here.

2 Md. Republicans File for Congress

Annapolis, Md., March 23 (AP).—Two more Republicans became candidates for Maryland congressional seats today.

Representative Edward T. Miller, one of the State's two Republicans in the House, filed for reelection from the First District on the Eastern Shore.

C. Maurice Weidemeyer, Anne Arundel County lawyer, stepped into the Fifth District GOP primary contest. He opposes Edwin A. Glenn of Suitland for the nomination.

Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer, a Democrat, now occupies the seat for the Fifth District, which embraces the five southern Maryland counties, Howard County and 37 precincts in south Baltimore.

Heads Fire Auxiliary

Herndon, Va., March 23 (Spl.). Mrs. J. Bryant Smith has been elected president of the newly formed auxiliary to the Chantilly Volunteer Fire Department. Other officers are Mrs. Claude Grosclose, first vice president; Mrs. Graham James, second vice president; Mrs. H. F. Byantine, secretary, and Miss Bina Ruth Hutchinson, treasurer.

Va. Crop Acreage To Be 4% Greater

Richmond, Va., March 23 (AP).—Acreage to be planted this year to principal crops will be about 4 per cent greater than last year, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said today.

The service based its estimate on a survey of planting intentions as of March 1. Most of the planned increase will be in corn, oats and hay, the survey showed.

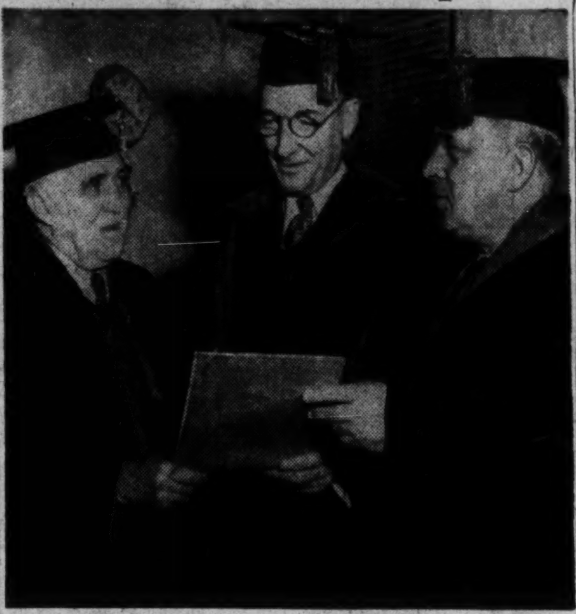
GWU Takes Formal Possession Of 5-Million-Dollar Hospital



The Washington Post

CEREMONY—Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming (left) officially turns George Washington University's new hospital over to Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn (center), medical director, and Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of the university

George Washington University's new five million dollar hospital, off Washington Circle at 23d st. nw., was officially turned over yesterday to university administration by the Federal Works Agency.

The hospital will begin to receive patients as soon as "asceptically available," probably within the next few days, officials said.

Ceremonies marking the presentation at 4 p. m. in the lobby of the new structure were highlighted by awards of two honorary degrees.

Recipients were Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator, as doctor of civil law, and Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, medical director of the hospital, Doctor of Science.

Gen. Fleming turned over a blue-backed legal document to Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, George Washington University president. The papers were the completed contract for the building of the 405-bed hospital under Federal grant of the Lanham Act for war-built hospitals.

Dr. Marvin said in his acceptance talk that the hospital building will be the main unit of "what shall ultimately be a center for medical service." On land now occupied by St. Ann's Orphanage, the university expects to erect "a great specialized research and treatment unit." he stated.

Also planned, Dr. Marvin said, is a parking ramp to accommodate 500 to 600 cars, and a large office building across 23d st. from the new hospital for use of physicians and surgeons. The university already has acquired the Everglades apartment hotel 2223 H st. nw., to house nurses and other hospital staff members.

Dr. Marvin emphasized that the new hospital would be "a teaching hospital," with outpatient department and clinic of service "to many people in this community." Much of the hospital services, he said, "we dedicate not only to the indigent, but also to those in the moderate salary groups who need such service."

Dr. Marvin announced that the university was dedicating beds of honor to the late Gen. Edwin M. Watson, assistant to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and to the mother of the late Baird Snyder, deputy administrator of FWA.

Several hundred guests attended the ceremonies. Afterward, doors were thrown open to invited alumni, faculty members and building equipment fund contributors to inspect the structure.

Survivors Crawl Miles to Get Aid To Crash Victims

Woodland, Wash., March 23 (AP). The half-frozen pilot and a crewman of a C-47 transport plane that crashed in a storm three days ago walked and crawled nearly three miles today and found help for at least two men alive in the wreckage.

Maj. John Harding, 27, of Fairfield, Calif., and Pfc. John Belmonte, Boston, Mass., staggered into the telephone exchange here after a journey through the snow from the wreckage, approximately 14 miles away.

They said three men died in the crash Sunday afternoon, but two others of the eight aboard definitely were alive and possibly a third.

Lewis Refuses

John L. Lewis' calculated slight to the Government and the coal operators in sending a group of powerless underlings to the conference called by Federal Mediation Chief Cyrus Ching will not enhance the miners' position in the eyes of the public. Indeed, this is another case in which Lewis' penchant for nose-thumbing at authority actually damages his cause. Any sympathy with the miners' demands for an adequate pension system and any feeling that the coal operators may have been unduly recalcitrant are more than alienated by Lewis' seemingly perpetual desire to ape the imperial czar in the background.

It was to be expected that Lewis would reject Mr. Ching's proposal that the miners go back to work pending the report of a fact-finding board on the miners' differences with the operators. Indeed, it begins to look as if Lewis does not want a settlement under terms of the present contract. For if actuarial estimates may be accepted as accurate, Lewis knows that his insistence on a $100 a month miners' pension and coverage of noncontract employes is impossible from the current welfare fund. However adamant the operators may have been—and they have not been noted for their farsightedness—Lewis by his own actions has done precious little to soften their stubbornness. As a matter of fact, Lewis' interruption of the present contract and his stand-pat refusal to talk over terms may well harden opposition on the part of the operators to granting the miners a better deal.

Unfortunately, Mr. Lewis is not acting in a vacuum. Coal is the lifeblood of our industrial economy, and too many times that economy has been brought perilously close to a standstill by Lewisian intransigence. Mr. Lewis has had his chance to cooperate and has chosen not to cooperate. This left the Administration no recourse but to apply the national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, which the President now has done in establishing a three-man board of inquiry. If the board confirms the facts in their present light, then, irrespective of political considerations, the Administration should press for a Federal injunction.

Strength For Peace

The terrible paradox of our times is that the great desire for peace in the hearts of the people may frustrate the kind of decisive action that holds the best chance for preserving that peace. This is particularly the case with respect to the restoration of selective service. For instance, there is the statement of the National Council Against Conscription signed by four prominent educators and clergymen. With what undoubtedly are the best of motives, these gentlemen proclaim that if the draft were reenacted, "our own people as well as the rest of the world would believe it is an indication that America intends to go to war."

The draft, on the contrary, is intended to discourage the aggressor in the only language he knows. In all likelihood the last two world wars could have been avoided if similar action had been taken on the very heels of the first aggression. Militarist Japan could have been stopped by an ultimatum about Manchuria. Fascist Italy could have been brought to her senses when she threatened Ethiopia. Nazism would never have become a menace if the first challenge—in the Rhineland—had been met. If recent history teaches anything, it is that aggression must not be allowed to grow. Aggression is nourished only by aggression, and atrophies when it is checked. Clearly much has been done to arrest Soviet expansionism. If it had not been for Mr. Byrnes' diplomacy over Iran, doubtless the Russian legions would now be in the Indian Ocean. And the Mediterranean has so far been saved by application to Greece and Turkey of the Truman Doctrine. What the President is now proposing is the same kind of medicine to encourage western Europe to resist Soviet encroachment.

But the draft is only a part of what is necessary. The prerequisite for a sound security program is a joint plan and delineation of function between the land, sea and air forces—something on which the Joint Chiefs of Staff are reported finally to have agreed. Nor will restoration of selective service mitigate the need for an expansion of air power or for universal military training to provide a trained reserve. The trouble with these measures is that both will require several years to implement, and what is needed now is immediate action. What a two-year draft will do is provide a armed forces up to their statutory strength—or, indeed, to a higher strength that may be necessary—and enable the services to do away with the costly short-term enlistments to which they have been driven in an effort to attract volunteers. Bluntly, what we need now is not more talk, but more divisions—and the sooner we have them the more effective they will be in preventing the war we fear.

Marginal Sea

From a foreign point of view there must be a good deal of humor in the contradiction presented by a Congress which seems to be deeply perturbed over American access to the oil of the Middle East at the very moment when it is preparing to give away rich petroleum resources lying directly off America's own shores. On the same day that the President of the United States addressed Congress in an extraordinary plea to bolster the country's military strength, a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee voted 2 to 1 to relinquish to the State of California the dominion over the marginal sea which the Supreme Court but recently declared to be vested in the Federal Government.

This Federal dominion is a matter of vast importance to the people of the United States. Secretary of the Interior Krug estimated not long ago that there lies beneath the waters of the marginal sea as much as 100 billion barrels of oil—nearly five times as much as all the proved resources of the country. This reservoir of oil—an indispensable element of national security—ought to be exploited for the benefit of all the people and conserved prudently for their common defense. Given over entirely to the control of the coastal States, this resource will be exploited wholly in the interest of private gain with no thought for conservation. It would be hard to imagine a more profligate policy in a time of national peril.

The men who sit in the Congress of the United States are something more than ambassadors of the sovereign States for which they speak. They are legislators for the Nation—trustees of the national interest. They are dealing in the matter of the marginal sea with a national heritage, with a vast estate to which the Supreme Court has said that all Americans—not only those who reside in California or Texas—are the legitimate heirs. The members of the Congress will be recreant to their trust if they permit that estate to be dissipated for the benefit of special interests, if they fail to guard the common interest of the Nation as a whole.

Over The Hills

Mr. George Washington Hill, second of that name, has resigned from the American Tobacco Co. as its vice president in charge of advertising. This, it appears, is Mr. Hill's way of disavowing responsibility for the fact that only 102 billion Lucky Strike cigarettes were produced last year, as compared with 103 billion in the year preceding. In consequence of this decline, Lucky Strike now leads its nearest competitor in the cigarette counters of the Nation by only a billion and a half. In other words, the Camels are coming, but Mr. Hill for one is not disposed to shout hurrah. Mr. Hill, indeed, attributes this lamentable state of affairs to interference with his advertising policies by the higher executives of the company. He says:

> My operations have been hampered by executive decisions with which I am in fundamental disagreement, and in the making of which I have had a progressively diminishing voice or influence. I am of the opinion that the principles and procedures so long established in the company, and essential to effective advertising, have been departed from, and that the company's advertising results have suffered in consequence. The situation of having responsibility without authority is untenable, and that is the situation in which I find myself.

The "principles and procedures" to which Mr. Hill referred were to take some short and cryptic phrase and to bludgeon it into the public consciousness by incessant repetition over millions of radios and from thousands of billboards and hundreds of magazine covers. The most famous of these phrases was the invention of Mr. Hill's father: "It's toasted!" Nobody knew what it meant, as far as we know, and the American Tobacco Co. never bothered to explain. But the only Americans who escaped being reminded at every hour of their lives of the toasted tobacco used in the manufacture of Lucky Strikes were those born deaf, mute and blind, although we should not be surprised to hear that the elder Mr. Hill had it inscribed in Braille for their benefit. Another masterpiece of Mr. Hill, major, was the apothegm that "Nature in the raw is seldom mild." The point was brought home pictorially by reference to the amorous techniques of prepaleolithic man. Less ambiguous in character was the solemn announcement that "An ancient prejudice has been removed," with the implicit suggestion that women who continued to have inhibitions about smoking Lucky Strikes in public places belonged in the same reactionary category as those who in the early nineteenth century had considered travel by railway somehow sinful and those who in the sixteenth century considered it shocking and decadent to use forks instead of fingers. For women who remained impervious to this appeal to their better and more progressive natures, Mr. Hill had another bait. He exhorted them to, "Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet!" insinuating that it was an infallible way of stifling a bodily craving deleterious to the bodily form.

In the opinion of many, Mr. Hill, jr., who became advertising manager of the company in 1936, equaled, if he did not surpass, the genius of his father. Where the father had been at most ambiguous, the son man-he, for example, who invested the chant

> E-e-e-e yulla, wulla, bulla, blub, blue, ble, yumma wow, wee, yip yi, bulla, blab yow! Sol' American!

which served the company as a kind of audible trade mark. He was also the author of one of the more stirring battle cries of the recent struggle for freedom and human rights; viz, "Lucky Strike green has gone to war!" But evidently the young Mr. Hill was less successful than his father in dealing with the reactionaries and men of limited vision within his own organization. Or it may have been that his methods were too subtle to be appreciated and understood. It is even possible that he overestimated the intelligence of his fellow citizens. Anyway, he never attained his father's celebrity. He has never been made the hero of a best-selling novel and has never been impersonated in the movies by Mr. Sidney Greenstreet.

Boost For The CAB

The most important requirement in a chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board is that he be a reasonable man, unyielding on basic principle but at the same time open to persuasion on details. Strong leadership is also a desirable attribute, although an effective CAB must be a team rather than a one-man operation. Joseph J. O'Connell, jr., who was nominated by President Truman for the CAB chairmanship last week, is reputed to have these qualities in good measure. Whatever he lacks in utility regulation experience is compensated at least in part by the reputation for a well-balanced approach to problems which he acquired as general counsel for the Treasury Department. With the nomination of Harold A. Jones, a Los Angeles attorney, for the second CAB vacancy, only one post remains to be filled.

We think now would be a good time for the President and Congress to press seriously for some of the reforms in governmental aviation organization called for by the presidential and congressional aviation policy reports.

One point on which the two reports agree is the necessity for increasing salaries of CAB members to their statutory level of $12,000. There is no doubt about the need. We also favor the proposal of the congressional board that the functions of the present Civil Aeronautics Administration be divided between the Civil Aeronautics Board and a new Office of Civil Aviation in the Department of Commerce. Under this proposal the CAA's rule-making and enforcement functions would go to the independent Civil Aeronautics Board, while the operational activities such as the control of the Federal airways system would be taken over by Commerce. This seems to us a sensible way of disposing of what at best has been an anomalous agency, however earnestly it has been administered. The surgery should be relatively easier now before a new CAA chieftain is appointed.

Further, we applaud the congressional board's recommendations that there be an independent director of air safety and an executive director of the Civil Aeronautics Board to relieve board members of enforcement details and leave them free to concentrate on regulation and quasijudicial duties. Finally, we believe it within the realm of good sense to strengthen by law the position of the Air Coordinating Committee as the integrator of Government policy in keeping the necessary balance between the two closely related branches of civil and military aviation.

Tourists In Italy

Representatives of the Italian tourist industry estimate that at least 70,000 Americans have postponed visits to Italy because of the critical political situation. Giuseppe Mariotti, press agent for the Italian Tourist Co., hopes to persuade timorous Americans to come to Italy, even if the Communists make substantial gains. Shaky governments, he says, need not cause much trouble to travelers. And he cites France as an example. That may be true so long as governmental shifts entail no revolutionary changes in the social and political order but merely reflect shifting political allegiances within the framework of the established order. But few Americans would put their trust in promises of safe and comfortable travel in Italy in the event of a Communist victory in the April elections. Ordinary prudence would suggest that they give the country a wide berth.

Since we have officially warned Italy that ERP aid will not be forthcoming if communism triumphs at the polls, an unofficial warning that American tourists' dollars will be extremely scarce also appears to be timely. For Italy has been counting heavily on the revival of the tourist trade to augment her scanty dollar supplies. An American tourist boycott would be extremely costly to her, retarding general economic recovery in addition to dealing a severe blow to hotels and industries serving the tourist trade.

THE HOUR

Come with me to the final hill, the woods are gray, the sky is chill, even the little beasts are still.

And night will take us while we stare, watching the dusk leave layer on layer of deeper garments in the air.

World-losers we, not holding fast one hour possessed, ere it is cast into our alien grave, the past, offering ourselves unto the night like leaves in the last loveliest light gloried and known, and then to blight—

there each in each a prayer shall bark to store this hour with stars for mark against the sky, the widening dark.

Palestine Decision

I am indeed sorry for Harry S. Truman. In one day he killed the partition plan for Palestine, he turned the U. N. into a social club, he gave notice to the Scandinavian countries and other small countries that they may be sacrificed to expediency, he threw away millions of his party votes to Wallace, he made a mockery of the sacrifices of so many Americans who fought Hitler only to find Hitler's friend, the Grand Mufti, successful.

BORIS J. FRIEDKISS.

Through this single act, the United States has removed all possibility of achieving the world peace of which Mr. Truman spoke so eloquently last Wednesday. This action, a complete reversal of policy, has made the United Nations a hollow mockery. This action has shown that the United States' foreign policy is one of hypocrisy and opportunism.

Perhaps it is the old question of oil; in the event of war with Russia we will most certainly need oil. And one of our largest supplies of oil being in the Arab countries, we must appease them, regardless of cost. Is it intelligent to depend on a source which is practically on the Russian border, and in an area in which we have no military bases?

DISGUSTED VETERAN.

I should like to know whether the President believes civil rights are a special privilege to be reserved for Americans while the first and foremost civil right—liberty—is not allowable to the Jews of Palestine.

It is such twisted politics and distorted logic that force people to vote, not for someone but against someone else come election time.

Diplomacy Vs. Armaments

George Washington's advice to prepare for war in times of peace has never proven true. In modern times, which are not times of peace, it leads only to an extravagant armament race.

One nation after another has joined the Soviet system, not through armed aggression but through fifth column activity. In every country there were native Communists ready and willing to act on Russia's orders. What could American military might have done? Start a civil war with Russia on one side and ourselves on the other? Is that what we will do if Italy or France are prey to similar Communist tactics? We lost in the Balkans, not because we are militarily weak—what nonsense—but because in the years since the war trained disciplined Communists were working according to a plan, offering solutions while we sent gift packages, relied on UNRRA and offered pious hopes.

Two and a half years after the war we are still debating the recovery program for Europe that should have been launched right after the war. It is too little and too late, but still it is the only way to turn the tide. A quick passage of ERP will do more to bolster France and Italy than setting up UMT and other threatening measures.

Since the First World War and probably since the American Revolution our military leaders have wrung their hands over our desperate defenselessness. But for a peace-loving people the first line of defense is the State Department. It is through that branch of service that our only hope lies of overcoming our enemies by making them our friends. How foolish to cut appropriations for the State Department and consider handing out two billions a year for the doubtful effect of UMT.

How much more constructive, how heartening, but convincing to a sad war-weary world if we would put that two billions a year into our peacetime diplomacy and European recovery.

Streptomycin Prices

I hope that you will take up the cudgel against the enormous prices for streptomycin charged in this area by many, though not all, druggists.

I have been informed by several medical men of high repute in the District of Columbia that there is no brand of this vital drug which a druggist cannot sell at $2.77 and make a proper profit. Yet, to my knowledge, there are drug stores and dispensaries which sell four brands of streptomycin, all of which are of equal potency, at prices ranging from $8 to $2.52 per gram.

Tuberculosis is no respecter of persons and streptomycin has proven effective in the treatmen of a good percentage of patients. The everyday worker cannot pay from $3 to $8 per gram for this medicine every day for from three to five months.

"Flight Training"

I wish to compliment The Washington Post for its wholesome demonstration of objective fairness in reversing its editorial position on the merits of GI Flight Training as exemplified in its editorial of March 17.

This, it seems to me, is an example of a type of editorial courage all too rare in the American press today when too many newspapers, having once taken a position, will not be swayed from it come hell, high water or logic. In this case, The Washington Post has simply reaffirmed my belief in the integrity of its editorial page and the intrinsic fairness and honesty of its interpretations.

Northern Poll Taxes

I read with interest Henry Lesesne's story of March 17 regarding differences in poll tax requirements in seven States.

Whenever I read a discussion of poll taxes, I wonder why there is seldom, if ever, any reference to the poll taxes which exist in the New England States. Unless there has been repeal, of which I am entirely unaware, the State of Maine has a poll tax, and it would seem to me that its effects, except for possibilities of racial discrimination, would be the same as in Southern States.

"Oil Policy"

In your March 17 editorial, "Oil Policy," you have indicated an approach to the oil situation that occurs to those of us who have been associated with it for a number of years, as being sound. It is perfectly all right for our nationals to develop oil in whatever countries they can find it and use it so far as is possible to supplement our own supplies. The danger lies in becoming dependent upon these uncertain foreign sources of oil.

RUSSELL B. BROWN,
General Counsel, Independent Petroleum Association of America.
Washington.

I would like to commend the general tenor of your editorial, "Oil Policy," on March 17, calling for a rational strategical domestic and foreign oil policy.

There is hope in the present consideration of the problem by the Short Subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee and the recent statement of Secretary Forrestal that the armed forces are reexamining their position as to the Arabian oil lines that a rational policy will be forthcoming shortly.

The 14-year estimate of proved reserves in the country does not mean that we can extract such oil in 14 years by vigorously pumping it for that period. The efficient extraction of this 14-year supply will require 50 or more years on a diminishing exponential curve of production. The rising consumption curve has already passed the decreasing oil extraction curve and we are net oil importing country. Unless large new deposits are found this net will grow larger very rapidly.

In my opinion the dangers lie not in "alarmists" who would insure a sound supply of strategical oil by vigorous action now, but in those optimists who seem to rely on and gain comfort from potentialities of the future rather than the dynamics of the present. I suggest:

1. A vigorous program of gas pipe-line construction to replace oil where now used for domestic and industrial purposes. These lines, gridironing the country, would be of a type readily convertible to oil or to tap coal gasification plants located in mining areas which would be brought into production upon "exhaustion of our natural gas.

2. Negotiate with the Mexican government to furnish equipage and technical assistance for development of her immense reserves in return for a guaranteed percentage of her production to be delivered through a pipe line connecting with the United States pipe-line grid.

3. Proving of potential oil-bearing areas in the public domain such as the tidelands, by drilling exploratory wells, sufficient production wells being drilled in proved areas and capped or kept under very limited production as a reserve for national emergencies.

4. The rapidly ascending petroleum-use curve should be flattened or depressed by the use of the taxing powers such as a heavy Federal tax on gasoline, automobile horsepower rating or on the weight of the automobile, thereby causing the American consumer to demand more efficient, lighter weight, lower horsepower automobiles.

5. Removal of import taxes on foreign crudes to encourage use of them instead of domestic production in times of peace. Countries receiving loans from the United States and having excess oil capacity should be encouraged to repay in oil.

6. While the above priority should meet present emergencies and delay for quite some time the dependency of the United States on synthetic processes for strategical security, the time is not distant when synthetic processes utilizing shale oil, coal or industrial alcohol will be required to replace petroleum products. Plans for these processes will require a very large amount of the national effort, money, steel, etc., and capacity to become obsolete in a short time due to improved processes.

Hence in the present emergency our synthetic efforts should be confined to a vigorous research and pilot plant development work to determine the relative efficiency and potentialities of the various methods. Production-plant development should be confined to a rate sufficient to maintain a comfortable national security margin over estimated wartime demand.

Realistic Defense

AS SOON as the Marshall Plan debate ends, there is a chance that in a congressional hearing visitors will be astounded to hear talk of peace—not war—going on. Backers in the House of Representatives of resolutions to strengthen the United Nations to enact and enforce world law to maintain peace will try to get hearings started next month. Many requests from citizens—especially the younger ones—for such hearings are being received.

Although authorities on defense, such as the President's Air Policy Commission, have repeatedly stressed that the only adequate defense and security for this country lie in preventing war, yet this advice has been pigeonholed and forgotten as cries are raised. Yet even so much as a legislative hearing on what could be done about waging peace would be a constructive gesture before a jittery world. It might also set people to talking about peace for a change.

Public attitude is believed ripe for such discussion. The alliance now getting underway among western European nations, the growing talk of strengthening the United Nations, and the recent efforts of Senate revisionists to tack pledges of military aid on to the Marshall Plan are jolting many citizens into a realization that the western democracies, including the United States, may soon be confronted with a "hang together or hang separately" choice.

SPONSORS of Federal Union, which advocates a trans-Atlantic federation of western democratic nations, believe events are pushing this country into more than a military alliance with kindred governments. It proposes what it calls the Hamilton plan, based on the program Alexander Hamilton devised to save the bankrupt States of this Nation. It would have a Trans-Atlantic Union straighten out the financial affairs of member democracies in the same way the American Federal Government helped out its States.

Federal Unionists insist such a federation would not divide a world already divided, but would be the first logical and practical step toward a limited world government—in which, for instance, the inclusion of Russia, would be welcomed.

The Kremlin now sneers at world government calling it a scheme of "capitalist-imperialists." It would no doubt also oppose any strengthening of the United Nations that would limit its veto power. But as both Federal Unionists and those who would strengthen the United Nations point out, that should not deter this country from taking whatever steps it can toward a world run by law.

ANOTHER MOVE of some kind among nations toward collective security and peace seems to be historically imminent. Dr. Gordon Allport of the Department of Social Relations at Harvard University points out in a widely discussed article, "Guide Lines for Research in International Relations," in the Journal of Social Studies, that "from the cave man to the twentieth century human beings have formed larger and larger living and working groups." The United Nations, he says, "is the latest and best example that man has devised, though it is not necessarily the final effort. Even now it is unclear whether one world is the next step in the series, or whether mankind is doomed first to live through a divided period in a pro and anti-Communist world."

Studies of past efforts of groups to unite show that the only type of union that has ever endured has been the federation. Those advocating federal union of the democracies is the only present step possible believe it would put enough power into the hands of peaceful nations to give time in which further steps toward world government could be taken.

Those wanting direct action toward limited world government—open to all nations—insist theirs is the better way of waging peace. Events are [illegible] unified action to prevent war may be born of necessity. Getting the subject discussed by Congress—and hence by the people—is the logical follow-up on the Marshall Plan.

Thirteenth Amendment

When controversial questions agitate the public mind, it is only fair that all sides should be considered. The following quotations showing decisions of the Supreme Court are submitted without comment.

Among acts of Congress declared unconstitutional by that court was that of March 1, 1875, which "statute declared all persons entitled to equal enjoyment of facilities of inns, public conveyances, etc., and stated a penalty for persons violating this provision. Held, that fourteenth amendment applied only to State action, and thirteenth amendment related only to slavery and involuntary servitude: hence no constitutional basis for the act."

"The denial of any person of admission to the accommodations and privileges of an inn, a public conveyance, or a theater does not subject that person to any form of servitude, or tend to fasten upon him any badge of slavery within the meaning of this provision, and the act of Congress declaring that in the enjoyment of such accommodations and privileges no distinction shall be made between race and color, or between those who have not been slaves finds no sanction in this amendment (thirteenth)." Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

The Wallace Pattern: II

THE PATTERN holds, whether for a Nenni or a Fierlinger or a Wallace. Always an alliance between a non-Communist liberal and the Communists leads to the same ends. First the liberal finds himself so captured, so bound and gagged, that there is no escape short of political suicide. Then he must turn and destroy his old associates on the non-Communist left. Then the curious process of fatty degeneration of the accepted standards of political honesty and personal sincerity, which an alliance with the Communists must in the end always force upon a liberal, sets in.

The first part of the pattern has already been described in this space. But Mr. C. B. Baldwin, chief Wallace manager, has just obligingly supplied further evidence. Few of the perfectly honest people who perfectly honestly believe that Henry Wallace points the way to peace would grasp the significance of a little-noted announcement by Mr. Baldwin this week. Mr. Baldwin has announced with some pride that Mr. Seymour Linfield has been appointed to "direct veterans' and youth work" for Wallace, in response to a "grass roots" demand.

Mr. Baldwin points out that Mr. Linfield is a combat veteran and an associate general counsel of the United Electrical Workers, which happens to be run by the Communists. What Mr. Baldwin fails to point out is that Mr. Linfield was one of the most active members of the Young Communist League, and that there is no reason to believe that he has changed either his political opinions or his political affiliations. Thus the tight grip of the Communist machine on the Wallace movement is further tightened.

THE SECOND part of the pattern—the political assassination of old New Dealers and non-Communist liberals to which Wallace has now lent himself—has also been described in this space. Examples of the third part of the pattern, the development of a curious double standard of political honesty, abound: The Baruch episode, the Steinhardt episode, certain incidents on Wallace's trip abroad and so on. But perhaps the most striking example is the story of Wallace's relationship with his successor as Secretary of Commerce, W. Averell Harriman.

Some months ago, Wallace came to Washington to make an open-air speech attacking the Administration's foreign policy. Before and during this rally there was much Wallace talk that Washington had become a police state, that Government employes were threatened with dire retribution if they listened to Wallace and so on.

No mounted Cossacks, however, appeared to ride down the innocent populace which somewhat apathetically gathered to hear Wallace speak. On the contrary, Harriman somewhat anticlimactically urged employes of the Commerce Department to attend the Wallace rally, so that they could "hear the other side."

Wallace heard of this gesture, and wrote his successor an admirably generous letter. "You are certainly a good sport," he wrote. He was "deeply touched," he wrote when, despite their disagreement on foreign policy, he discovered a number of "people from the Commerce Department whom you had encouraged to come." Wallace concluded, "This is still America and you are doing your part to keep it so."

THAT IS the private Wallace version of Harriman—a good sport, who is a friend and protector of American liberties. The public Wallace version of Harriman differs markedly—indeed, it is strikingly similar to the version of the New York Daily Worker, in which Harriman is portrayed as a Wall Street imperialist, busily dragging the United States down the road to war, presumably for the personal profit of W. Averell Harriman.

Moreover, to Wallace, Harriman is no longer a friend of civil liberties. He is, rather, one of the three chief enemies of civil liberties. "The departure from the Cabinet," Wallace shouted at a recent rally in Harlem, "of Messrs. Royall, Forrestal and Harriman . . . would be welcome evidence that the President really means what he says when he speaks of civil liberties."

The bare-faced dishonesty of this sort of thing is underlined by the fact, which Wallace must know, that Harriman is a consistent and passionate defender of civil liberties. Indeed, he was so enraged by the threat to civil liberties implicit in the handling by the Thomas Committee of the Condon Case, that he had to be restrained by his associates from calling the gaseous but powerful Representative J. Parnell Thomas anything more insulting than "un-American."

Yet Wallace cannot give his successor credit for his stand on civil liberties, simply because to do so would displease the new allies who have now become his captors. The story of the Wallace captivity would be merely pathetic if it were not also so intensely dangerous. For the constant repetition by Wallace of the magic word "peace" is undoubtedly leading many anxious and sincere Americans down Wallace's path of appeasement, which can lead in the end only to a total American surrender, or to the most terrible of all wars.

Washington Calling

GOP Vice Presidential Hopefuls

ONE SURE sign of the rising and falling tide of political fortune is the crop of vice presidential candidates. The severe frost that blighted President Truman's prospects of reelection has withered a whole hotbed full of Democratic hopefuls.

Childs

It is hard to realize that only a few short weeks ago the public-opinion polls showed Truman's chances to be better than even with all but one or two of the then available Republican candidates. As was said in that dim and distant day, you could not swing a cat on the Senate floor without hitting a vice presidential candidate.

That is also true today. But now the hopefuls are aspiring for the Republican nomination for Vice President. In order to get a candidate for second place on the Democratic ticket, one cynic remarked, Congress will have to pass a draft act.

At least six Republicans in the Senate are looking bright and eager and ready. A list of those willing to say yes would probably include all Republican Senators under 80. That would eliminate only Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas and there is no guarantee that, if pressed sufficiently, he would not in the end consent to accept the honor.

The active candidates most frequently named are Senator Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, Senator Harry P. Cain of Washington, Senator William E. Jenner of Indiana, Senator William F. Knowland of California, and Senators Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., and Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts.

ONE DEMOCRATIC Senator remarked wryly, paraphrasing a Dorothy Parker wisecrack, that this list ran the political gamut from A to B. This is grossly unfair. Lodge and Saltonstall, for example, have worked hard for a bipartisan foreign policy—particularly the former who has been one of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's most able backers in presenting the case for European recovery.

Jenner, on the other hand, has derided and ridiculed the program both in and out of the Senate. Baldwin has taken a far more realistic point of view on the need for the party to support liberal measures here at home than has Cain of Washington.

The House also has its candidates for Vice President. Conspicuous among them is Representative Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, who is majority leader. As one of the half dozen men who tell the House what it can and cannot do under Republican control, Halleck exercises a power commensurate with his ambition.

It is just posible that this year the Republicans may give more serious attention to the selection of a vice presidential nominee. Traditionally the second-place candidate is found under a sofa in a smoke-filled hotel room as the professionals rush to wind up the convention. But that method has its hazards, as American history and contemporary events abundantly prove.

TWO OF the men frequently mentioned for the GOP nomination for President are no longer young. Senator Vandenberg would be 65 less than three months after inauguration. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whose nomination at this point seems highly improbable, would be pushing 70. Public attention would, therefore, tend to focus on the second place more than it normally does.

In the past, geography has been an important factor in selecting the man for second place. If the presidential candidate is from the Eastern seaboard, then the Middle West gets the nod.

As a result, we often get two utterly incongruous men linked on the same ticket. And the last-minute political deal is likely to produce the same result, as was demonstrated at the Democratic convention in 1932 when Franklin Roosevelt and John Nance Garner were nominated.

The GOP combination that is being discussed with increasing seriousness is that of Senator Vandenburg for the No. 1 place and Harold Stassen for No. 2. That would be a powerful and harmonious ticket.

Stassen is only a little more than half of Vandenburg's age. On the essentials of foreign policy they are in complete agreement. Stassen has several times praised Vandenberg for his leadership in the Senate.

This is the kind of ticket which the independent voter will expect from the convention at Philadelphia. No half-man half-alligator combination, conjured up at the last minute, will do this year.

Agent's Argument With Policyholder Causes Court Suit

An insurance agent's argument with a policyholder yesterday found its way into District Court with the latter filing suit asking $35,000 damages alleging false arrest and "malicious prosecution."

Plaintiff was James O. Terreri, a grocer of 1137 C st., ne. Named defendants were the Prudential Life Insurance Co., 261 Constitution av., nw, R. C. Morrow, District manager of the organization and William J. Fearson, 320 18th pl., ne., an agent.

Terreri charged that, as a result of a tussle with Fearson, the defendants had him arrested on assault charges. He said testimony of witnesses was obtained by subterfuge. According to the suit, Terreri later was acquitted of the charges in Municipal Court.

Report Bevin, Bidault Plan Talks Here Is Unconfirmed

The State Department formally expressed hope yesterday for the "closest consultation" with Britain and France, both as concerned as is the United States with stopping communism.

The statement left the door open for a possible future meeting of foreign ministers of the three countries, but said none has yet been planned.

The department's statement was in comment on Paris reports that French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault would visit Washington next month to confer with Secretary of State Marshall and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Diplomatic quarters in Paris said the purpose was to discuss possible United States military guarantees to the western European union created last week.

Asked about the Paris reports, the State Department issued this statement:

"The Department of State today announced that there is no plan for a meeting between Mr. Bidault, Mr. Bevin and Secretary Marshall.

"It is hoped, however, that the three governments will establish the closest consultation on all matters of mutual interest.

"Whether this consultation will take the form of a meeting between the three secretaries or through some other method cannot be determined at the moment."

Senate Votes 1950 Release Of Synthetic Rubber Plants

By the United Press

The Senate voted yesterday to turn over to private owners by mid-1950 the Government's vast war-born synthetic rubber industry.

The bill, passed by voice vote, goes to conference with the House which approved a measure continuing Government control.

The 51 synthetic plants built by the Government cost 697 million dollars originally. Thirteen have been sold, 22 are still operating, and the other 16 are in a "stand-by" capacity to be used in a national emergency.

The Senate version would require the President to submit a transfer plan by January 15, 1950, and recommend any legislation to carry it out by July 1, 1950.

Supported by Industry

Chairman John W. Bricker (R., Ohio) of the Banking Subcommittee which wrote the bill, said the provision had the full support of the rubber industry. For the first time in history, he said, the industry is "united solidly behind a proposal affecting it."

Another major difference in the House and Senate versions is the extent of the Government's authority to dictate the use of rubber products.

The House voted to give the President such authority over all rubber products. But the Senate voted to limit it to the manufacture of tires, inner tubes and camel back from natural and synthetic rubber.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) objected that the provision gives the Administration power to ration tires and tubes. But Bricker said no such authority was involved.

Export, Import Control

Like the House bill, the Senate act also empowers the Government to control imports and exports of rubber products.

Bricker said this proviso was necessary to prevent competition between American-made tires containing both natural and synthetic rubber and 100 per cent natural rubber tires manufactured abroad. He said England and several other nations already are making tires of pure rubber.

Both bills would require the Government to keep operating enough synthetic plants to produce at least 600,000 long tons of general-purpose synthetic and 65,000 long tons of special synthetic a year.

Growing Number of Americans Sees Soviet Out to Rule World

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., March 23.—The concern of the American people over Soviet Russia's policies has risen markedly over the past two years and continues to grow.

Over a two-year period there has been a considerable shift in sentiment concerning her intentions. The Institute has asked this identical question on several occasions since the spring of 1946:

As you hear and read about Russia these days do you believe Russia is trying to build herself up to be the ruling power of the world, or is Russia just building up protection against being attacked in another war?

The comparative answers:

	Ruling Power	Protection	No Opinion
June, '46	58%	29%	13%
August, '46	60	26	14
Oct., '47	76	18	6
Today	77	12	11

Whereas two years ago only 14 per cent felt we should either go to war or prepare to fight, 44 per cent hold these views today.

The question and comparative answers follow:

	TODAY	March, 1946
Be firm, no appeasement	22%	29%
Prepare to fight, build up armed forces	27	4
Go to war	17	10
Don't send money or supplies, try economic blockade	3	5
Form an alliance against her	3	1
Sever relations	—	1
Get together, work things out	2	7
Go before U. N., let U. N. work things out	1	8
Try to appease Russia	1	1
Do nothing, get out of Europe	5	12
Miscellaneous	2	2
No opinion	17	20

President Truman's speech to the joint session of Congress asking for more positive countersteps to Soviet actions mirrored the thinking of 7 out of 10 American voters who believe the present policy of containment is too lenient.

This is shown by answers to the following question:

Do you think the United States is being too soft or too tough (firm) in its policy toward Russia?

	TODAY	October 1947
Too soft	73%	62%
Too tough	3	6

Mead Doubts Fitness, Rejects Post in FPC

Former Senator James M. Mead (D., N. Y.) yesterday declined to accept appointment by President Truman as a member of the Federal Power Commission.

White House sources said Mead turned down the offer because he did not feel that his background qualified him for the job.

Mr. Truman previously nominated Burton N. Behling of the commission's staff to fill the post, but his name was withdrawn in the face of congressional criticism.

He then asked Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) chairman of the democratic national committee, to offer the job to Mead, and had been expected to announce the appointment in a day or two.

But Mead replied, through McGrath, that he would have to decline.

The 62-year-old Democrat left the Senate January 3, 1947, at completion of his first full term as New York's junior senator. He did not seek re-election, choosing instead to try to oust Thomas E. Dewey as governor of New York.

'Hard-Boiled' Aid Plan Urged By Dewey to Halt Communism

Albany, N. Y., March 23 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey called today for a "hard-boiled" United States aid program to halt the spread of Russian communism and urged an "accelerated" diplomatic and propaganda offensive.

Dewey, a Republican presidential contender, criticized the Truman Administration's handling of the international crisis as "vacillating and inadequate."

The Governor, who promised to discuss the issue "in full" in the "next two months," said at a news conference:

"The influence of the United States has so far not been used to strengthen and preserve the forces for peace.

"I'm perfectly convinced that we can only preserve the peace through strength and that war is the last failure of bankrupt diplomacy."

Dewey replied "no" when asked if he considered the Nation on the verge of war or bankruptcy in diplomacy.

Asked if he believed such a trend existed, Dewey asserted:

"There need be no trend in that direction if our Government will stop changing its position every six weeks on almost everything and develop some competent leadership and responsible administration."

"Hard-Boiled" Defined

Asked what he meant by "hard-boiled" aid, Dewey said:

"For two and one-half years we have spent 20 billion dollars, scattered all over the world, part of it in dictatorship countries now behind the iron curtain and without the people of those countries ever knowing they were getting it.

"On the contrary, we have allowed Communist governments to distribute American relief goods and take credit for it."

Dewey pleaded for "an immediate increase" in the strength of the United States Air Force, "rebuilding" of the "intelligence service" and a speeding up of "our diplomatic efforts"—such as the recent announcement concerning Trieste."

Palestine Problem "Bungled"

Dewey contended the Washington Administration had "bungled" the Palestine problem. He said he hoped a solution that would "preserve the objective of a Jewish homeland" would "now be developed."

"The Communists," he asserted, "are counting on winning 40 to 45 per cent of the vote in the Italian election April 18 and then on seizing the government as they did in other eastern European countries."

The Truman Administration has either failed to recognize the nature of this movement in the past or has been unwilling to admit it," Dewey declared.

"In either case the American people are entitled to know the full story."

[In Washington, Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath interpreted Dewey's remarks as basically an indorsement of defense and world recovery measures long advocated by President Truman. He expressed the hope that it "will have results among the Republican majority of the Congress."—Editors Note.]

Moscow, March 23 (U.P).—Negotiations for a Russian-Finnish mutual aid treaty have been held up until ailing Finnish Premier Mauno Pekkala arrives here tomorrow to lead the visiting delegation, it was made known tonight.

The Finns spent today "resting." They had no official contact with the Russian government during the day.

Mason Indulges In a Cat-Sitter

By Richard L. Coe

PEOPLE AND PLACES: Like the roamin' Romanians, James Mason found our town too warm for comfort and relaxed in his shirtsleeves at Woody's tea honoring his wife's book, "Del Parma." . . . The Masons and their green-tied pal, Frank (former captain, U. S. A.) Monaghan are Hollywood-bound to make a movie of Mrs. Mason's book, which seems to be about a dead woman inhabiting the body of her husband's second wife, which the latter finds a trifle stifling . . . Mason's shirt reminded us of the one we keep in the bottom of the drawer for use only when we forget to pick up the laundry . . . Mason remarked that the celebrated Mason cats are their greatest luxury . . . There are five at the moment, three Persians, a white and an alley, which require a fulltime sitter during their tour of the bookshop circuit, a theatrical device new to the Britishers . . . Pamela Kellino Mason is far prettier than she photographs, lovely fair skin and reddish-gold hair . . . With the town's most insistent critic as his inquisitor, Mason finally remarked that "Odd Man Out" was his only picture worth detailed discussion . . . Of his stage fiasco, "Bathsheeba" (or "Up in David's Room"), Mason admitted that the Jacques Deval Biblical play wasn't what they'd thought it was on paper, was, in fact, "bloody awful."

MISS KITTY'S "Cleopatra," reviewed at length in this column during its New York run, turns up with a trifle less cumbersome scenery over at Ford's, Baltimore, and is even better at second sight. . . . Katharine Cornell has given the American stage some notable memories, but of them all "Antony and Cleopatra" must rank up near the top. . . . Ford's, I hate to tell you, is literally sold out for the week; what a crying shame it is that the Nation's Capital will not be seeing this, one of the best spoken, most visually beautiful productions of our day.

MME. ROSA REISS, whose bonnet emporium at 1625 Connecticut ave. is reflected in the latest Pathe-Warner newsreel, came to Washington 15 years ago because of her son, then a student at Georgetown Medical School. . . . Urging her to come to the Capital, he wrote her: "All the girls have their slips hanging out." . . . That did it, and Mme. Reiss left her Fifth ave. shop after 25 years to influence younyounyou. . . . "They don't hang out any more," remarked Mme. Reiss, whose newsreel shots prove that hats are just about what they used to be. . . . Son is now Dr. Maurice van Kinsbergen, great-grandson of a famed Dutch admiral. . . . The senior Van Kinsbergens are celebrating their forty-third wedding anniversary, unlikely as that may seem from those newsreel shots of madame.

THAT CALIFORNIA Cadillac lost in the Washington traffic mazes was manned by Spike Jones, with Spike's fiancee, Singer Helen Grayco, as copilot . . . They were looking for a place to have a chocolate milk shake (honest) and after an hour's roaming wound up a block from the National . . . Thomas Mitchell, due in for "An Inspector Calls," says yes, he will go out to talk with Father Hartke's theater students at Catholic University . . . Biz booming at the town's newest theater, the Dupont, where "The Roosevelt Story" is a magnet.

FRANK BOUCHER reports that the K-B theaters will be holding their annual Easter parties Saturday matinee at the Apex, Naylor, Senator and Atlas theaters, with bunnies and Easter outfits on tap for the kiddies . . . Among the entrants in the National Celebrities Golf Tournament, sponsored by The Washington Post, on May 16 will be Washington film guy Forrest Tucker, recently divorced. . . . Isadora Bennett putting last minute touches on the Stage Door Canteen reunion Sunday night at the Shoreham; among other things this means piping in the announcements from New York of the "Tony" winners—awards for outstanding theatrical contributions in memory of the late Antoinette Perry.

J. ARTHUR RANK will be in town this afternoon for a session with the press at Eric Johnston's headquarters; top subject, probably, will be the newly reached Anglo-American film accord . . . Drama Critic Jay Carmody ailing and much missed at last night's finals of the One-Act Play Tournament . . . Ingrid Bergman due at the Statler a week from Saturday to receive an award from the Women's National Press Club.

HEDDA GABLER: Beatrice Newport in the title role of the Ibsen drama which last night opened a three-week run in the intimate King-Smith Theater at the rear of 2118 Massachusetts ave. Others in the cast of this Productions, Inc., offering are Barbara Joyce, Patricia Coates, Paul Ballentyne, Leo Luckier, Russell Foster and Clara Thomas

Nats Make It Two in Row, Beat Cincinnati, 9 to 5

By William Klemm—The Washington Post

Gil Coan, McBride Get 3 Hits Each

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 23.—The Nats now own a winning streak, after 10 games in the Grapefruit League. It's a tender little skein of two in a row, but it was achieved nicely today at Tinker Field in the face of nine walks issued by Washington's rookie pitchers.

At bat, the Nats were tough and belted the Cincinnati Reds into a 9-5 defeat.

They spotted the Reds two runs in the first three innings and reared up to belt the daylights out of the Cincinnati pitching, to get all of their nine runs in the next four innings.

Against the righthanded pitching of Ed Erautt they got four runs, against the lefthanded serves of Ken Peterson they got five.

Coan Belts 3 Hits

Gil Coan did very wel.l He whacked out thre straight hits, including a double and a triple. And Tom McBride renewed his bid for an outfield job with three straight hits, too.

The new base-running motif of the Nats also manifested itself. They got the tying run in the second inning when Mickey Vernon and Coan pulled a double steal that saw Coan flash across the plate, in a flash.

Rookies Not Impressive

But the Nats' rookie pitchers were not impressive. Buzz Dozier, Dick Weik and Vernon Curtis, all right-handers, practically pitched themselves back on the farm at Chattanooga.

Dozier gave up five walks in three innings, and Big Weik contributed four walks and a base on balls in the three he worked. Curtis did better, allowing only two hits in the three innings he toiled, and one run.

Both of the Reds' first two runs stemmed from walks by Dozier, but the Nats wiped out their 2-0 deficit when they came to bat in the third. They whacked out three hits and three runs.

Gil Coan's single with two out scored Drake, who had walked, with the first run, and Mickey Vernon followed with a single.

Then it was that Vernon and Coan pulled the double stead that moved Coan home with the tying run. McBride's single to center scored Vernon.

Johnny Sullivan beat out an infield hit in the fourth and Coan scored him with a triple to left. In the fifth, little Earl Wooten led off with a lengthy triple to center. McBride singled, Yost was safe on an error, and the next two Washington runs came cheaply. Both McBride and Yost scored on a passed ball.

Coan Triples

Eddie Lyons' long fly was misjudged by Baumholtz for a three base error to start the sixth, and Coan, who had previously singled to center and tripled to left, now doubled to right just to confuse the Reds a bit and score Lyons. Coan scored while Wooten was bouncing into a double play.

THE LONGEST BLOW of the game was by the smallest man on the field, Earl Wooten, whose tripled cleared the head of Center Fielder Wyrostek in the sixth . . . Manager Joe Kuhel, as usual, pulled his regulars after the fifth inning . . . The Nats introduced a new catcher, Jose Fleitas, from Havana who

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

(Bobo Newsom has been persuaded to write a guest column. The persuasion consisted of a good-morning nod to Newsom, who thundered "Lemme do one of them sport articles for you."—Editor's note.)

By Bobo Newsom

ORLANDO, FLA., March 23.—Never had a sore arm in my life and I don't expect one after this workout. Twenty years of pitching has put my arm in shape to write a sports column, without pulling up lame from pushing a pencil. As a man without a job, I have plenty of time to write, nowadays, so I am borrowing the use of Shirley Povich's space for 24 hours to have my say.

BOBO NEWSOM

I don't have a baseball job as yet, but I don't want this to sound like a 900-word want ad. I don't think they'll have to stage any benefit for Bobo. Getting a job pitching for a big league club is one of the easiest things I do. Ask the eight clubs I've pitched for in the majors. When the time comes to hang up my glove, I'll know it before anybody else. As long as good pitching helps to win pennants, I think I'll be in demand.

The Yankees didn't fire me. I canned them. Getting only a three-quarter share of the World Series after all I did for them when they needed pitching didn't make Bobo happy. I asked for my release, despite the $20,000 contract they sent me for 1948. As for those friends of mine on the Yankee club who voted me only three quarters of a share, remind me to give them up for Lent.

Bucky Harris and Bobo pulled the Yankees through last season. The job this season is going to be too big for Bucky alone, I'm afraid, or am I?

BOSTON OUGHT to win the American League pennant, and I'm picking the Cleveland Indians to finish second, ahead of the Yankees. Cleveland is the dark horse and could even win it, with smarter management than Lou Boudreau. I always respected Boudreau's judgment until last winter when he said he wasn't interested in old Bobo because he thought I'd lose more games than I would win. With that kind of management, I can't pick the Indians to win the pennant.

Before the season starts, I'll be able to name the National League winner. I could tell you right now which team that is, but I have a few confidences to respect. When I finally sign with 'em, you'll know which club I mean. Old Bobo doesn't want to trifle with anything less than a pennant winner. That's why I'm taking my time about signing. I want to size up these National League clubs first.

They've already started coming around to see me. I knew that would happen just as soon as some of these training-camp flashes in the pans started getting belted around. That's when managers begin to think of the nice things I could do for their clubs. They know all about my waistline this year. It doesn't take long to get around—I mean both the news and my waistline.

AND PERHAPS you heard that radio is ready to jump ahead 20 years. I've just signed a broadcasting contract that will bring me more money than my baseball salary. Three transcriptions a week that will be aired by more than 100 stations that have already subscribed. I don't have to pitch baseball to earn a nice living, but the game is in my blood and I'm going to pitch and broadcast, too.

My radio shows are a hit already. Old Bobo is handing it to 'em straight—the things the fans can't see or hear from the stands—pulling no punches, either. Baseball is a man's game, and the people who can't take it don't have any business in it. I've been taking it for 20 years, and I've come up smiling. Never did like prima donnas, anyway.

Pitchers have to take it more than anybody else, anyway. They don't ever knock outfielders or infielders out of the box. But a knocked-out pitcher has the long way back to the showers in front of the whole crowd. You have a million thoughts under those showers, and if you don't bounce back you don't stay around long in the big leagues.

INCIDENTALLY, that's one thing I like about the Washington team—its pitching. They're not going to win any pennant, but Washington fans are going to see a better club than they bargained for. Fellows like Sid Hudson and Early Wynn and Walter Masterson won't need many runs.

I like Washington's kid second baseman, this Al Kozar. I don't think they'll have to worry about second or third base for the next 10 years with kids like Kozar and Eddie Yost on the job. I'll bet right now Kozar will hit .300 in the American League. He not only has good power, he's smart up there. He don't bother about trying to pull fast-ball pitchers. But he'll give 'em fits with his hits to right field. If they slow up on him, he'll pull 'em, though.

The most improved player on the Washington club, I'd say, is Gil Coan. You can say for Bobo that he's going to have a big year. They'll have a time keeping him off base, the way he can both slash and bunt that ball. It's a young team, but it will be heard from in a couple of years. I'm a Washington rooter. I'll be rooting for the Nats to be our opponents in the 1948 World Series.

Army-Navy's 4 Top Seniors May Meet in Spring Tourney

The Army-Navy Country Club golf committee is thinking of holding a special senior's tournament this spring. Al Burton, pro at Army-Navy, says that four of the club's golfers are a match for any senior in the area. Gen. Jesse Drain, Col. R. G. Rogers, Col. William C. James and Col. R. A. Mountford already are shotting rounds in the mid seventies although they have only played a few times this season.

Burton thinks matches between these four low-scoring seniors would be the feature of the contemplated tournament . . . Prince Georges Golf and Country Club boasts an unusual distinction. Two of its members, Army Capt. Fred G. Mosely and Navy Lieut. Jim Kinder, each holds the championship of his branch of service.

Al Price, veteran professional who is now in his twenty-first year at the Rock Creek Golf Course, estimates that he has given 10,000 golf lessons during that period. Al has this to say about the relative learning ability of men and women. "Women are far more serious about improving their golf game than men. Most women are apt pupils, while men, having their own ideas about how to swing at the ball, are harder to teach." ROGER WOLBARST.

Caps Leading Stags, 36-32, At the Half

Chicago, March 23.—The Washington Caps, jumping into an early lead, stayed ahead most of the way to hold a 36-32 lead over the Chicago Stags at halftime of the teams' playoff for a berth in Basketball Association of America championship play.

The Caps led by a 16-10 score at the end of the first period, holding dangerous Max Zaslofsky to one penalty point. The Chicago team appeared to be playing under unusual tension after its disastrous loss to the St. Louis Bombers Sunday night.

Both teams were missing handsful of easy shots with the Stags the worst offenders by far. Gene Vance and Zaslofsky were unable to hit anything.

With Zaslofsky beginning to get his sights on the target, the Stags pulled even at 24-24 but fell behind to finish the half with the Caps leading 36-32.

Chicago had used only one substitute, Mickey Rottner, for a few minutes. Maestro Red Auerbach of the Caps was sending a steady stream of rested players in and out.

Zaslofsky collected 5 goals and 1 foul shot during the period for 11 points. He also checked in with two personal fouls, while Chuck Gilmur, leading bad man of the league, had a clean record for the half.

Monaghan KOs Paterson

Belfast, March 23 (AP).—Irish Crooner Rinty Monaghan knocked out Scotsman Jackie Paterson in the seventh round tonight, winning undisputed possession of the world flyweight championship.

Monaghan scaled 110¾ while Paterson came in just 4 ounces under the 112-pound limit.

Weak from shedding many pounds to make the weight, Paterson was a far cry from the nimble boxer who won the crown in 1934 with a first round kayo of Peter Kane.

He back-pedalled through six dull rounds to escape the offensive thrusts of Monaghan and finally was counted out in the seventh while sitting down in Monaghan's corner. He had been down twice in the round.

Rinty hammered the defenseless Scot with every blow in the book in the seventh and finally Jackie slumped to a sitting position. It was obvious that he was only semiconscious.

When ten was counted, Paterson had to be carried to his corner.

Horne Signed for Stadium Fights

Promoter Goldie Ahearn yesterday announced the signing of Sonny Horne for three bouts in Griffith Stadium this summer. Horne is currently scheduled for a 10-round non-title bout with Rocky Grabiano at Uline Arena on April 5.

Horne created a mild sensation in his last meeting with Graziano when he became the first of six victims to go the distance with the middleweight champion. He'll arrive in town early next week for public workouts.

Carnera-Levin Tops Mat Show Tonight

Primo Carnera stays on for another week at Turner's Arena. Tonight he'll swap wrestling snorts wit hDave Levin in the feature match. Dutch Rhode will oppose Faro Rinaldo and Billy Darnell will face Tony Sinatra in preliminaries.

Bethesda Girls' Basketball Team Has Quietly Built Up Dazzling Record of 54 Wins, 4 Losses

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

YOU HEAR A LOT about great records being compiled by the high school and college basketball coaches in the other parts of the country.

But almost overlooked in the shuffle has been the excellent record, set in Washington's own backyard, by Miss Dorothy Quayle, coach of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High girls' team.

In the three years since Miss Quayle quit the semipro basketball ranks in Pittsburgh to take over as coach at B-C. C., her teams have won 54 and lost only 4 games.

Just last Saturday, Bethesda capped its undefeated season by winning the Maryland State Class A championship. In that final game, B-CC walloped previously undefeated Wicomico High, Eastern Shore champion, by a lopsided 47-14. It was Bethesda's eighteenth straight victory.

Her team averaged 39 points per game to 21 for the opposition this season. The team's average height was 5 feet, 8½ inches, and had no seniors. All six regulars are juniors, and all are better than B students.

Eleanor Welker and Charlene Jamison, who scored 522 of Bethesda's 705 points, are both National Honor Society members.

Miss Welker scored 342 points herself for a 19 points per game average. Miss Jamison was the team's tallest player at 5 feet, 11½.

Other outstanding players on the team were Betty Winkler, another National Honor Society member, and Marianne Fiock, who also plays on Bethesda's girls softball, field hockey, tennis and track teams.

Among the teams beaten by Bethesda this season were Washington-Lee of Arlington, Fairfax, Sidwell Friends, Hyattsville, Gaithersburg, Damascus, Poolesville, Montgomery-Blair, Towson, Fort Hill of Cumberland.

Congressman Asks Check On Schmeling

The State Department is being asked by Representative McDowell, Republican of Pennsylvania, to look into Max Schmeling's plans to make a ring comeback in this country next summer.

"It seems to me a rather shoddy scheme to bring an over-age fighter who certainly has been useful to the Fascists into this country to exploit sports followers of the United States," McDowell said.

McDowell told reporters that he has asked the visa section of the State Department for an explanation.

Wants All the Facts

He said he wants to get all the facts possible before deciding whether to oppose the 42-year-old fighter's return. McDowell is a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

"Schmeling, when he was heavyweight champion, certainly never objected to being idolized by the Nazis as proof of their master race theories," McDowell said. "To all intents and purposes, he paid lip service to the belief that the Germans were to rule the world."

Max Would Fight Here

Schmeling recently announced in Hamburg, Germany, that he is seeking to enter the United States for a series of bouts.

Fred Kirsch, a Washington promoter, is acting as Schmeling's representative.

Schmeling was a Nazi paratrooper during the war. He won the world heavyweight championship from Jack Sharkey in 1930 and lost the title to Sharkey in a return match in 1932.

MAAA Loses Bout With Commission

The Metropolitan Amateur Athletic Association's suit in District Court to compel the boxing commission to issue it a permit for an amateur boxing show April 2 was thrown out yesterday.

Associate Justice Matthew F. McGuire ruled that the MAAAA had failed to exhaust its administrative remedies and had neglected to give the commission required information on its aims, facilities and finances.

Six of Nation's Top Golf Pros Enter National Capital Open

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Six of the Nation's topnotch golf professionals have entered the National Capital Open Tournament April 29-May 2 at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club.

Jimmy Demaret, Jim Ferrier, Herman Keiser, E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Dick Metz and Ky Laffoon yesterday notified Prince Georges professional Al Houghton that they will be on hand for the event.

All of the six players are among the best known name pros in the business.

Demaret, leading money winner among the professionals in 1947, is up among the leaders again this year. A former Masters' Tournament winner, he is one of the most popular pros playing today.

Ferrier, last year's PGA champion; Keiser, another Masters' tournament winner; Harrison, a member of the U. S. Ryder Cup team and recent victor in the Richmond Open; Laffoon, a quarter finalist in last year's PGA tournament and Metz, several times a high finisher in the Masters' event are the first of a long list of the leading golfers expected to enter the National Capital Open.

As this tournament will provide 25 qualifying spots for the PGA championship in St. Louis, very

Redskins Are Host To the Real Thing

Four honest-to-heck Indians, members of the Blackfeet tribe from Browning, Mont., will visit the Washington Redskin office today but not in search of 1948 football contracts.

According to General Manager Dick McCann, who never was accused of missing a publicity beat, the quartet is appreciation bent.

"They're coming here, I understand, to thank the Redskins for the way they've upheld the honorable name of the American Indian."

The delegation will include Joseph Calf Robe, Crow Chief, Theodore Last Star and William Buffalo Hide. Actually it came to Washington to discuss tribal problems with Secretary of the Interior Krug.

18-Year-Old Halts Yankees, Phils Win, 6-5

Clearwater, Fla., March 23 (AP). Curt Simmons, 18-year-old rookie of the Philadelphia Phillies, curbed New York Yankee power for four innings today to give his mates a 6-to-5 victory in a grapefruit contest.

Simmons allowed only one run during his tenure—that a home run over the short rightfield fence by Joe Page in the sixth.

Meanwhile, the Yankees' normally good southpaw pitching turned sour. Ed Lopat and Joe Page were banged for 12 hits. Lopat gave up five runs in the first four innings but Page was charged with the defeat. The Phils scored the deciding run in the eighth on a walk to Johnny Blatnik and a triple by Granville Hamner.

Sholl's Girls Win

Sholl's Cafeteria captured the District Recreation Department Women's Major League Basketball Championship by defeating the Waves, 36-22, last night. Marion Dobbins was high scorer for Sholl's with 22 points.

Holy Cross Braces, Tops Kansas State

New York, March 23 (U.P.).—Holy Cross was wholly adequate to every situation tonight, withstanding a last-half Kansas State rally to score a 60 to 54 victory and win third place in the National Collegiate Basketball Tournament.

George Kaftan, the tournament-wise veteran of the Crusaders, broke the tie with a hook shot and O'Connell followed with his two "drive-in" goals.

Thereafter it was a goal-trading proposition with the Kansans hanging on doggedly, but never again finding the scoring touch to close the gap.

Last year's national champions from Worcester, Mass., led at one time in the first half by 15 points and held a 12-point, 36 to 24 margin at the intermission, yet were caught at 40-all as K-State rallied desperately but futilely.

But even against such an unexpected surge the classy crusaders were more than equal to the situation. They rose from the deadlock on three quick goals, two of them by Substitute Dermott O'Connell, after which they never again were overtaken.

A capacity Garden crowd of more than 18,000 was on hand for the NCAA windup which featured Kentucky, the Eastern winner, against Baylor, Western victor, in the championship contest.

Kentucky defeated Holy Cross here and Baylor whipped Kansas State in Kansas City last Saturday night in the regional finals.

Wildcats Winging

At the half, Kentucky appeared headed for an easy time of it as the Wildcats romped into a 29-16 margin over a Baylor five which seemed out of its class.

Where Is Hungry?

It's Spring—Maybe Henry Will Return

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Holy Week is an appropriate time for this piece.

Perhaps you have never heard of Henry Bartlow. I hadn't until I sat around with the Virginia Gold Cup boys at Warrenton, Va., last week-end.

Haight

Through them I learned to like Henry Bartlow, a young man who loves, in the order named, God, his fellowman and horses.

A Pennsylvanian—no one seems to know the town, nor does that matter—Henry decided early in life to become a missionary. One day, so the story goes, Henry put his Bible and a few clothes in a handbag, and began hitchhiking to the West.

In Wyoming—or was it Colorado?—Henry Bartlow settled with the Indians. He became their friend, teacher, religious guide and fellow worker.

Came the war and Henry was drafted into the Army. Friends say he wrote to the Indians at every opportunity and while overseas sent most of his pay back to the tribe.

At war's end he returned to his life with the Redmen. However, the Indians had other plans for him. Knowing his love for horses, the tribe presented him with an 8-year-old, black stallion—a thoroughbred, but no one seems to know the breeding.

The Indians urged Henry to take the horse that "runs like the wind" to the East and try to win his fortune.

So Henry and Hungry, the horse, rode away in a section of a boxcar.

They turned up at Richmond, Va., last year, a few days before the running of the Deep Hunt Race Association's program.

Hungry appeared well fed, observers say, but Henry appeared hungry. They shared adjoining stalls.

The night before his first big race, while Henry was absent, Hungry knocked down the stall door and ran off. It was early morning before Henry, using tracking tactics learned from the Indians, finally captured the horse in a swamp miles from the racing scene.

However, the pair was in the lineup at the start in the afternoon.

It would be nice to report that Hungry, with Henry Bartlow up, won that race, but the old horse finished third.

However, both made friends—the horse for his courageous effort despite being obviously tired before the race and the man for his failure to even suggest an alibi.

Henry became a fixture on the Gold Cup circuit. If other riders shunned an unruly horse, Henry would ride and, oddly enough, the horses improved.

At Middleburg, Henry and Hungry teamed for the big money Hungry came from behind, some horses were in close quarters nearing the finish. Henry might have won had he chosen to jeopardize the safety of fellow riders, so he pulled up and went around them. Hungry was second.

In a flat race, on the Gold Cup program at Warrenton, there was some confusion at the start. Hungry was left at the post. Henry finally urged him into action and the 8-year-old almost ran his heart out to finish second.

When the season closed, Hungry and Henry disappeared. Some say he took the horse to Pennsylvania. Others contend the slim, saintly fellow and his horse have gone West—back to the Indians.

However, Randy Duffey, Amory Lawrence and the other Warrenton boys are watching the mails for a Virginia Gold Cup entry blank filled in with "Hungry, 8-year-old horse, owned and trained by Henry Bartlow."

After hearing that story, I said. "You know, I hope Bartlow shows up this year with Hungry and beats the pants off every horse he meets."

Of course, the committeemen present had to be neutral, but they couldn't fool me. To a man, their eyes said, "Second the motion."

Basilius II Is Assigned 120 Pounds

Shamrock Stable's Air Patrol, owned by Art (Grid Steelers) Rooney, has been assigned top weight of 122 pounds for the Bowie Memorial Handicap, opening day feature of Bowie's 12-day meeting beginning next Monday.

Racing Secretary John Turner, sr., set the poundage yesterday.

Air Patrol hasn't been to the post since last November when he won the Burch Memorial Handicap at Bowie. However, the 7-year-old son of Sun Teddy wintered at the Prince Georges County track and has been training for the past month.

Despite the closed winter hereabouts, Turner appeared to favor horses which stayed in the North over those who races in warmer climes.

The second highest impost went to Isadore Bieber's Basilius 2d, a French horse imported after being purchased for $40,000. The invader gets a 120-pound assignment for the $10,000, 6-furlong test.

Like Air Patrol, Basilius 2d, has shown to advantage in workouts after having been wintered at Bowie. Hirsch Jacobs has been supervising his training.

Kitchen Police, purchased by Gustave Ring of Washington from Alfred G. Vanderbilt, gets 117 pounds. He was the winner of the Damon Runyon Handicap in Florida a few weeks back and is reported to have shipped well.

The Sagner Stable's Saggy, a Maryland hope for the 1948 Kentucky Derby, would carry 115 pounds. However, the 3-year-old son of Swing and Sway may not start, his trainer preferring not to race Saggy against older horses at this stage of the campaign.

In all, 30 are nominated for the Rowe, including Scholarship, the 1947 winner, and Incline, Joe Tucci's stake horse which carried off first honors in the Bryan and O'Hara last fall.

Pennsy Abandons Bowie 'Special'

Philadelphia, March 23 (AP).—The Pennsylvania railroad today abandoned plans for special train service to Bowie, Md., race track for the spring meeting opening Monday.

An order for such service went out prior to the government's action curtailing coal-burning passenger train service.

PRR is electrified only to Bowie, two miles from the track.

A railroad spokesman said company officials had discussed with track authorities the possibility of operating specials to Bowie with passengers completing the trip by bus.

"There was no way of getting them the two miles to the track," he said. "so it was decided not to operate special service to Bowie."

Olympic Group Seeks Way To Select Basketball Players

New York, March 23 (AP).—The American Olympic Basketball Committee will meet here Friday to decide how it will select the 14 members of the team which will reprsnt the United States in the 1948 Olympics.

Lou Wilke, chairman, said the only thing he was certain of was that the team will consist of 14 players and that seven players will be chosen from the college ranks and seven from the independents.

In making the announcement at the annual convention of the Nation Association of Basketball Coaches today, Wilke said,

"Our prime objective is to satisfy both the NCAA and the AAU. We don't wish to have another hockey situation on our hands."

"Originally it was decided to select seven players from each of the college and independent winners," Wilke added. "But some agitation has arisen to modify the selection whereby we would still have a unit system of five players from the winning team with two players from other contenders in each class."

Murphy's Bill Rejected

Boston, March 23 (AP).—The Massachusetts Legislature's Committee on Labor and Industries today rejected a bill designed to forbid baseball clubs from selling a player without his consent.

The bill had been sponsored by Robert Murphy, who tried to organize a baseball players' union last season.

Carlson Gets Award

New York, March 23 (AP).—Dr. H. C. Carlson, veteran coach at the University of Pittsburgh, today was named by his fellow mentors as the man who did the most for basketball over a period of years.

Kramer Still Winning

New Orleans, March 23 (AP).—Jack Kramer's lightning serves and overhand smashes proved too much for Bobby Riggs here Monday night and the former national amateur champ won their exhibition match 8—6, 6—4.

Kramer now leads Riggs 36 matches to 17.

Interhigh Track Slate Opens Today

The local high school outdoor track and field season opens today with two dual meets slated at 3:15 p. m. Eastern is host to McKinley Tech and Roosevelt entertains Calvin Coolidge.

Two other meets slated for today, Anacostia at Central, and Wilson at Western have been postponed. The Central - Anacostia event will be staged April 13, and the Westen-Wilson on April 6. These four schools claimed their teams didn't have time enough to get into condition.

Results of today's two meets will be counted in the new preliminary interhigh track race, which will end April 16. But these results will not count in the big Interhigh Championship Meet May 20-21 at Central stadium.

Holdovers from last year will dominate today's spotlight, Eastern's top standard bearers will be Forest Miles, a dashman, Ted Collins in the 440 and Ed Smith in the pole vault. Tech's outstanding veteran is Buddy tBrown, a hurdler.

Coolidge will lead with Don Moore, a shot putter, Wayne DeMoss, a dashman and Dick Martineau a hurdler. For Roosevelt, standouts will be Bob Bialek in the hurdles and Jerry Rothkin in the 440.

Harris' Ring Career Now Help to Kids

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

OTIS HARRIS was just a preliminary boy, but his short ring career wasn't entirely unsuccessful.

In absorbing more than his share of punishment in some 15 pro fights, he discovered the importance of protecting a boxer who's been hit hard. Now, as coach of the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club No. 2 boxing team, he puts into effect lessons he learned the hard way.

Five of Harris' boys will be in the Distict AAU tournament finals tomorrow night at Turner's and his club is favored to win the team championship.

Competing for titles are Eddie Marshall, 175-pound senior; Clarence Tyler, 118, senior; Dave Primrose, 112, senior; Nathaniel Williams, 175-pound novice, and Calandus Swinson, 147, novice.

Win or lose, it's a safe bet that Harris won't let any one continue to fight after he's been hurt.

Last week in the semifinals, Harris tossed in the towel for two of his fighters when the referee was going to let them go on. Henry Johnson, floored for a nine-count in the previous round by Claude Lawrence, was downed again early in the third round. He got up and waited to keep fighting, but Harris wouldn't let him.

In another bout, Joe Williams, -60-pound senior, had a week-old cut reopened by Eddie Kennett. He probably could have finished out, but Harris had the ref stop it.

As Harris says, "No fight's worth getting a boy hurt."

At 26, Otis is a Department of Interior messenger who spends four hours nightly training more than 40 youngsters at the 12th and U st. clubhouse.

"I really enjoy it," Otis explained. "I like to see the kids get the tthings I missed. After only one amateur fight, I turned pro. And I didn't know a thing about boxing."

"I don't say I would have been a champ or anything, but I think I would have gone further if I had been handled better.

"These kids don't have much. I can teach them a lot of the things I learned—and I can keep them from getting hurt."

Otis receives a small sum for his efforts, but it doesn't amount to anything. He laughed. "You get a check once a month, but you give it all back. If you like your kids, you get things for 'em. Or you give 'em a couple of nickels and dimes."

Board Orders Probe of Big Rockfish Haul

Newport News, Va., March 23 (AP). The Virginia Commission of Fisheries today ordered an investigation on the effects of the recent record rockfish haul made in the Potomac River.

The haul of rockfish, made during a short stretch of warm weather in February, was unofficially reported as more than 100 tons in two days of seining. The fish were netted in shallow water near Wakefield, a short distance down river from Colonial Beach.

At the time of the catch, believed to be of record proportions, State Senator Charles W. Crowder urged a tightening of State laws on such seining during the spawning season.

Observers reported that many of the rockfish taken in the haul were over the Virginia limit of 25 pounds.

These reports and "complaints of oversize fish being taken" prompted the commission action today, according to James B. Martin, a member of the commission.

Martin introduced a resolution at today's meeting of the group ordering Dr. Nelson Marshall, director of the Virginia Fisheries Laboratory, "to investigate and report back to this commission as soon as practicable concerning the effect upon conservation of taking of such large quantities of rockfish during the spawning period."

His resolution was unanimously adopted by the commission.

6 Pros Enter Capital Open

few of the country's top shotmakers can well afford to pass up the Prince Georges event.

Just returned from Greensboro, N. C., where he ironed out details of the tournament with George Schneiter chairman of the P G A tournament committee, Houghton announced details of the qualification procedure for the affair.

Houghton said that if entries for the tournament exceed 150 golfers, all except certain exemptions will have to qualify for places.

The exemptions include all Class A Middle Atlantic PGA players, Maryland State Open Champion Spencer Overton, State Amateur Champion Bobby Brownell, the first 30 finishers in last year's National Capital Open, the low 30 scorers in the 1948 Masters' Tournament in Atlanta, U. S. Open Champion Lew Worsham, PGA Champion Jim Ferrier, Defending Capital Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum, the Ryder Cup team and visiting foreign professionals.

These exemptions will leave about 50-60 berths open to qualifiers. In the event a qualifying round is needed, it will take place Tuesday, April 27, at Prince Georges.

Entries for the tournament close April 26.

Williams

NOW that summer is getting ready to rear its warm head, the Shoreham Palladian Room is becoming very much a favorite with cocktail and late-evening dancers . . . This sudden "discovering" of the new room is partially due to the fact that while you sit and sip your julep or other favorite warm weather drink you are able to look out over the terrace and park and still enjoy air-conditioned surroundings . . . Then, too, there's the music of Sande Williams and his orchestra . . . Just saying it's an orchestra doesn't seem enough, because Sande has gathered together quite an aggregation.

Let's look at Sande and his background for a moment . . . Prior to his 2½ years in the Army he played for 4 years in the Hotel Astor and a number of other first-rate hotels . . . During his Army service Sande organized an orchestra in the Miami base where he was stationed and played in Army shows with Bob Hope, Connee Boswell, Danny Kaye and Al Jolson . . . After the war Sande got back in the swing of hotels and summer resorts . . . The other members of the orchestra are Albert Marchetto, who started out to be a printer, liked drums better and found himself playing with Blue Baron, Charlie Spivak and others before joining Sande . . . Mark David, who tootles the sax and does a bit of vocalizing, started on his musical career at 12 and has since composed a song for Morton Downey, sung and played on CBS and NBC and has played with several society orchestras.

Pianist-Arranger Pat Dixon, a Juilliard graduate, has played in his share of orchestras about the country and has also composed a piece called "Thrill of Love," which was recorded before the ban. Paul Gumire, a Hagerstown, Md., boy, rounds out the group on the bass and fills in with a few vocals . . . Paul was singing over Station WJEJ in Hagerstown at the age of 9; he also starred in two musicals in the Pacific area during the war . . . He returned to civilian life in 1946, when he toured the South with a trio and later joined Williams. His only comment is "Love it."

One of the other nice things about the Palladian Room is that when you're having cocktails with a friend, it's possible to hold a conversation without fear of the orchestra drowning you out . . . The spot has become one of the most popular rooms in town.

THE Club Cairo opened a new show last night with Dick Buckly, who succeeded in making the front pages of several papers in town before he left here last year . . . Dick, who leans toward the Barrymore type of humor, managed to do two appearances here last season and was well received . . . In addition to Buckly, a sweet little miss named Mindy Carson, will be doing the warbling . . . Mindy is a protege of Paul Whiteman and was featured on several of his broadcasts not long ago . . . Variety, the show business bible, hailed her as a find when she first hit the air waves . . . Cappy Barra, whom you know from his Decca records, will be playing the harmonica and Frances White will give with the blues singing.

There's competition for the customer's eye in the Sheraton Lounge nowadays . . . What with the band performing together and in solo stints and the waitresses walking around in those transparent skirts, fella hardly knows which way to look.

Starts Monday . .

New Adventure in the "Mary Worth" Comic Strip with Washington's own Government Girls as Heroines!

Here are Gini MacNaught and Audrey Hall, winners of The Washington Post's recent government girl contest, posing for their cartoon likenesses. They are acting as models for the two government girls who are the principal characters in the next adventure of Mary Worth, in The Washington Post's comic pages. Resemblance between these real, live government girls and the ones in the comic strip is entirely a matter of drawing, however. The adventures of the girls in the comic come straight from the head of author Allen Saunders (shown standing behind artist Ken Ernst) and have no relation to the private lives of either Gini or Audrey. The episode in which these girls' likenesses appear starts in The Washington Post on Monday, March 29.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Compromise Bill Would Reduce Cost Of Pay Rise Plans

A new and compromise bill that would sharply reduce the cost of the various pay raise proposals for Federal workers is being drafted for the Senate Civil Service Committee. An inside source said the bill would provide:

1. An increase of $500 to each of the 450,000 postal workers, and of only $300 to each of the 800,000 employes whose salaries are fixed by the Classification Act, or of $450 for postal employes, and $350 for Classification Act people. In any event, postal employes would get substantially more on the average than Classification Act people.

2. An increase in the minimum salary for a fulltime adult employe from $1756 to at least $22,00 or perhaps has high as $2400. Chairman Langer is holding out for a $2400 minimum;

3. An increase of either 20 or 25 cents an hour for Classification Act and postal people who are paid an hourly rate;

4. To scale down proposed increases for little cabinet members, members of boards, commissions, and corporations, and bureau chiefs to average about $2000 a year. Cabine mtembers would be increased from $15,000 to $20,500, and,

5. To split up the Flanders omnibus bill into two bills, one for postal employes, and another for Classification Act people, but on the condition that the bills be considered and debated in the Senate as one. In fact, one key Senator said he'd recommend a veto for any yone bill that passed without the other.

The real story behind the abrupt shift in pay plans is this: Senate GOP policymakers have approved a "modest" increase in pay. They are reported to have fixed a ceiling on the total cost of all pay raise legislation at 400 million dollars a year. However, there appears to be a good reason to believe that the policymakers will approve any bill that doesn't cost more than half a billion.

So, figure it out for yourself—if the cost ceiling is raised to 500 million dollars, the average increase for the 1,250,000 postal and Classification Act people would be a bare $400 each. The postal employes are better organized and they have more political glamor than the Classification Act people—that's why they'll get the largest piece of piece.

The tough chore facing the three-man subcommittee is to draft a bill to cost not more than half a billion and to do justice to 1,250,000 people. Incidentally, it's reported that GOP leaders will insist that the agencies be required to absorb the cost of any bill, or bills, over the 500 million dollar limit.

The postal increase would be a flat amount for each postal worker. However, the pay raise for Classification Act people would be handled in a different manner. The "average" increase would be either $300 or $350, but individuals would get raises ranging from as little as $50 or $100 to $600 or $700. The Classification Act would be overhauled in the process. Also, employes in the low-paid groups would get the largest percentage increases.

Chairman Bridges of the Senate appropriations Committee, attended yesterday's closed session of the Civil Service Committee. He urged a deep slash in the cost of the pay bills because of anticipated heavy expenditures for defense. However, he conceded that a modest pay bill was justified. Other key Senators expressed similar views.

VA.: The Veterans Administration, it seems, has decided to rewrite Civil Service's lay-off rules to suit its own convenience. Its action is certain to result in long drawn-out appeals from its employes who are illegally fired.

In short, no VA employe who comes up for reduction-in-force will have the right to "bump" out another employe with fewer rights, unless VA itself decides to allow him to do it.

Of course, this policy is strictly against Civil Service rules for the bulk of VA's employes covered by Civil Service. Any VA employe who is denied "bumping" rights may appeal to Civil Service and he's sure to win and the agency will be forced to backtrack.

The rules now clearly gives an employe whose job is to be abolished the right to take over another job he can qualify for, provided the person in it has fewer retention rights.

POLITICS: Bumbling White House operators are trying to interest Nathaniel Dyke, jr. in a top job in the European Relief Administration. The Dyke story is one of the reasons why the President finds it difficult to persuade good men to enter Federal service. Dyke was made a member of the Home Loan Bank Board and he was promised the chairmanship. The next thing he knew he was fired. Now the White House assistant who knife him in talking him up for an ERA job.

CAA: Commerce Secretary Harriman is still plugging for F. B. Lee to be administrator of Civil Aeronautics. Lee is acting administrator and the President talked with him last week. However, support is building up for Joe Marriott, CAA's Los Angeles regional administrator, and Del Rentzel, a New York businessman.

Crash of Bus, Auto Sends Family of Six To Hospital

6 Others Injured In Traffic Accidents; Charges Are Filed Against 2 Drivers

A motorist, his wife and four children were injured, none seriously, when their car collided with a Greyhound bus at 12th st. and Independence ave. sw., early yesterday.

Other accidents on rain-slick streets injured at least six others, four of whom were hospitalized, and brought traffic charges against two drivers.

The family which went to Emergency Hospital with cuts and bruises was Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Fisher, of 1314 D st. se., and their children, Nancy, 8; Sharon, 6 months, Norman, 6, and Boby, 5. Their car was in a collision with the bus driven by Howard Snider, 33, of Richmond, Va.

Two Pedestrians Hurt

Two pedestrians were hurt when one of two cars swerved after a collision and rammed a steel bus stop sign where six persons were standing at 43d and Yuma sts. nw. They were: Marianna Deasy, 21, and her brother, Marius Deasy, 10, both of 4542 43d pl. nw. Both were taken to Georgetown Hospital, where they boy was later released. Miss Deasy suffered a head injury.

Drivers of the cars were Paul Plien, 17, of 4421 Yuma st. nw., and William A. Haynes, 37, of 4606 43d st. nw. Plien's car swerved after the crash and rammed the sign, police said.

Three passengers were hospitalized and another treated and released after taxicabs driven by GGeorge V. Joyce, 49, of 120 36th st. ne., and Robert L. Murray, 25, of 20 Rhode Island ave. ne., collided at N. Capitol and E st.

Drivers Charged

Joyce was charged with colliding; Murray with failing to yield the right of way. The injured were:

Nettie V. Perrie, 65, of 1647 C st. ne., possible shoulder fracture; Ethel Dailey, 51, of 1806 C st. ne., possible fractures of the left hand and right knee; Sudie Kerr, 40, of 1806 C st. ne., possible head injury, and Estelle Perrie, 28, of 1647 C st. ne. All were taken to Providence Hospital and Estelle Perrie was reelased after treatment.

A certificate of accidental death was issued yesterday in the District's eighteenth traffic fatality of the year. The victim was George Windsor, 30-year-old truck driver of 508 Seward sq. se., whose truck struck a lamp post and overturned on 14th st. sw., north of Highway Bridge Monday night.

Baby Recovering After Drinking Solution of DDT

Hagerstown, Md., March 23 (Spl.). An 18-month-old baby who drank a quantity of DDT was reported in good condition at Washington County Hospital tonight, after giving hospital authorities a few anxious moments because they did not know the proper antidote.

The child, Gary Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Smith, Route 1, Hagerstown, was taken to the hospital by a neighbor, who told authorities he had drunk part of a bottle of insect spray containing a 5 per cent solution of DDT. Unaware of the correct remedy, hospital authorities made hurried calls to the local county farm agent, the University of Maryland and, finally to a Department of Agriculture in Washington before learning that phenobarbital was the prescribed antidote.

Dr. Marjorie Galliher, who treated the child, said it took about half an hour to learn the proper remedy, but the delay caused no serious consequences because his stomach was pumped out immediately. Phenobarbital was given later, she said, "as a precaution."

Lane and Lacy Visit Archbishop Keough

Baltimore, March 23 (AP).—Governor Lane and State Comptroller James J. Lacy visited Archbishop Francis P. Keough today at the archbishop's residence.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. M. Nelligan, chancellor of the archdiocese, described the half hour visit with the new archbishop as "quite informal" and "without any particular significance."

Annual Auction

Dead Letter Coins, Stamps Lure Bidders

The Washington Post

MRS. ANN ROSENTHAL, of 5722 Fourth st. nw., displays a bracelet made of British coins

"Sis" can have the bracelet of Australian coins which "Andy Kay" made for her in New Guinea, in 1945, if she turns up at the main city postoffice tonight—and makes the top bid on it.

Her bracelet, and thousands of other such items which landed in the Nation's dead letter offices, will be up for sale at 7 o'clock tonight in the annual auction of unclaimed coins and stamps at the main Postoffice, North Capitol st. and Massachusetts ave.

Butsharp-eyed collectors will be far less interested in "Sis's" bracelet and similar trinkets than they will be in making a good buy of old Egyptian coins or first day covers.

Starting last night, and continuing today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., prospective buyers have the opportunity to inspect the 219 lots of stamps and coins on sale.

These range from a burlap sack with 14 pounds of canceled United States stamps to 300 Cuban one-centavo coins of 1943 vintage. Some of the 300 to 400 buyers who usually turn out for such sales will be jewelers bidding on lots of silver and gold coins to melt down.

The likelihood of buying some extremely rare coin or stamp for a few cents is very small, Postoffice officials say, but there are good bargains in the sale.

Experts helped prepare the items for sale, and any questions of great value are usually referred to the Smithsonian Institution. So far as is known, no one has ever gotten away with such a value.

Many of the Philippines silver coins, lead Belgian coins, brass and silver French coins, etc., were sent to this country by servicemen overseas. Biggest single purchase in a similar auction last year, said John W. Sparkman, foreman of the main dead letter office here, was $34 for seven pounds of silver foreign coins (the coins are not solid silver).

Annual sales net the Postoffice Department about $2000, Sparkman said. A much larger return comes from modern-day currency of all nations, sent here from dead letter offices throughout the country.

Girl Assaulted Near Arboretum Now Out of Danger

A 9-year-old girl who was attacked and beaten last Thursday near the National Arboretum was reported out of danger yesterday at Gallinger Hospital, although she still is being carried on the "critical" list.

Doctors said that if she continues to show the same rate of improvement, she will be removed from the critical list today. X-rays taken Monday have shown that only one bone was broken, in her left leg. The child is still "puffed up," doctors said, but the swelling has abated enough for her to eat. Up until yesterday she had been fed intravenously. Doctors described her as "conscious but not fully alert."

Police are holding Theodore Martin Holmes, 22, on a charge of rape in the case.

OES Meeting Tonight

A business meeting of Naomi Chapter No. 3, Order of Eastern Star, will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the OES chapter rooms, 13th st. and New York ave. nw.

Pvt. John M. Ruffner, 51, for chronic bronchitis and anxiety neurosis. He was appointed January 26, 1921.

Pvt. Robert N. Legg, 55, who volunteered for retirement. He was appointed a Metropolitan policeman March 16, 1922, and transferred to the White House police July 1, 1930.

The monthly retirement pay will be $206.09 for Cox and Biondi, $209.30 for Kuehling, $178.26 for Thompson, $175.44 for Kirby, Perry and Robey, $152.87 for Robinson, and $141.58 for Warner, Truesdell, Kalin, White, Legg, Ruffner and Ford.

Four Buildings Top Needs at St. Elizabeths

Overholser Stresses Requirements for Women Patients

Prompt replacements for four buildings housing women patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital here were yesterday termed the "most urgent" needs of that institution for the insane.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent, said the needed buildings have "first priority," even over his recent request for a new 400-bed maximum security building to replace Howard Hall there.

Request for congressional appropriation to finance plans and studies towards construction of the four buildings, the hospital superintendent said, were deferred in committee and not included in this year's budget request for St. Elizabeths.

Planning Outweighs Age

The buildings now being used, Oaks A, B and C Toner buildings, are "more poorly planned than aged," Dr. Overholser said. He described them as "fire hazards" and "difficult to maintain hygienically." All were built 70 or more years ago.

Dr. Overholser, in annual report submitted to Congress this week, also urged other constructions and improvements. These included completion of cafeteria facilities for CT (continued treatment) buildings Nos. 7 and 8, which were erected during the early war years without cafeteria facilities because of equipment shortages then.

He also asked a new 300-bed building for a reception and continued treatment building for male Negro patients, to replace present West Lodge, originally built in 1856.

Concerning his request for a building to replace Howard Hall, Dr. Overholser said yesterday its need was "urgent, but not as pressing as our other proposed constructions." Howard Hall was established about 30 years ago to care for the hospital's "most dangerous and criminally insane patients."

Still Compares Favorably

It still "compares favorably" with similarly designated asylum buildings throughout the Nation, Dr. Overholser said yesterday, explaining that its inclusion among requests for new buildings was "looking to the future."

"During the past 10 or more years," said the hospital superintendent in his annual report, "there has been a tendency to look upon certain crimes and misdemeanors as an expression of disease requiring treatment rather than punishment or isolation.

"Due to this trend, the hospital is admitting more and more acute and recoverable patients, sent here through various courts. Howard Hall is inadequate to meet these demands, it lacks adequate hydrotherapeutic, recreation, occupational and various other facilities.

He urged construction of a "modern, 400-bed security building" to replace Howard Hall.

Dr. Overholser's report reiterated his position that legislation is needed permitting voluntary admissions to St. Elizabeths, pointing out that such legislation has been indorsed by the Medical Society of the District of Columbia and by the hospital council.

"As it is," he said, "a person who recognizes that he is mentally ill and in need of hospital treatment cannot enter St. Elizabeths Hospital unless after a painful and complicated series of legal procedures he is declared insane and deprived of his civil rights.

River Robot Records Level Of Potomac

Buried alive in a pill box on the Potomac is a tireless mechanical man who speaks only in buzzes and is conscious only of water.

This is Buzz, the Robot. Buzz of the metal and wire mind can be reached by telephone—if you know the number. He can be roused by dialing three nembers on the Weather Bureau exchange. But these numbers are secret.

But if you did call . . . first, you would hear a clanking noise, like a medieval knight in armor out for a stroll.

Then, you might hear a long buzz (which means zero) . . . two short buzzes (meaning two) . . . three short buzzes (meaning three- . . . anad then three more shorts (three again).

And then you know the Potomac River is 2.33 feet above the average low water level. So it was yesterday at 3:55 p. m.

Buzz is the robot that records and telephones the river stage at Wisconsin ave. and K st. nw. The device is set in a concrete pillbox which rises 15 feet above the ground. Below is a well, level with the Potomac River. The water in the well remains level with the river and is measured by an intricate apparatus. The measurement is transmitted over telephone by a series of buzzes.

The Leiter Gauge, about 5 miles above Key Bridge, is also used in measuring the river level. This gauge sounds only two buzzes. Each 30-second interval between buzzes represents one foot of river depth.

Both measuring devices are used constantly by the Weather Bureau's river service.

G. U. Records 'Quake 2400 Miles to South

Georgetown University reported yesterday it had recorded a "moderate" earthquake Monday.

The disturbance apparently was about 2400 miles south of Washington. It began at 4:40.25 p. m., reached maximum intensity at 4:52 p. m. and ended at 5:40 p. m.

Tuberculars At Freedmen's Protest Shift

District Law Compels Transfer of 10 to Glen Dale Sanatorium

District-kept tubercular patients at Freedmen's Hospital yesterday protested a budget-forced order moving them to Glenn Dale Sanatorium.

Their pleas fell on unyielding though sympathetic ears, however, as both District and hospital authorities agreed that law is law, and District regulations forbid above-budget expenditures for care of indigent patients of the District at the Federal hospital.

Rate increases, it was explained, have used up the legal allotment for such treatments.

Appealing to newspapers for help was Miss Nell Dejournette, tubercular patient at Freedman's, who said she spoke for all the indigent tubercular patients there whose treatments are paid for by the city.

Costs D. C. $10.80 a Day Each

Orders to transfer ten tubercular patients now hospitalized at Freedman's at a cost to the District of $10.80 each a day were sent to the hospital several weeks ago, it was explained yesterday. Deadline for the physical transfer was set at March 31.

Monday, when the hospital began interviewing the patients about the transfer, their alarm mounted. Of the first 20 interviewed, 9 said they'd go home rather than be moved from the doctors and nurses who cared for them for months, and in a few cases, years.

Two refused flatly to leave, declaring they'd find some way to pay for continued treatment at Freedmen's, where private tuberculosis patients pay at least $19.75 a week.

4 Out of 10 Transferred

The latest order was the second of its kind. On January 15, the District notified the hospital to transfer 10 patients to Glenn Dale. By its deadline, only four had been physically transferred. One died, four others went home and the tenth patient found means to pay his way at Freedmen's.

Dr. A. Barklie Coulter, director of the tuberculosis division of the District Health Department, said yesterday he was "distressed" by the situation because it would vacate beds at the Federally-supported Negro hospital to fill beds at Glenn Dale and at Gallinger Hospital where there are already waiting lists.

Added costs at Glenn Dale Sanatorium to care for the ten transfers would come to an estimated $18 daily, in contrast to the $108 daily charged the District for their care at Freedmen's, said Dr. Coulter.

The transters, Dr. Coulter admitted, will further extend the waiting period for new cases of tuberculosis, including those discovered by the mass Chest X-Ray Survey under way here. The waiting list was reported at 70 persons, open only to "most urgent" cases requiring hospital care.

Admitting that the District "has to adhere to its budgetary allowances," Dr. Paul V. Cornely, medical director of Freedmen's Hospital, said it was a "shame" that such transfers had to be made. Besides the effect on the patients, he said, it will "cripple our teaching and research program."

The patients, he said, did not fear they would be given inferior service elsewhere. They did worry, however, at disrupting their present treatments for transfer to a new group of doctors and nurses, he explained.

D. C. Budget Can't Be Cut Horan Says; Bates Waits

Sales Tax, Other Revenue Measures Hang on Hearings Starting Tuesday

Representative Walt Horan, House watchdog of District expenditures, yesterday announced he could see no way of making any substantial reduction in the District's proposed budget of 101 million dollars in fiscal 1949.

The Washington State Republican, who is chairman of the House District Appropriations Subcommittee, issued his statement in a letter to Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.), who as chairman of the District Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee is the House guardian of District revenues.

Bates has ended temporarily hearings on the raising of District revenue budget. Hearings on the budget begin next Tuesday before Horan's subcommittee.

But the Congressman from Washington State, in effect, told the Congressman from Massachusetts that there's little to be gained in waiting. Said Horan:

"My experience wth the budget for the District, extending over a period of three years, indicates to me that the opportunities for successful reduction of the District's budget are not great.

"It would be folly to hold out any bright promise of a great reduction . . ."

Representative Bates said last night that he had no immediate comment on Horan's letter, but would respond with a letter of his own.

Representative Horan suggested to Representative Bates, who opposes the sales tax, that the District's fiscal troubles might be cleared up with a sales tax, a suggestion Horan has made before.

A sales tax particularly fits the needs of the Nation's Capital, Horan argued. There's no reason, he said, why the millions of visitors who pass through the Nation's Capital shouldn't help pay for its upkeep.

W. Va. Court Rules New Delinquent Tax Law Is Valid

Charleston, W. Va., March 23 (AP).—The Supreme Court upheld as constitutional today, in a 4-1 decision, all but one provision of the State's newest delinquent lands statute.

In an opinion by Judge W. T. Lovins, the appellate group threw out only that section placing a one-year limitation on the redemption of tax-delinquent tracts on behalf of infants and mentally incompetent persons.

The court explained that under the Constitution a three-year period is allowed for such actions.

The delinquent lands law, passed by the 1947 legislature after two previous versions had been declared unconstitutional, came up for its third Supreme Court test on a favorable ruling by McDowell Circuit Judge Thomas H. C. Curd.

Judge Curd certified for final decision his ruling sustaining the law, handed down in a suit brought by two landowners to test the measure's constitutionality before the start of general legal action to clear records in all counties of almost 50,000 tracts delinquent for taxes since 1934.

'Too Ill,' He Plans Appeal

Two Convicted When Their Lawyer Spurns Trial Role

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

The Municipal Court of Appeals is going to have to decide whether Attorney Robert I. Miller was too sick to defend two of his clients at a trial in Municipal Court yesterday.

Protesting that he was too ill to work, Miller refused to take any part in a half-hour jury trial which brought a larceny conviction for two women charged with stealing a $25 coat.

The attorney, who has been practicing law for 40 years, said he would appeal the conviction on the grounds that his clients were deprived of their constitutional right to have legal advice.

Miller, 71 years old, had appeared before Judge John H. McMahon in the morning and was overruled on a motion for a trial without a jury. When the case came to trial in the afternoon Miller asked that it be postponed because he was sick.

Judge McMahon, 68, who has been on the bench for 28 years, said that Miller hadn't said anything about being sick when he argued the motion in the morning.

"You gave me the impression that you were ready to try the case this morning," the judge said. He ordered the trial to proceed.

Miller said, "Thank God we have a court of appeals." He thereupon refused to challenge any of the jurors, question any of the witnesses or make an opening or closing statement to the jury.

His clients, Dorothy Clark, 26, and Ethel Boykin, 23, both of 610 M st. nw., charged with stealing a $25 coat from Hecht Company on February 21, were convicted in less than a half hour by the jury.

When Prosecutor Andrew Howard sought to introduce the coat into evidence, the judge asked Miller if he were going to object. Miller said, "I am unable to try this case. I leave it to the Court of Appeals."

When the judge asked him if he wanted to address the jury, Miller said he had a "terrible headache."

Judge McMahon set date of sentencing as April 3 and granted Miller 5 days to file an appeal. Bond was continued at $300 for each defendant.

Miller later told reporters that he had been ill with the grippe and had a doctor's certificate ordering him not to try any cases for the time being.

He said that hed been excused by Justice David Pine in District Court earlier on another case.

Area News In Brief

Pet Dog Faces Trial For Life in Hog-icide

Sandy, a tan and white mongrel, will go on trial for his life next Tuesday, Prince Georges County Commissioners decided yesterday.

The big dog, the pet of two children, is charged with killing two hogs belonging to Jesse Curry of Beltsville, Md.

County police, on March 10, informed David Dudley, of near Beltsville, the dog's owner, he would have to pay Curry for the hogs or the dog would die.

Dudley promptly entered a "not guilty" plea on behalf of the dog, although officers said a neighbor saw the dog near the Curry farm about the time the hogs were killed and claimed to have seen blood on the dog's head.

According to Dudley, Sandy goes down to meet the school bus daily, bringing 7-year-old Johnnie Dudley home. And he's a "regular playmate" of 4-year-old Mary Dudley, the owner says.

Last winter the dog was said to have brought Dudley to the spot where a messenger boy, who had fallen from a horse, lay injured.

Presently Sandy is impounded at the University of Maryland. The hearing by the commissioners on the dog's fate was set for 2 p. m. Tuesday in the hearing room in the courthouse at Upper Marlboro.

If he is killed, the commissioners must pay for the hogs out of the county dog tax fund. Sandy and his owner are represented by Attorney J. Frank Lillard of Hyattsville.

Who Gets It?

Garbage Mystery Is Solved

Now consider the case of the unwanted garbage man.

For Shipley Terrace residents in southeast Washington and their "legal" garbage collectors for the past two months the question has been, "Who is getting our garbage?"

For eight Mondays in a row, bright and early in the morning, Shipley Terrace citizens have seen a large, open-bodied truck bearing Maryland tags carry off their garbage—and very efficiently, too.

A few minutes later, the District's garbage man arrives, only to find someone else had done his work.

The case of the unwanted garbage man has been the source of considerable discussion at the meetings of the Shipley Terrace Citizens Association.

Yesterday, according to Theodore S. Bland, of 3431 25th st. se., chairman of the group's public safety committee, he was given the license number of the Maryland raider.

Bland cited a letter he received from the District Department of Sanitation, the essence of which is that "private collection of garbage in Washington is unauthorized."

The mystery was swiftly solved last night when a phone call disclosed the garbage was being tossed to pigs residing on a stock farm on Route 1, Upper Marlboro, Md., operated by brothers, Hiram A. and William H. Stickel.

Solution came from Mrs. William H. Stickel, who admitted the brothers "had been collecting garbage in Washington for the pigs.

The citizens' group has been also tussling with the question of littered streets and alleys. They believe the District collector is the man to do the collecting, but even more important is an end to their refuse-littered streets.

J. Neal Crown, 29, of Rockville, Md., yesterday escaped injury when the auto in which he was riding was struck by a fast moving Baltimore and Ohio Railroad train at the Westmore grade crossing near Rockville.

Crown, who was admitted to Suburban Hospital but later discharged, told police he was "almost across the tracks when I saw the train." The car was demolished but Crown received only minor cuts and bruises, police said.

A total of 1150 short-measure liquor bottles were found yesterday in checks of 13 liquor stores here, J. Thomas Kennedy, superintendent of Weights, Measures and Markets, revealed last night.

Montgomery Groups Plead For Road Aid

Already suffering from the effects of an unusually severe winter, Montgomery County roads took even more of a beating at the regular meeting yesterday of the county commissioners.

Ever since sudden thaws several weeks ago caused extensive damage to State and county roads, citizens have been deluging officials with requests for road improvement.

Two delegations yesterday complained bitterly about road conditions in their communities. Eighteen members of the Homewood Citizens Association appeared to ask "immediate" improvement of Ferndale and Oberon sts., Kensington, Md.

Another delegation, headed by Ralph F. Martz, of Clarksburg, declared the Clarksburg-to-Lewisdale road was "impassable." The citizens brought with them a 15-foot-long petition bearing 350 names.

Relief to the Homewood group was promised by the commissioners but the Clarksburg road proposal was taken under advisement.

Meanwhile, County Supervisor J. O. Harvey took an opposite view.

"People won't believe it," he said, "but county roads are not so bad now as they were two or even three years ago. There is simply more clamor now because there are more people," he declared.

Explaining exactly what happens to roads during a severe winter, Harvey said the extreme cold caused the ground to freeze as deep as 30 inches. When that happens the ground contracts and a sudden thaw causes expansion and pockets of air. A heavy vehicle goes over the air pockets and crashes through the hard surface.

Falls Church Census Asked On City Status

Fairfax Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown has asked the town of Falls Church to submit names of eight enumerators for a special census to determine whether the town can become a second-class city.

Town Clerk Claude Wells said yesterday the request probably will be turned over to the Town Council for action. He added that a special meeting might be called. Falls Church has petitioned for the census

Under State law, the town would be divided into four sections for the count, with enumerators picked from the county, and Falls Church. The town needs more than 5000 population to qualify as a second-class city.

Assault Trial Sets Speed Mark For Justice Bailey

The wheels of justice revolved at supersonic speed in the District courtroom of Associate Justice Jennings Bailey yesterday with a man convicted of assault with intent to commit robbery afte ra 10-minute trial.

The defendant, Thomas Howell, 22, of 912 3d st. nw., was charged with assaulting Albert Meshaka, 604 5th st. nw., last February 5, in trying to rob Meshaka's variety store.

The Government rested its case after police testified thatthe defendant had admitted being in the store three times. Further testimony concerned identification of Newell.

It was a man-jury case and Bailey rendered his decision when the defense declared it had no witnesses to present. The jurist commented later that it wais the shortest trial he had experienced in 30 years as a judge.

She is Noreen Butter of 142 C st. ne., who was playing in the kitchen when the accident occurred. She was taken to Providence Hospital by her mother, Norma Mutter, where she is reported in good condition.

Housing Lack Is Blamed For Suicide

The victim, found dead in his bed yesterday morning with a .38 caliber bullet wound in his right temple, is John K. Cranmer, recently transferred here from Interior's Bureau of Reclamation at Sacramento, Calif.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, in issuing a certificate of suicide yesterday afternoon, said investigation indicated Mr. Cranmer had been worried over inability to find a place for his wife and two children to live in Washington. They are stil in Sacramento.

Mr. Cranmer was transferred here about six weeks ago and had been living at the Stephen O. Porter residence, 6930 Greenvale st. nw. Porter found the pajamaclad body about 7:10 a. m. The pistol was on the floor near the bed, police said.

The victim had not been in ill health, although he had suffered a nervous ailment about a year ago, Coroner MacDonald said. He was a lieutenant colonel during the war and was stationed in Washington at one time.

Arlington schools will close Thursday and open the following Tuesday.

Montgomery P-TA Council Criticized by Member Unit

Criticism was leveled at the Montgomery County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations yesterday for publicizing a committee school board election report before submitting it to member bodies.

The criticism came from the executive committee of the Parent-Teacher Association of Montgomery Blair High School in Silver Spring.

"To us the County Council's function should be to act as a clearing house of the local P-TA's problems and programs," a letter from the member group to Nathan R. Gilbert, president of the County Council, declared.

It was signed by Guy S. Gale, Montgomrey Blair P-TA president.

Asserting the Montgomery Blair P-TA executive committee was "somewhat disturbed over the technique" of the County Council committee in making the report public in the name of the council before copies reached local associations, the letter added:

"Surely the question of changing the present method of selecting members of the County Board of Education is of such vital importance that no official action should be taken in the name of the County Council until each local P-TA has expressed its views."

The county council report, made public several weeks ago by the county P-TA eexcutive committee, recommended, in effect, that legislation be sought to allow Montgomery County citizens to vote on whether or not they wish to change the present method of selecting school board members.

The Montgomery Blair group asked more time be allowed by the county council for its members to study the report and that the county council take no action until the local group can present its own recommendations.

Naval Officer Dies in Leap At Bethesda

Comdr. Julian H. Maynard USN (ret.), 60, and a member of one of Baltimore's first families, plunged 14 floors to his death yesterday from the Bethesda Naval Hospital. The death was ruled a suicide.

Comdr. Maynard, who had been under treatment at the hospital since March 8, jumped from a rear 18th floor recreation room window, falling on the roof of a fourth-floor passageway connecting wings of the building.

Found at 4:50 p. m. by a medical corpsman, Comdr. Maynard was pronounced dead by a Navy doctor. The ruling was made by Dr. Frank J. Boschart, Montgomery County coroner.

Hospital attendants said no one had seen Maynard jump, and no notes had been found.

According to Commander Maynard's wife, Mrs. Rae Maynard, 4207 Tuscany ct., Baltimore, he had been under treatment for anemia. The hospital said he had been in a "state of depression."

Maynard retired November 1, 1946, after 30 years service. Born June 6, 1887, he was graduated from Johns Hopkins University and was commissioned an ensign in the Navy Supply Corps in January, 1916.

His ancestors were among the first settlers of Baltimore. Surviving besides his wife is a sister, Miss Mary Hope Maynard, also of Baltimore.

Barrett to Follow Cases

Major Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of Metropolitan Police, is taking some of the guesswork out of his own listening post.

He's having another shortwave radio installed in his home at 5811 7th st. nw., so that, in addition to hearing the dispatcher send scout cars over the city, he can hear the reports of policemen as they call in developments to the dispatcher.

Up to now, Major Barrett has had to call the dispatcher for progress reports on cases. He said that by installation of the new shortwave radio, he can tell more quickly which cases may be serious, and will require his presence.

$64,923 for Medical Aid

A total of $64,923 was spent for the care of residents in seven nearby Maryland counties last year under the State's county medical program, the State department of health reported yesterday.

Largest sum was expended in Montgomery County, which reported an outlay of $19,295, while in Prince Georges County, medical expenditures amounted to $13,778. Others in the nearby area include Anne Arundel, $8102; Calvert, $5691; Charles, $9611; Howard, $4472, and St. Marys, $4967.

Under the medical program, fees are paid by the State for the care of indigent persons and those who, although able to meet normal needs, cannot afford the added cost of medical care. Last year the health department reported, more than one fourth of the persons who benefited by the program were indigent.

In Memoriam

OLDFIELD, WALTER BENJAMIN. A tribute of love and devotion in memory of my dear husband, WALTER BENJAMIN OLDFIELD, who passed away one year ago, March 23, 1947.

Pan American Dinner to Mark Anniversary

Invitations are now going out for Washington's first Pan American dinner, Mrs. Truxtun Beale, chairman of the invitation committee, announced yesterday. Tendered by the citizens of Washington to commemorate the fifty-eighth anniversary of the Pan American Union, the dinner is scheduled for April 13 at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. Beale pointed out that the dinner will take place during Pan American Week, which President Truman last Saturday set aside by proclamation for Nation-wide observance of Western Hemisphere unity. For the past 18 years people throughout the 21 American republics have annually observed the founding of the Pan American Union by emphasizing their bonds of friendship and mutual respect.

Since this Western Hemisphere international organization has its headquarters in Washington, the Pan American dinner on April 13 will be a particularly appropriate expression of the friendliness and cordiality which people of Washington entertain toward citizens of the other American nations. The dinner will also conincide with the Ninth International Conference of American States in Bogota, Colombia, called to consolidate and strengthen the Inter-American System.

Mrs. Beale, who last week received a Peruvian decoration for her important contribution to the rebuilding of the national library in Lima, is being assisted on the invitation committee by Robert Woods Bliss, cochairman and former United States Ambassador to Argentina.

Canadian Club To Give Dance

The Ambassador of Canada and Mrs. Hume Wrong, Commodore and Mrs. V. S. Godfrey, Brig. and Mrs. H. E. Taber, and Air Commodore and Mrs. R. C. Gordon will be guests of honor of the Canadian Club of Washington's spring dance which will be held in the Burgundy Room of the Wardman Park Hotel on Friday, April 2d.

Also in the receiving line with Mrs. B. R. Main, president of the Canadian Club, will be Judge and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Lait, New York; Mr. and Mrs. John T. Lucker, Miss C. Waver Pierce and Miss Clara Bennett. Miss Madalen Hart is in charge of arrangements.

Bobby Waller Celebrates At Birthday Party

DUNGAREES and gingham dresses were de rigueur yesterday for the party which celebrated the sixth birthday of Bobby Waller. Given in the apartment of the celebrant's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Melvin Waller, the party was originally planned for Rock Creek Park. Rain came, however, and improvised games for indoors took the place of softball and leap frog.

Tables were decorated with pastel yellow and green cloths, plates and napkins matching. "Happy Birthday, Bobby" was iced in green and yellow on the birthday cake, and individual favors featured jacks and balls for the girls, plastic motor cars for the boys.

Guests for the most part were first and second grade classmates of the young host, from St. Thomas, Apostle, School. They included Mary Canaan, Broncia Conger, Ann Lloyd, Leila MacDonald, Bonnie McKenna, Mary Ann Tolmeyer, Keith Allen, Natty Cornwell, George Ford, Billy Hannon, Kenneth Shierry and Adre Izac, 9-year-old uncle of the host.

THE "Fashion Fair" at the Statler was attended by many who came to the Embassy Room to lunch and watch mannequins parade in latest spring modes. The regular Monday event was staged by Mrs. Gladstone Williams and, in the absence of Miss Austine Cassini, Miss Betty Beale.

Seated at a special table for celebrities were Miss Grace Tully, who was a secretary to the late President Roosevelt; Mrs. Edward Martin, wife of the Senator from Pennsylvania; Harry Hoskinson, program director of WMAL; Bill Herson of WRC, and Serge de Gorin.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Portner sat at a table with Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Palmer Dorsey and Maj. Taylor Simmons. Mrs. William Mann had as guests Miss Bertha Joseph and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim.

FRIENDSHIP HOUSE, a Red Feather settlement project, is a friendly meeting group for persons of all ages. Above Sophie, a young girl who first discovered the house when she was 5 years old, watches her twin brothers at work in the recreation room. Zacharias and George have found tools with which to mend a broken wheel on their wagon

Crowded Family Is Aided

'Design for Living' Is Found In Settlement House Programs

By Ruth Allison Hudnut

Finding a beautiful design for living is not dependent on living in a fine house and having a father whose income can buy education and cultural training. It may be found by youngsters who live crowded into two rooms with parents and other family members. And it can be found—of all places—in Red Feather settlement houses.

The eight Red Feather settlement houses are located in neighborhoods where they are most needed. They exist to serve the whole family in every possible way and for years hundreds of people have found in them that design for living which has enriched their entire lives.

Sophie found hers at Friendship House. She was a 5-year-old with shy, dark eyes and black braids, a little Greek girl whose parents could barely speak English. She looked out at a strange world and was afraid.

Friendship House discovered her family living close by in two rooms. And the Friendship House visitor, whose duty it is to do something about such discoveries, took Sophie to Friendship House, helped her mother to study English, secured a volunteer to take her shopping, and invited her and her husband to join the adult clubs.

That was how the family began a new design for living. Activities impossible in their cramped two rooms became possible when they overflowed into Friendship House and learned to know their neighbors.

Starts With Toys

Sophie started by playing with fascinating toys and making friends with other tots. At 6 she was old enough to join the Brownies and learn about nature and camping. The outdoors became a wonderful place. In the Friendship House yard she played basketball, volley ball and other games. She learned the meaning of good sportsmanship and fair play.

Through clay modeling and art she discovered latent talents and made gifts to take home, something she carried over into her sewing classes where she soon created pinafores, aprons, place mats and other useful articles. In dancing classes, she acquired grace and poise, and learned how to make herself attractive and get on with boys. Dramatics taught her self-assurance, voice control, ability to appear before audiences. She used her imagination by helping to write and act plays, make costumes and stage properties.

The supper class taught her to cook and plan menus. She came to appreciate a dainty table, and proper service. She learned how to be a gracious hostess. All these new graces she took back to her family to make their surroundings more livable and their lives more full.

Brothers Learn, Too

As soon as her brothers could toddle, Sophie brought them to the House to follow in her footsteps. Their design for living soon became set in healthful ways.

But a settlement exists for all the family and age is no bar to starting a new design for living. Sophie's father and mother had a chance to mingle with their neighbors in a spacious place. It provided their only opportunity to entertain and enjoy social good times. They became proficient at folk dancing, square dancing and group singing.

In the international club, Sophie's mother met other women of foreign birth, and each month they took turns being hostesses at a dinner to which they contributed their favorite native dish. On Italian night it was spaghetti, on Greek night special pastries. Banquets were held for husbands, one-act plays were presented. Volunteer workers taught the mothers home decorating. They became adept at creating something out of nothing. Boxes, crates and jars became bureaus, tables, tumblers and lamps. They learned to knit and crochet, to make rugs, afghans and needlepoint in advanced craft classes. These Sophie and her mother attended together.

And they had new enthusiasm in making things because now they really had a place to put them. For months with the help of Friendship House, they had been trying to get a housing unit, and at last they were successful. The new house was bright with their art, a happy stage on which to set their new design for living.

And Sophie at 15 is poised, self-assured, well-mannered and attractive. She appreciates the beautiful things of life and can create them herself. She can cook, sew and manage a home. She knows how to make her surroundings attractive with little expenditure. She can entertain graciously and she appreciates the full meaning of friendship as taught by Friendship House.

It's Where You Weigh That Really Counts

By Ida Jean Kain

WHIP out the tape. We're going to take a lesson in symmetry. To cut a fine figure with this spring tonic figure course, you must fit the pattern to your measurement problems. You don't want to wind up with the same figure on a smaller scale—heaven help you! You want a better figure!

We can't, of course, overlook weight, for too many pounds or too few can throw all the curves out of kilter. But for the moment we'll concentrate on the measurement line-up to find where you weigh.

Barbara Anne, our model, not only had too many pounds, but too many in the wrong spots. To show what can be done by way of altering figure proportions, here are Barrie's measurements before and after streamlining:

Before.	Height	After.
5 ft. 4 in.	without shoes	5 ft. 4¾ in.
140 solid lbs.	Weight	120 stream. lbs.
A bulgy 16½	Size	A perfect 12
34 in.	Chest	33 in.
37 in.	Bust	36 in.
31 in.	Waist	26 in.
40 in.	Abdomen	33 in
41 in.	Hips	36½ in.
24 in.	Thigh	21 in.
14¼ in.	Calf	13 in.
8½ in.	Ankle	8¼ in.

How did we work such figure magic? Just with exercise and right eating. The magic is in your willingness to take courage in hand and make yourself over. If Barrie can do it . . . you can too.

That's Your Structure

Unroll the tape and get the facts about your measurements. Circle tape around the chest, bring it together above the bust, take a deep breath, let it out, and measure. That's your structure. Of course if there is excess fat padding the edges of the arm pits, that's not structure.

In measuring the bust, wear an uplift bra if there is any tendency toward sagging. Circle tape around back and bring it together across the center of the bust, not tightly. There is no rule as to how much the bust should exceed the chest. It depends largely on glandular functioning. But there are important factors you can control—weight, posture, skin tone, and supporting muscle tone.

Find the waistline. Circle tape around waist—not skin tight! Then the abdomen—which is part of the midsection. To measure, circle tape below waistline across the top of the hipbones. When the abdomen and hips are the same size, that's the middle spread at its worst!

Measure the calf at the middle, and the ankle just above ankle bone—measuring when seated.

Mark down all measurements. Aim to slim the waist to at least 8 inches less than the bust measures at normal weight, and the hips to not more than 12 inches larger than a slim waistline.

From bulkritude to pulchitrude! Twenty pounds and 20 plus inches off. See if you can match our model in the Spring Tonic Figure Course.

Reducing on a Budget

Eat to beat the high cost of food and banish excess fat. These low calorie menus afford perfect nutrition at comparatively low cost.

To get the most nutritive value at low cost and low calories, skimmed milk is used in place of whole milk. Restricting dairy fats to lower calories lessens the Vitamin A. This can be secured in a concentrate without calories and at a cost of a bit over one cent a day. Supplement menus with one vitamin A and D concentrate, supplying 5000 units of Vitamin A and 400 units of Vitamin D per day. Oh, use one multiple vitamin concentrate.

Since all foods included may not be available everywhere, inexpensive substitutes and interchangeable foods are listed—also recipe for special salad dressing.

Women's Division Hears Plea For Jewish Fund

The reversal of the United States position on Palestine should not deter the Jews of America from doing all in their power to help the Jews of the Holy Land defend themselves and build up their country, the writer, Stefan Heym, told a luncheon meeting of Jewish women yesterday at the Woodmont Country Club.

The author of the best seller, "Hostages," spoke before workers of the Women's Division of the United Jewish Appeal. He said: "To democratic and fair-minded people Palestine is more than a rallying point for harassed Jews. It is a symbol of justice. Whatever is done in regard to a political settlement of Palestine—trusteeship or partition—the attacks of the Arabs will continue, so we must make it possible for the Jews to defend their lives.

"If the reversal of the partition decision was a shock to the Jews of Palestine and to us, think how much more of a blow it was to the Jews in Europe who have been kept alive with the hope of one day reaching Palestine."

Mr. Heym brought tears to the eyes of the assembled women with his description of the rescue of displaced persons at the Belsen camp in Germany, which he observed while attached to the psychological warfare division of the Army.

Mr. Heym was instrumental in helping to uncover prewar Nazi espionage in the United States. He had fled Germany in 1933 to escape arrest by the Gestapo and while editing an anti-Nazi weekly helped expose Fritz Kuhn and other bund leaders.

The United Jewish Appeal, the largest private fund-raising campaign in the United States, is seeking to raise 250 million dollars this year to provide for large-scale immigration of Jewish refugees; for relief and rehabilitation assistance in Europe, and for the care of displaced persons reaching the United States.

Mrs. Edward Cafritz, division chairman, introduced the speaker and in a brief talk said that the splendid turnout of women—there were about 200 present—was a clear indication that they were willing to accept their full share of responsibility for the success of the campaign.

"We, as women and mothers, respond to this appeal with our heart because we feel so deeply for those other mothers and children who are calling to us for help," she said.

Miss Flora Rothenberg, director of women's divisions national 250 million-dollar United Jewish Appeal, the other speaker at yesterday's affair told the women of the importance of the advance gifts phase of the drive in setting the pace for the mass solicitation which will follow.

Miss Rothenberg emphasized the importance of obtaining what she termed "plus money," that is, contributions in excess of what is given by the head of a household. The importance of this year's United Appeal, she said, makes necessary sacrificial giving by women, in addition to their husbands' contributions, money which they save from their household expenses.

On Sentimental Impulse, Happily Married Wife Drifts Into Twosome Company of Another Man, Which Leads to Dalliance and a Bruised Spirit

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I had been married nine years when I met John. My husband and I were good companions, mentally and physically compatible, parents of a bright child; we enjoyed our jobs and had a pleasant social life. It looked like a solid marriage.

Then I met John in a Government agency, we often worked together on projects, and soon discovered that we had a great community of interests, light and serious. A pleasant friendship but not unusual; I had felt similar rapport with many people.

A year later the agency was dissolved; and on the last day, when all of us were feeling sentimental about a closing chapter of experience, I went through the motions of casually inviting John and his wife to meet my family some day. That should have been all, but it wasn't.

She Has Lost Zest for Life

HE INVITED me to a farewell drink and over a few highballs we agreed to meet again for lunch. Soon we were lunching together often and eventually we were desperately in love and lying and sneaking to be together evenings. We drifted for a year, unable to take definitive action or to stay apart.

Then the terrible strain of wanting more than this furtive relationship began to tell (I grew thin, indecisive and overwrought); and a month ago we said goodby, unsure that we were right but not courageous enough for divorce.

While I am still unsure, I believe the decision is out of my hands; but I can't get back to my family. Emotionally I've been away a long time. I feel strange with my friends, bored with former interests, incapable of finding a new job or working at homemaking.

I want very much to be a good wife and mother, but first I need peace of mind. Where do I get it? I am not religious and if I were to get psychiatric help my husband would have to know why. Do you see any point in telling him? It would be a great blow to his self-esteem. He might feel he was second choice, and I don't know.

J. R.

Each Misjudged Others' Natures

DEAR J. R.: Emotionally you've been away from your family in the same sense that an alcoholic is lost to reality when on a protracted spree.

It is curiously apt that your romance with John was alcoholically conceived, because it has been an emotional jag all through, as futile and insubstantial as that, from the first drink together until he diplomatically ditched you a month ago, leaving you tremulously sure that the decision was out of your hands.

John mistook you for a play-girl. At any rate, that's all he wanted as a change-of-pace from his wife. You mistook him for a hero, the "Ideal Man" of your deeply repressed undigested adolescent dreams, which hadn't materialized in your husband.

Hence the terrible strain of the cross-purpose drifting, with John passively resisting your implicit demands for a great deal more than furtive dalliance. Now in the wake of his final goodby you are nervously sick from the shock of it, coming on top of the emotional wear-and-tear and cumulative fatigue that had gone before.

Dejected in Wake Of Emotional Jag

BY AND LARGE, your distrait dejection and feeling of being out of tune with reality, of having no interest or energy for family, friends or normal social pursuits, are comparable to the "sick" sensations of an alcoholic sobering up after a marathon binge.

No doubt your sick nerves cry that if you were seeing John you would feel better; or at least, not so badly. Just as the alcoholic feels, "Another drink would fix me up," even when he knows it's a case of horse returning to burning barn.

You say you need peace of mind. Well, yes. But peace in the sense of sober pace; of quieting down until you've recovered from the false appetite for breathless excitement recently acquired. The cure for what ails you is to give happiness to husband and child, instead of straining after new romance in Valentine-package.

If your husband is still a devoted helpmeet and has been all through this episode, he is sanctuary indeed; and in my opinion it would be inexcusably selfish to harass him with a whining recital of your discomfort as you come limping home, the Prodigal-wife.

Ask Anne

I have made an oilcloth tablecloth on which I want to use oil cloth fruit apliques. I have tried sewing them, using shoemaker's cement and glue, but nothing seems to make the appliques stick. Could you suggest something that would cement them on so the cloth would be washable with a damp cloth?
E. S.

Possibly rubber cement would stick the appliques to the oilcloth. Roughen the surface of the oilcloth where the applique is to be stuck by rubbing with sandpaper. To insure roughening only the area under the design, place the applique in position and trace lightly around it with a pencil. Now, apply a thin coat of cement to the applique and also to the marked, roughened cloth surface where it is to be stuck. Allow the cement to dry slightly or become tacky and force the pieces into contact by hard pressing. Placing a weight onto the cloth to hold the applique in place while it dries will also help it to stick.

While in California last summer, we purchased a "wood" carving which was imported from China. In reality, this carving is made of soft stone, I believe, with a dark, mahogany-like finish applied to the finished product. Please tell me how to polish and cover scratches on this "objet d'art." J. T. W.

Darken ordinary paste wax with burnt umber to match the carving. Apply a thin coat of this, allow it to dry and polish well. Or, buy a mahogany-stained wax which can be purchased at auto supply stores.

Is there a dry disinfectant?
E. D.

Quaternary ammonium germicides are put out in tablet form by various chemical houses. These were used extensively for sanitation of eating utensils and cleaned surfaces by the Army during the war.

For best success, use them after the utensil or article has been cleaned since direct contact with organic materials reduces their effectiveness. These same products can be used for antiseptics. Follow the dosages recommended for this use of the specific product you buy.

The doctor prescribed a cough syrup made of onions and honey for my little girl's cold. I could not locate a recipe in any cookbook and each inidividual asked has a different method. Could you tell me the correct method for "concocting this brew"?
W. D. H.

The combination you suggest for cough syrup is not a familiar one. I would suggest you ask the doctor who recommended it how it should be prepared.

Do you know of an instructor in Tole painting? I am particularly interested in learning to paint some of the grape designs on tin trays, also about the preparation of the tray, as removing old scratched surfaces and refinishing. L. R. B.

There is a hobby shop in Georgetown which has materials, working space, and instructors available to show you how to do tray painting. Contact them by calling Dupont 6607.

Is there any way of softening marshmallows? M.

Dip the marshmallows in water, place in a shallow baking pan and put them in a warm oven. Leave them only long enough to soften, not melt. They must be used immediately or placed in a closed container. A good way to use hard marshmallows is to cut them in quarters and add them to frosting or fudge while it is warm.

Will you advise me how to paint metal so that the paint sticks? I want to paint a metal clothes hamper and also an oil drum for outdoor use as a trash receptacle. About a year ago, I painted the metal hamper with paint that was sold to me as metal paint and it all chipped and flaked off. What is a reliable base coat—red lead? I shall appreciate your advice as to the correct procedure and type of paint to use. E. H. N.

The permanence of a metal job depends even more on the way the metal surface is prepared than on the kind of paint used. Before painting metal surfaces, all rust, dirt and loose paint should be removed by rubbing with sandpaper or steel wool. When the entire surface is sanded, wash it with benzine to remove oil and grease. Allow to dry thoroughly. Red lead paint prevents rust more effectively than the white lead and can be used for the base coat, particularly on the piece for outdoor use. For painting, use flat wall paint or enamel. For the undercoat, thin the paint by adding one part turpentine to four parts paint. Brush the undercoat on thinly and allow to dry for several days, before applying the next coat. Apply two or three coats.

Fondant Easter Eggs Are Easy to Make, Melted Chocolate Is Used for Shells

Swedish Tea Rings Are Easily Made

Here's an easy way to make two yummy Swedish Tea Rings:

2-3 cup milk
½ cup sugar
1¼ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons shortening
2-3 cup lukewarm water
3 tablespoons sugar
3 cakes fresh yeast
3 eggs, beaten
6 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Scald milk, add sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Mix water and sugar in bowl, then stir in yeast. Add lukewarm milk mixture and beaten eggs, then 3 cups of flour. Beat until smooth, then work in remaining flour.

Turn dough out on lightly floured board. Knead. Place in greased bowl. Brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover with clean towel. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk (about 55 minutes). Punch down and turn out on lightly floured board. Divide in half. Roll out each half into an oblong 14 by 12¼ inches. Brush lightly with melted margarine.

Mix together ¾ cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon and ½ cup currants.

Sprinkle half of mixture on each oblong of dough. Roll up each piece lengthwise as for jelly roll. Place on greased baking sheets. Form each piece into a circle and seal ends together firmly. Cut 1-inch slices almost through with scissors. Turn each piece partly on its side, pointing away from the center. Cover with clean towel. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk (about 20 minutes).

Beat together 1 egg yolk and 2 tablespoons of milk. Brush rings with this mixture. Bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees F. about 30 minutes. Ice while hot with plain icing, made by combining the following and beating until smooth:

2 teaspoons milk
⅛ teaspoon vanilla extract

Cooking Tricks

The latest trick for cooking prunes is the no-soak, quick-cooking method. However, after the prunes are cooked, allow them to stand in their cooking liquid over night before using them, and the prunes become plumper, fuller and sweeter.

Those crunchy corn chips now on the market make a delicious crust for hot tamale pie. Line a 9-inch pan with the crushed chips. Add to this 2 cups of ground meat which has been browned in 2 tablespoons of fat and mixed with 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ garlic clove, minced, 1 tablespoon chili powder and 1 cup meat stock. Cover top with more crushed chips. Bake in hot oven 20 to 30 minutes.

In the small kitchenette there is nothing so enjoyed as the shelf with hinges which may be raised and used as a work table, yet at other times reposes demurely flat against the wall under the window.

U. S. Steel Net Put At 6 Cents Per $1 Gross

By S. Oliver Goodman

The United States Steel Corp. netted 6 cents per dollar of sales in 1947, Chairman Irving S. Olds said yesterday in the annual pamphlet report.

Olds

This return, he added, was "the lowest for any peacetime year in the company's history when operations were near capacity." Dollar receipts from customers in 1947 were $2,122,786,243. Net income was $127,098,148, some $38,500,000 higher than in the strike-affected year of 1946.

Net for 1947 was equal, after preferred dividends, to $11.71 a common share, compared with $7.29 in the preceding year.

Olds pointed out that production last year averaged 96.7 per cent of rated capacity and said that this year's output will depend largely on "freedom from strikes and work stoppages . . . and availability of a sufficient supply of suitable basic materials, notably scrap and coking coal."

His report also cited that average hourly earnings of all employes of United States Steel were $1.55 while the average weekly earnings for 1947 were $59.64, an increase of $9.63 over 1946. Compared with 1940, average weekly earnings of all employes last year were greater by 81 per cent.

The report showed the company's long-term debt was reduced by $3,967,842 during the year to $77,229,313, which was the lowest in United States Steel's history.

UNFOUNDED FEARS: Fears of a major collapse in prices, following the February break in grain futures, have proved unfounded, Ewan Clague said last night. Addressing the local Controllers Institute in Carlton Hotel, Clague said prices of farm products have leveled out, even recovered to some extent in the past several weeks. Industrial prices have not been affected to any extent, he added. Clague is Commissioner of Labor Statistics in the Labor Department.

INTEREST OMITTED: Directors of Capital Airlines (Pennsylvania Central) have determined that there was no available net income in 1947 for payment of interest this year on the 15-year 3½ per cent convertible income debentures. Accordingly, no interest will be paid on the issue either on April 1 or October 1, 1948.

FATTENING: An Agriculture Department survey shows that the average American eats 16 per cent more than before the war. He eats more beef, cheese, milk and margarine. He eats less bread, potatoes, apples, dried fruit, shortening, lamb and mutton. And he eats twice as much ice cream.

EARNINGS: Commonwealth Edison Co. reported net income of $27,015,107 for 1947, equal to $1.97 a common share, compared with $26,275,646 or $1.91 for 1946. Other

Stocks Resist Profit Cashing, Turn Uneven

New York, March 23 (AP).—Stocks extended their recovery on a selective basis today although many leaders retreated.

Prices hardened after a wavering forenoon, but volume was almost half that of the preceding session slipping tendencies reappeared here and there in the final hour.

While gains of fractions to around 2 points were well distributed at the close, numerous signs persisted. Transfers for the full stretch tapered to 1,160,000 shares compared with Monday's top for almost a year of 2,040,000. It was the fourth straight session in which the million-mark was exceeded.

WHAT STOCKS DID	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	431	674
Declines	356	236
Unchanged	228	176
Total issues	1015	1086

Further profit cashing on the recent bulge restrained numerous pivotals. Selling was attributed to the thought that the rise had been a bit too swift.

Failure of the market to give a better response to the heavy Senate vote for tax reduction served to inspire caution. The coal mining labor impasse, worries over foreign situations and doubts regarding the domestic business picture provided bearish material.

Much of the buying again was credited to big-scale rearmament prospects which might serve to prop industry generally.

Szymczak Tells of Inflation Curbs

Measures to curb current inflationary pressures were explained last night by M. S. Szymczak to members of the Sociology Club of the University of Maryland.

Szymczak, member of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, said the board's recommendation to Congress that banks should be compelled to increase their reserves is one of the most feasible ways.

"This plan," he said, "involves a temporary increase in reserves which all banks would be required to hold except that instead of being legally required to add to their cash reserves, banks would be permitted to hold certain income-producing assets, namely short-term Government obligations.'

A. T. & T. Files Rate For Television Network

New York, March 23 (AP).—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. announced today a proposed rate of $35 a month per air mile for its television network facilities.

Bartlett T. Miller, vice president in charge of the company's long-lines department, said the proposed rate will be filed with the Federal Communications Commission next week. They would become effective May 1.

The Bell System's coaxial cable between Washington and New York and radio relay between New York and Washington have been made available to television broadcasters without charge thus far. They were classified as experimental.

Columbia Gas Issue Awarded to First Boston

New York, March 23 (AP).—The First Boston Corp. was awarded 45-million-dollar Columbia Gas & Electric debentures with a 3¼ per cent coupon on a bid of 100.55999.

The underwriters plan to reoffer the debentures, due 1973, at 101¼ to yield 3.18 per cent.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, March 23 (AP).—Prices advanced in a mild manner at the close of today's Board of Trade session. Some of the advance was attributed to short covering, after a day of nervous action.

The opening was irregular, and the market did not steady until some buying attributed to commercial interests started a mild rally. Later prices drifted from the morning high, when there were indications that the Commodity Credit Corporation had filled its April export allotments.

The closing rally was the most sustained of the day and wheat finished ¼ to 1¼ higher than the previous close. May 2.36@2.36½. Corn was ¼ to 1½ higher, May 2.16¼@2.16½. Oats were ¾ higher to ⅝ lower, May 1.10¾@1.10⅝ and soybeans were unchanged to 1 cent higher, May 3.45.

Some traders expressed the opinion that Government buying agencies may reduce their purchase prices or stop buying after the immediate needs are filled.

Allegheny Plan Is Supported

By The Associated Press

A major bondholder's group yesterday supported a Missouri Pacific Railroad reorganization plan which would give participation to preferred and common stockholders.

A group of institutional investors called the plan sponsored by the Alleghany Corp. a "reasonable compromise." This group, which includes large insurance companies, holds 30 million dollars of Missouri Pacific first and refunding mortgage bonds.

The Alleghany plan would give stockholders participation in the reorganized company. The original reorganization plan, issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1940, held the preferred and common stock to be without value.

The ICC opened new hearings today, largely to determine whether the stockholders are to receive anything. There are six plans, sponsored by various groups of creditors, before the commission.

Housing Restrictions Under Fire in Chicago

Chicago, March 23 (AP).—The Government's antitrust division today began an investigation of housing restrictions in the Chicago area.

More than 60 subpenas for books and records of numerous Chicago mortgage houses and banks were delivered to the office of United States Marshal Thomas P. O'Donovan for service. The subpenas call for delivery of the records before a Federal grand jury April 6.

Melville C. Williams, head of the Chicago office of the antitrust division declined to discuss the inquiry. It was learned, however, that the prosecutors will look into alleged restrictions by mortgage firms and banks in connection with building construction.

Nina Quartin Folk Songs Score Hit

By Paul Hume

Art songs and folk songs filled the night air around Washington's more intimate concert halls last evening. Nina Quartin, Russian-born lyric soprano, sang for the Rybier Music Club in the Arts Club, while Elizabeth Hughes was singing and playing in the Phillips Gallery.

Miss Quartin's program was distinguished by its high level of unfamiliar items drawn from the world's finest literature, while the folk singer brought new meaning to stories and songs now centuries old.

Bachs, father and son, opened the evening in the Arts Club with arias from Johann Sebastian, and his youngest son, Johann Christian. In these, as in all her offerings, Quartin displayed a fragile tone, beautiful in texture but seldom supported adequately. Her interpretation of songs in varying styles was at times overdone, but there were many moments of poetic import. If she would make her diction more explicit, her listeners could profit far more from the fine detail she spends on the material she sets before them.

Elizabeth Hughes, who has appeared here before, makes the simplest story come to life, as she plays her lute and sings words and music that have come down from generation to generation here and in our ancestral homes abroad.

Pleasant and sad stories, tragic notes, and humorous—all these are contained in the realm of the folk ballad, and to each Hughes gave the proper dramatic effect. At the close of her program she showed real wit by announcing the encores were prepared and she would sing them without fussing in and out for applause. It made a wonderful closing to a fascinating and happy program.

✓ ACID INDIGESTION

Do you feel bloated and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief from this nervous distress.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

THE FAMILY SCRAPBOOK

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Youngsters Love Kitchenware Playthings

Playthings that the youngest children will love and which are very good for them can be found in any 5-and-10-cent store. And not at the toy counter, either!

Look for the household utensil section and pick out a set of plastic measuring spoons and cups, a wooden salad bowl or two, some gelatin molds, a strainer and you will have a set of toys that will keep them busy and happy for hours.

They Should Reserve the Letter "P" for Pedestrians

Several District Liners ask that I explain the letters which appear as prefixes on 1948 license tags. Traffic Director George Keneipp gives me the following information:

The letter B has been reserved for bus tags, C for trucks and commercial vehicles, D for dealers, G for District Government, H for hackers, L for sightseeing vehicles (livery), M for motorcycles and R for rental cars.

The letters A, E, F, J, K, N and P are being used for passenger cars; S through Z are available for the same purpose if needed. To avoid confusion, no tags will begin with the letters I, O or Q.

In addition to letters, the numerals 1 through 9 will also be used as prefixes. But in no case will more than four digits follow the dash.

Traffic Man Keneipp says that this system will handle 50 per cent more tags than we'll probably issue. He explains that the changeover was put into effect to make it easier for motorists to remember their license numbers.

"The phone company," he points out, "never asks its subscribers to remember more than four numbers.

"But when you dial the exchange first, you're actually remembering two extra digits without being aware of it. We're just borrowing the phone company's technique."

'PUN MY WORD

Nate Leiderman of 6206 Georgia ave. nw. says that he just can't help himself when puns like this suggest themselves to him.

"I'm sorry," said the tightrope walker's wife when she answered the phone, "but he's busy on another line."

I could say as much for myself, come to think of it. I keep busy on another (District) line six days a week.

SPRING SONG

John M. Blum of 3033 16th st. nw. suggests that you try singing these words to the tune of "Smiles":

There is news that makes us happy,
There is news that makes us sad.
There is news that terrifies the public,
There is news that makes the public mad.

There is news that has a hidden meaning,
One that only Lippmann can define.
But the news that fills my heart with gladness
Is the news that the sun will shine.

BUSINESS BUILDER

Robert F. Wyatt of 1912 Locust Grove rd., Silver Spring, Md., tells us about an enterprising grocer at the corner of Georgia ave. and Rittenhouse st. nw.

Names of the store's regular customers are neatly printed on little cards, and kept in an alphabetical file.

When Mrs. Jones comes in and selects a grocery cart, a clerk immediately attaches her identification card to her cart.

That way Mrs. Jones doesn't have to worry about getting mixed up with Mrs. Smith's cart—and both customers are pleased to know that their patronage is noticed and appreciated.

The idea is a wonderful goodwill builder, and it's passed along for the benefit of other grocers who might like to give their stores a more personalized contact with their customers.

SPOONERISM

The young lady who works at the desk next to mine answered her phone with customary dignity yesterday — and then burst into prolonged laughter.

When she was able, she explained that at frequent intervals the voice at the other end announces, "Mr. Katz' charts are ready," whereupon she sends to the art department for Mr. Katz' finished charts.

This time, however, the voice intoned quite accidentally: "Mr. Chart's cats are ready."

NEW YORK—A magazine cameraman went to the rehearsals of "Inside U. S. A." this week to photograph some of the principals and staff of this forthcoming musical. He took pictures of Beatrice Lillie, Lyricist Howard Dietz, Composer-producer Arthur Schwartz, Costar Jack Haley and others. The photographer then was told to take a picture of John Gunther, who sat in a corner of the rehearsal hall. "Mr. Gunther," asked the photographer, "what did you have to do with this show?" . . . "I," Gunther replied, "am the author of the title."

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor have leased a home near New York City. They'll live there in the spring, and then go to the south of France for the summer months . . . On the anniversary of the death of President Roosevelt, April 12, Mrs. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, Clement Atlee and Ambassador Douglas will participate in a broadcast at The Pilgrims' dinner in London, celebrating the unveiling of the new Roosevelt statue there . . . The dramatization of Sinclair Lewis' "Kingsblood Royal" is complete. It will have its premiere at Las Palmas Theater in Hollywood as a preview to a Broadway presentation.

Nelson Doubleday, the book publisher, is writing the introduction to the new edition of Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book." He knew of Kipling. They met when Doubleday was 9 years old . . . After their meeting, Doubleday read some of Kipling's stories in a magazine, and suggested to his father that these stories should be expanded and published in book form. The senior Doubleday advised his son to write this suggestion to Kipling himself. Kipling adopted the suggestion, and the result was the collection of "Just So Stories" . . . Kipling insisted that the boy be rewarded for his suggestion, with a one-cent-per copy royalty. And ever since then Nelson Doubleday has been collecting royalties on this Kipling book.

Distillers Ignore Truman's Plea

By Drew Pearson

While the brass hats demand the drafting of men for the Army, they continue to let the big distillers pour out more and more whisky, despite the fact that the Nation's industrial alcohol reserve remains dangerously low.

Pearson

Industrial alcohol was one of the most strategic materials of the late war, being used in producing synthetic rubber, chemicals, insecticides, TNT and munitions. In fact, industrial alcohol was considered so essential that more than 200 million gallons were stockpiled in the year 1943 alone.

Today, however, only about 21 million gallons of industrial alcohol are stockpiled—enough to last 10 short days if war should break.

While the big distillers are ignoring Truman's plea for voluntary rationing by adding to the already groaning supplies of whisky in warehouses, the Army and Navy Munitions Board is doing absolutely nothing about stockpiling industrial alcohol for defense.

Real fact is that we face a worse industrial alcohol shortage, in event of an emergency, than before the last war—because at that time we had a big grain surplus. Now we have virtually no grain surplus, with foreign aid taking about all we can spare.

Meanwhile, the brass hat-controlled Munitions Board hasn't even bothered to put industrial alcohol on its list of "strategic and critical materials."

Truman Gets Job Offer

President Truman has already been offered another job—if the voters retire him in November. The job was offered him by William McKinley Floyd of Unalaska, Alaska, who is national commander of the Regular Veterans Association, a small organization with about 85,000 members in the United States and its territories.

Floyd informed Truman that he was retiring as national commander and then had nerve enough to add:

"I'm out after a good successor and am sure you can be elected if I place your name in the nominations. The political fates are sometimes unkind and if you should be out of a job in November, this would be a good place for you to land.

"The position has security—it's steady," continued the Regular Veterans chief. "I've held it for five years. Who knows, it might turn into a lifetime job for you."

Truman looked a little flabbergasted . . . "but I'll have to refuse the nomination. I'm going to be very busy on other matters."

Airplanes Need Materials Control

President Truman has just received a blunt warning from William M. Allen, president of the Boeing Aircraft Co., that the Government must reinstitute allocations of key materials, such as aluminum, if the United States is to build airplanes for future emergencies.

Allen, who was accompanied to the White House by Senator Warren Magnuson of Washington, told Truman that his company now is producing a super successor to the B-29, known as the B-50, at the rate of seven planes a month. The new planes can outstrip both the 3200-mile range of the B-29 and its 350-mile-an-hour speed. Boeing is also testing a new jet bomber of revolutionary speed and range.

But, Allen told the President:

"We can't begin turning out these new planes in any quantity unless there are allocations of the materials needed to produce them, so we can plan our production schedules at least six months ahead. We can gear up our production of B-50's right now to 40 a month, but not without material allocations."

Truman replied that he was pleased to learn of the new revolutionary planes, but sidestepped a commitment on controlling strategic materials.

Here's the inside story of what happened when hard-working Federal Conciliator Cyrus Ching met with John L. Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, spokesman for the coal operators, in an effort to settle the growing coal strike last week.

John L. Lewis not only stubbornly refused to back down on his demands for pensions for coal miners, but even declined to consider a compromise proposal.

Lewis told Ching that his demand for a $100-a-month retirement pension for all United Mine Workers Union members who are 60 years old and have worked 20 years in the mines still stands, despite operator protests that only actual employes in coal mines should be eligible for pensions.

When Ching asked Lewis if he would be willing to have further discussions with Van Horn in an effort to work out their differences, the mine labor chief flatly declared: "No."

"Further meetings would be a 'waste of time' and 'serve no good purpose,'" Lewis declared.

However, Conciliator Ching found the coal operators' spokesmen equally determined to give no ground. Meeting later with Van Horn, Ching was told that further meetings between the operators and Lewis would be useless.

Ching then asked Van Horn if he would offer a compromise plan to Lewis' pension demands. Van Horn replied that no compromise was possible as long as Lewis stood on his arbitrary demands. He did promise, however that the operators might have something to offer in the way of compromise in about a week, when a study of the pension question, now being made for the operators by a Philadelphia firm, is completed.
